

ABOUT

A non-profit education and awareness based organization founded by court collections professionals for the purpose of promoting and supporting the interest of court collections and court collections professionals nationwide.

Members include individual court collections professionals, related professional organizations and groups, and corporate/commercial businesses invested in the effectiveness and success of the court collections field.

With more than $1 trillion in revenues generated by local, state, and federal jurisdictions including court revenue there is without question the need to establish an organization designed specifically to recognize, support, and serve court collections throughout the nation.

A new organization that will provide a platform for enhancing the collection of revenue for court entities by promoting innovation, information, and education within its membership. Members will have access to a variety of info.

Advisory Board Members

Don McKinley, Chairman
James Lehman, Co-CEO & Board Advisor
Harve Platig, Board Advisor
Karl Portner, Board Advisor
Andy Sullivan, Board Advisor

Don McKinley
Chief Executive Officer

Don McKinley is a national speaker, trainer, motivator, and expert on “in-house” collections. Don worked as the Court Operations Manager with the City of Austin Municipal Court. He also has worked in the private sector as a collections manager, and for the State of Texas – Office of Court Administration assisting courts with establishing successful court collection programs and streamlining operations. Don has 15 years of criminal court experience and over 20 years of experience with local and state government. He served as the Vice-President of Texas Court Clerk Association, Central Texas Chapter, and was a prior board member with the Governmental Collectors Association of Texas.