Hi

This is Jon Hirsh at 113 N Aztec St Flagstaff, Arizona. I would like to reroof my house but change the type of roofing from asphalt shingles to metal roofing. Some reasons for the changes are to help fire proof the house, have a longer lasting roof ,and more weather resistant material. Another reason is I have issues with ice dams in the winter. Having a metal roof will help snow slide off in the winter. Hence helping to prevent the ice dams. As well, i will add a component of ventilation at the peak of the roof. Metal roofs seem to have a variety of cost. I am on a budget, and am looking at the lower end cost. I was hoping for a more standard profile. There are two colors im looking at. A brown or a native copper. Having advice from neighbors to keep the reflection down, my hopes are to follow that advice. I ask for your input as well. The native copper , to me looks better, but may have too much reflection. Brown, i like too should have next to zero reflection. Sincerely

Jon Hirsh
