Installation includes, obtaining mechanical permit, installing refrigerant line sets, setting the condenser(s), installing evaporator(s), installing drain(s) to existing floor drain, trimming vertical openings of 6 inches or less, charging with refrigerant, adjusting, and performing a complete start-up. Customer Requirements: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Flat and level surface to build the walk-in box • Rooftop/Exterior condensing unit power supply with disconnect • Evaporator power supply and disconnect • Control wire and conduit from condenser(s) to evaporator(s) (as necessary) • Walk-in lighting and accessory power • Roof/wall penetration for remote condensing unit line set • Roof curb (If required, MRS will provide treated lumber to set condenser) • Minimum 4" diameter drain Any structural, roofing or cosmetic work is the responsibility of the customer. INSTALLATION IS BASED WITH THE NEW A2L REFRIGERANT Over the past several months, we have communicated that the EPA's AIM Act would prohibit installing higher GWP refrigerants like R448A/R449A in new remote systems beginning January 1, 2026. That was the federal rule in effect at the time. On September 30th, the EPA issued a proposed change to the AIM Act that, if finalized, would extend the use of R448A and R449A in remote walk-in systems until 2032. It will now undergo a 45-day comment period. Currently, it remains a proposal and has not become law. What you should know <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • As of now: Federal law restricts installation of R448A/R449A systems beginning January 1, 2026. • If the proposal is finalized: These refrigerants would remain allowable in remote walk-ins until 2032. • Long-term: All new remote systems will require lower-GWP refrigerants starting January 1, 2032. • State requirements may differ: States like California, Washington, and New York may continue to enforce stricter 	$10,995.00	$10,995.00
