Name that Plow!

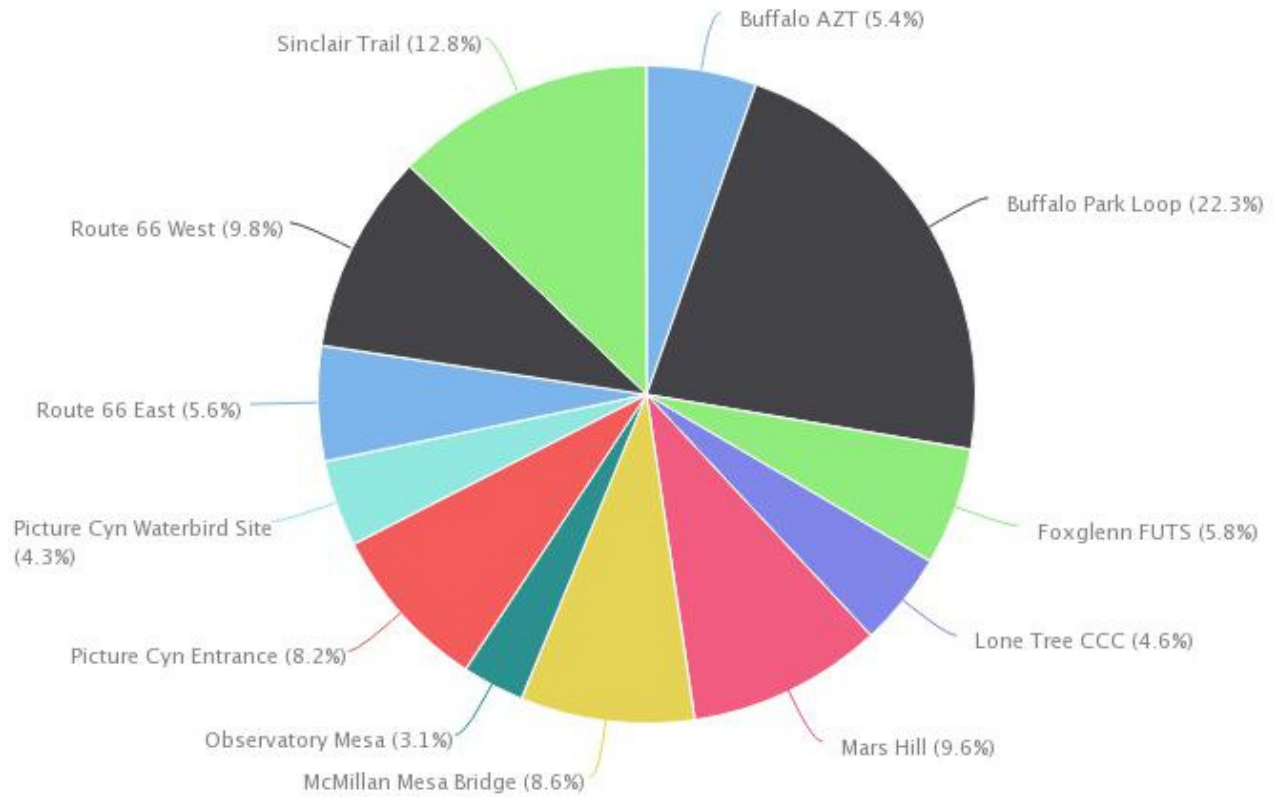

We asked and the community delivered! With over 300 unique submissions for our Name That Plow! campaign, our team narrowed it down to 7 for the Parks snow plows.

We hope you'll follow Rhinestone Plowboy, Tater Tot, Edward Blizzard Hands, Scoop Dog, Holy Sleet, Panda, and Dwight D. Eisenplower on PROSE social media to see them in action. Who knows, we might have a couple additional pieces of equipment to name and follow later on.

Trail Counts

October has the leaves changing and typically some amazing fall days to hit the trails. Our community and visitors did such as indicated on the trail counter system with top locations at Buffalo Park Loop and Sinclair Trail! The Lone Tree segment saw a slight uptick which could be both NAU and CCC commuters.

Winter Preparations and Snow Season Outlook

Hard to believe that winter is here, but here we stand ready to move some snow! The efforts to keep the sidewalks, commuter trails of the FUTS, recreation center entrances, parking lots of many city buildings and civic spaces clear of snow is quite the operation, and all of PROSE is ready to react. The snow season outlook is predicted to be normal to higher than normal precipitation with the potential of a Flagstaff special large accumulation snowstorm.

Trail restoration work at Picture Canyon

The Arizona Conservation Corps is doing work on unauthorized trails at Picture Canyon, to restore those trails to their natural state with native grass seed. Under a grant from AZ State Parks, they've restored nearly all of the unauthorized trails on the north side of the canyon, and some on the south side. We've worked around archaeological sites, making sure there is no groundbreaking in those areas, but still laying down mulch, seed, and wood chips so that the seed didn't just blow away. With the recent moisture we've gotten, we should have success in the Spring!
