Microsoft and government want secure mobile data so they employ next technology, tablets, devices and applications. Sprint is showing that next with the world's first next Sprint Data Link and Static IP networking services now operate over the Sprint 4G LTE network.

What is Sprint Data Link?
Data Link for Wireless WAN
Sprint Data Link extends your business network, beyond the corporate enterprise to the reach of Sprint's mobile 3G/4G network. Sprint Data Link provides mobile employees and connected devices with access to their mission critical business information over a private wireless network, separated from the public Internet. Sprint Data Link is supported on a vast array of devices including handsets, tablets, laptops, mobile broadband cards, hotspots and M2M embedded modems.

Sprint Static IP assigns the same IP address to a device each time that device authenticates and accesses the Internet. It allows companies to more easily manage remote wireless devices including M2M devices, handsets and tablets. Sprint provides businesses with the ability to purchase a contiguous, sequential range or block of IP addresses, which can ease the deployment of devices and simplify of firewall configuration.
