New Business:

Sidewalk Funding

Chris Hertz, a staff engineer with Public Works, spoke with BPAC about sidewalk funding. He mentioned that the priority is funding school sidewalks. Chris mentioned that the limiting factor is the availability of contractors to do concrete projects.

Anna O'Donnell, BPAC Chair, asked if there was a way to not put the burden on the property owner for the sidewalk. Chris said that the Community Transportation Enhancement Program (CTEP) used to be a source of funding. That funding is no longer available. Scott mentioned that Transportation Alternatives might be a source of funding for sidewalks in the future.

Chris mentioned that it is a trade off because current property owners have paid for their sidewalks and might not support subsidizing other homeowner's sidewalks.

Right now sidewalk costs about $12/sq. foot. Two years ago it was about $8/sq. The average cost is over $10,000/property owner. The amount can be paid over 12 years.

There are 6 sidewalk projects being done this year-Virginia Ln., Alkali Creek Rd., 12th St. W between Lewis and Grand, 21st St. W between Grand and Ave. D, Ave. C between 22nd St. W and 24th St. W, and Parkview across the street from Lillis Park.

There are three different programs related to sidewalks. The first is the tripper program where they identify trippers that are over a half an inch. The small concrete program fixes small issues like a few broken squares. Then there is the missing sidewalk program. For the small concrete program, Public Works (PW) sends the property owner a letter and if the property owner doesn't do the work, PW does the work and then charges the property owner. If the bill is over $500, it is spread over 5 years. In the past two years, bid prices came in so high that PW decided not to do the work. Now the City has its own concrete crew to try to keep costs down.

Chris said that he could mention to Parks that the tripper program contractor will be in town and that company could help out with the Big Ditch trail.

The City has an ADA program but that bid came in too high so the City rejected the bid.

Kristi Drake, BPAC member, asked if BPAC should research how other cities pay for sidewalks to help. Chris said that was fine, but guessed other cities run into the same challenges with high prices and contractor availability. The missing sidewalk project is not a big money maker for most contractors.

Typically, projects are bid in November, the district is created in January, and work would start as soon as the weather is ok. This year, the projects were divided up so different contractors could construct different sidewalks.

Projects next year include Plain Jumper, Lyman Ave., and fill in gaps between 24th and 28th and Broadwater near Target, and Santiago by Briarwood.

Chris suggested talking to Tim Miller in the County about County sidewalks.

Etiquette Campaign

BPAC discussed the different etiquette issues-trails, dogs, right of way at driveways, etc. Kristi wants to determine what the rules are and how to give that information to the public. She thinks on the trail is the best way. She also suggested radio, newspaper, tv, etc. Anna suggested educating cyclists about etiquette.

From the BPAC survey, people complained about bicyclists not announcing themselves to pedestrians and about pedestrians with earbuds in who don't hear the warning. A message about slower traffic staying on the right would be helpful. Cyclists need to announce their presence. The second would be for pedestrians to be aware of their surroundings. Third thing would be any animals you have are under control. Speed is another issue, especially with e-bikes. Anna suggested the campaign target people who are new to biking.

Kristi suggested that the key points be vetted with the City.

BPAC suggested that there be a speed limit in trails. Jason suggested looking at rules in Florida.

BPAC suggested partnering with bike shops, the trail maps (printed and app), and other organizational websites, via signs, PSAs, etc. to get the word out.

Kristi will wordsmith the messages and then bring the language back to the next BPAC meeting. Jason Wood, BPAC member, will help.
