The National Defender Investigator Association is the only national organization to represent a constituency dedicated solely to the investigative arm of indigent defense.

The NDIA has maintained it's leadership role largely through a dedicated membership and through the volunteer efforts of a board of directors, regional representatives and committees. The NDIA's Board of Directors is comprised of seven elected individuals. Board members are geographically situated throughout the nation to give adequate representation to regional interests and concerns.

The NDIA's purpose is to provide leadership, training and education for criminal defense investigators and other defender personnel throughout the US and it's territories. Members can obtain training and education through the annual and regional conferences, informative newsletters, professional certification programs, technical assistance opportunities, and membership directory. The organization also provides a forum for members to network. Associate Membership is offered to paralegal's and others engaged on a full or part-time basis, in the representation of the criminally charged.

The NDIA supports a dialogue among academic institutions other organizations having similar goals, and encourages the emergence and development of new and innovative investigative techniques. Most importantly, each member possesses a wealth of knowledge and experience which facilitates the sharing of information and ideas. All aspects of the NDIA are operated by members in good standing who volunteer their services and time.

Each member assumes the responsibilities and tasks associated with committee undertakings and operation. While the Association currently offers quality training and educational services, we recognize the desire to expand and diversify these avenues as needs dictate and resources allow.

NDIA Investigators undertake aspects of defense surrounding the pre-charge, pre-trial, plea agreements, trial, sentencing, appellate and post-conviction. Case issues pertain to the adult or juvenile implicated in a misdemeanor, felony or appellate case; a parent enmeshed in a child dependency matter; and an individual involved in civil commitment proceedings.

The NDIA strives to include all investigators regardless of race, creed, religion, sex, age, nationality, marital status, sexual orientation or the presence of any sensory, mental or physical handicap.
