Hello again –

After reviewing  the information available online DisasterLAN does not have the radio capability that ReadyOp offers.

Good morning Randy,

I looked into the alternatives sent over, unless I am missing it – while they all provide continuity, resiliency – several are missing the public safety tool. Those which do have the public safety component appear to be missing the ability to connect  Smartphones, Laptops, Desktops AND Land Mobile Radio systems together. I am taking a deeper dive into DisasterLAN to determine whether or  not it is a viable option for us.

WhosOnLocation – a visitor management system with check in capabilities but not a public safety management tool DisasterLAN – possibly
IBM Intelligent Operations Center for Emergency Management – doesn't have the radio piece
OpsCenter – doesn't have the radio piece
Dude Solutions Safety – doesn't have the radio piece ArcGIS for Emergency Management – doesn't have the radio piece esri Emergency Management Operations – doesn't have the radio piece

WebEOC – doesn't have the radio piece

Becky

Per our discussion. Please let me know if any of these are possible alternatives that we could get a quote from. Thanks!
