(3) The contractor will not discharge or in any other manner discriminate against any employee or applicant for employment because such employee or applicant has inquired about, discussed, or disclosed the compensation of the employee or applicant or another employee or applicant. This provision shall not apply to instances in which an employee who has access to the compensation information of other employees or applicants as a part of such employee's essential job functions discloses the compensation of such other employees or applicants to individuals who do not otherwise have access to such information, unless such disclosure is in response to a formal complaint or charge, in furtherance of an investigation, proceeding, hearing, or action, including an investigation conducted by the employer, or is consistent with the contractor's legal duty to furnish information.

ADDENDUM I
REQUEST FOR PROPOSAL 3688
ADVANCED ACADEMIC PROGRAMS

ADDENDUM DATE: September 30, 2025

BUYER: Jay Garrison, CPPO, CPPB

THE FOLLOWING IS TO BE AMENDED:

ATTACHMENT A, COST, WILL BE DELETED AND REPLACED WITH A NEW COST SHEET. SEE ATTACHED. FAILURE TO PROVIDE THE REVISED COST SHEET AND ALL REQUIRED ITEMS WILL BE JUST CAUSE TO DEEM YOUR SUBMITTAL AS NONRESPONSIVE.

SECTION 3.4 SHALL BE AMENDED TO THE FOLLOWING:

AWARD LENGTH: Knox County intends to issue a one (1) year award with an option to renew upon consent of both Knox County and the awarded Contractor. This term bid agreement may be renewed for an additional four (4) years, one (1) year at a time for a possible total of five (5) years. Knox County reserves the right to revoke the award if a pattern of unavailability arises with the successful proposer(s).

SECTION 3.29 SHALL BE AMENDED TO THE FOLLOWING:

PRICING: The proposer(s) warrants that the unit price stated shall remain firm for a period of twelve (12) months from the first day of the Contract period. If the Contractor's price is increased after the first contract period, Knox County must be given a written notice to consider. Such a request shall include as a minimum, (1) the cause for the adjustment; (2) the amount of the change requested with documentation to support the requested adjustment. Price increases will only be considered at the renewal period(s). If the price increase is rejected the contractor may:

- Continue with the existing prices;
- Request a lower price increase;
- Not accept the renewal offer.

If a price increase is approved by Knox County, the approval notification will be done in writing and the Contractor will be notified of the new price schedule and effective date of increase. This documentation will become part of the proposal file. No approvals will be authorized verbally.

THE FOLLOWING IS FOR CLARIFICATION:

QUESTION 1: Could you please clarify whether the accrediting organization that issues any certifications to students must be Tennessee-based, or if national accreditation is acceptable?

ANSWER 1: National accreditation is acceptable.

QUESTION 2: We understand that Knox County intends to draft the contract. As a global provider of specialist exam services, we typically begin with a bespoke contract template that includes essential terms specific to our services—such as exam security protocols—which may not be covered in a standard agreement. This template has been successfully used as a starting point with many U.S. districts. For efficiency during the contracting phase, would Knox County be amenable to reviewing and potentially using our template as the basis for the agreement?

ANSWER 2: The County's Contract will take precedence over all other Contract documents. Proposers may submit a separate document with other terms and conditions, however, conflicting terms and conditions between the County's Contract and any other agreement will be governed by the County's Contract.

QUESTION 3: The RFP references Exhibit B as a sample contract, but it appears to be missing from the document. Could you kindly provide a copy?

ANSWER 3: See attached.

QUESTION 4: The RFP requests fixed pricing for the initial 36-month term. We typically offer fixed pricing with an annual inflationary adjustment. Could you advise on how Knox County would prefer suppliers to address inflationary increases in their proposals?

ANSWER 4: Knox County is amending this requirement to require fixed pricing for a period of 12 months from the date of contract commencement. No cost increases will be granted during any term of the contract.

QUESTION 5: Could you please clarify what is meant by "unit price" in this context? Is it intended to refer to pricing per student, per exam, per school, or another metric?

ANSWER 5: This requirement has been amended per the revised Cost sheet. See attached.

QUESTION 6: We have reviewed the Appendix C insurance requirements. Because we are an entity headquartered in the UK, we may not be able to comply with all of these requirements. Where we may need derogations e.g. it may not be possible to name you as an additional insured, how should we indicate this?

ANSWER 6: This requirement cannot be waived. The County must be named additionally insured on the policy. Upon a notice of award to a proposer(s), the successful proposer(s) will be required to submit a current Certificate of Insurance along with all endorsement pages naming Knox County as additionally insured.

QUESTION 7: Do you want us to list all the AP courses that Knox has currently bought from us?

ANSWER 7: No. This is a new, standalone solicitation and previous experience with Knox County will not be considered.

QUESTION 8: In regards to samples, we were going to send one copy of each course student edition. Do you require digital access as well?

ANSWER 8: Digital access is not required, but acceptable.

QUESTION 9: Would the district consider an all-digital platform to fulfill this RFP's scope of work?

ANSWER 9: No. The County will not accept an all-digital platform.

QUESTION 10: Can the curriculum be supplemental to the courses or must it be core curriculum?

ANSWER 10: The curriculum can be supplemental.

End of addendum.

Data that does not identify or provide a reasonable basis to identify an individual ("De-Identified Data") is not deemed Confidential Information and Vendor may use De-Identified Data in accordance with all applicable laws.

23.4 Contractor agrees that it will protect the Confidential Information it receives according to commercially acceptable standards and no less rigorously than it protects its own Confidential Information. This requirement shall not apply, and Contractor may retain, personally identifiable student data if Contractor has obtained written consent of the student's parent or guardian (or from the student if 18 or older or emancipated) and provides documentation of that consent to the District,

23.6 These obligations shall not apply to any information which (a) is already in the public domain through no breach of this Agreement, including but not limited to information available through schools' web site(s); (b) was lawfully in Independent Contractor's Vendor's possession prior to receipt from an District school, its faculty staff or students; or (c) is received by Independent Contractor Vendor independently from a person or entity free to lawfully disclose such information other than an District school, its faculty, staff, or students.

23.7 Contractor warrants and represents that it shall, at all times, comply with the terms of this Agreement and with FERPA, COPPA, and all applicable laws of the state of Tennessee and further agrees not to disclose or re-disclose to any person or entity for any purpose whatsoever any personally identifiable student information as that term is defined by this agreement, FERPA, COPPA, or applicable laws of the state of Tennessee.

23.8 Contractor agrees that District or its designee may, upon request, audit Contractor to verify compliance with the applicable requirements of law.

24. Contract documents. It is mutually agreed by both parties that the following documents are made part of this Contract and are incorporated herein by reference:

A. Request for Proposal #3688, for Advanced Academic Programs and Addendum I
B. Contractor's Response to Request for Proposal #3688, to include any supplemental agreements, Terms and Conditions, etc., for Advanced Academic Programs and Addendum I

Knox County - Advanced Academics Program - RFP #3688

Program Content and Methodology

Bedford, Freeman & Worth Publishing Group (BFW) brings together three distinguished publishing houses—Bedford/St. Martin's, W.H. Freeman, and Worth Publishers. Unlike many publishers, BFW is a privately owned company with more than 64 years of experience in publishing, including over 44 years serving the high school market. We take pride in our rich publishing history, our strong focus on customers, and our commitment to supporting teaching and learning.

Our authors are leaders in their fields: Nobel Prize winners, award-winning novelists, and pioneering researchers. Many are also college professors and AP® teachers who contribute daily to classrooms just like yours. In addition to being highly regarded in their disciplines, they are active participants in AP® communities and recognized authorities on AP® courses. Unlike many competitors in the high school marketplace, BFW is an author-driven house. We do not rely on independent "packagers" to create content. Instead, we partner directly with nationally recognized college professors—experts with doctorates and the most up-to-date research knowledge—working alongside high school teachers recognized by the College Board as content specialists. This collaboration ensures that our texts are both academically rigorous and pedagogically appropriate from the start.

Every project undergoes a rigorous development and review process, supported by our editorial team and a carefully selected Content Advisory Board. Manuscripts are shaped by extensive feedback from educators, developmental editors, and subject-matter experts, ensuring accuracy, clarity, and the right tone for the intended audience. Frequent collaboration between authors and editors integrates market insights and ensures content remains relevant. During production, our manuscripts undergo multiple layers of quality control. Expert copy editors and proofreaders carefully review every line against established style and grammar standards (Chicago Manual of Style or MLA), ensuring accuracy and consistency. By the time a work reaches publication—after a development process that can span 2 to 10 years—most issues have been fully debated and resolved. In cases where final content decisions are required, we defer to our authors' expertise, reflecting our deep trust in the scholars and teachers who craft our texts.

At BFW, we share the conviction that what happens in the classroom matters. A great teacher, a strong classroom community, and superior content have the power to change the world—one student, one idea at a time.

Our materials provide a flexible balance of print and digital learning, offering unique resources in both formats. Teachers can choose the model that best supports their classroom needs—print-only, digital-only, or a hybrid of both. No matter the format, each option delivers the complete set of resources students and teachers need to successfully master the course.

Achieve is our all-in-one learning platform for both AP® and on-level courses. It supports students before, during, and after class with interactive tools, assessments, and an accessible eBook featuring highlighting, note-taking, read-aloud, and offline access. Teachers benefit from a rich suite of resources—pacing guides, standards correlations, rubrics, videos, and more—making it easy to save time and personalize instruction.

We also provide seamless courseware integrations for Achieve through LTI link, Clever, and ClassLink, with full rostering and SSO capabilities.

Requirements

Describe how the program aligns with Early Postsecondary Opportunities (EPSO).	BFW's AP SS resources align directly with Tennessee's EPSO by providing rigorous, College-Board aligned content and skill development that prepares students for AP exams. Since AP is a recognized EPSO pathway, these resources can help students earn early college credit, build transferable academic skills, and meet the state's Ready Graduate benchmarks. BFW's Achieve digital supports and teacher resources ensure equitable access and sustained success in EPSO courses across the district.

Describe how the program provides opportunities for students to demonstrate career readiness and the potential to earn postsecondary credit.	While our AP courses are academic in focus, BFW's AP resources foster the disciplinary skills, digital literacy, and analytical habits that employers and postsecondary institutions identify as essential for workplace success (e.g., time management, independent learning, critical thinking and problem solving, communication and collaboration, argumentative writing, data analysis, applying reasoning to real-world civic/global issues, and presentation of evidence).
Describe how the program addresses discipline specific critical thinking, inquiry, reasoning and communication skills.	Our content is scaffolded to help students build the analytical reading, evidence-based writing, and critical thinking skills emphasized as indicators of college readiness.
Describe how the program facilitates learning across the following content areas, at a minimum: Art, Language and Literacy (English and World Languages), Social Sciences, Mathematics, Career and Technical Education and Sciences. Detail any additional content areas offered.	We offer high school courses in the following subjects: • Math: AP® Statistics, AP® Calculus (AB and BC), on-Level Statistics, AP® Pre-Calculus (2027). • English: AP® Language, AP® Literature, on-Level English, Honors English. • Science: AP® Environmental Science, AP® Physics 1&2, AP® Biology, Honors Chemistry, AP® Chemistry (2027). • Social Studies: AP® Human Geography, AP® World History, AP® US History, AP® European History, AP® Psychology, AP® U.S. Government, AP® Economics (Micro and Macro), AP® African American Studies, AP® Comparative Government, on-level Psychology. • CTE: AP® Business Principles and Personal Finance.
Describe the courses that are offered individually as well as those that are offered as a full diploma package.	All of our AP courses are offered individually.
Outline the assessment process(es) and opportunities to earn college/university credit.	All of our AP courses give students the chance to tackle college-level work while they are still in high school and earn college credit and placement.
Describe the scope and sequence of support utilized to identify student potential prior to the 9th grade, with an emphasis on how this process can increase the percentage of students in underserved populations in advanced coursework. If applicable, detail the stage of development that the program is in, along with an estimated timeline for completion.	To expand access to advanced coursework, BFW's AP resources and supports can be introduced through a deliberate scope and sequence that starts in middle school. This allows schools to identify students' potential early, provide scaffolding, and ensure that a greater percentage of underserved students are prepared for and encouraged to enroll in AP courses in high school. Schools can use teacher input, middle school benchmarks, state assessments, and literacy data to identify students who show aptitude in reading, critical thinking, and analysis. Providing professional learning and clear rubrics can help teachers recognize AP potential in students beyond traditional test scores, reducing a potential barrier for underserved groups. Our instructional model emphasizes reading primary/secondary sources, evidence-based writing, and data analysis, skills that can be introduced in 7th and 8th grade classes
Describe how the program provides services and supports that will prepare school and district staff to facilitate student progress in the program	We offer gratis support throughout the length of your commitment to all administrators, teachers, students. Our BFW High School support portal provides 24/7 help to teachers, parents and students via a Knowledge Base (searchable by role, products, topic and features) as well as real-time email and phone support options (8AM to 3AM (ET) M-TH; 8AM to 12AM (ET) FRI; 12AM to 8PM (ET) SAT; and 12PM to 3AM (ET) SUN. Training Example

Question: Proposer is to describe, in detail, their proposed approach to providing services and include excerpts and/or examples of course content and materials to be used, description(s) of recommended content proposed including objectives, research base, and training scripts. Proposer is to include samples of modules and/or curriculum used in past projects that are similar in scope to the proposed training.

Our research suggests that effective training contributes to teacher satisfaction and improved student outcomes. To that end, we offer various ways to learn about our materials upon adoption. Options include:

- Live "implementation training" where we walk you through the components of the program in real time. These sessions could be led by the rep, sales specialist and/or the customer experience associate. Implementation training agenda (https://docs.google.com/document/d/1ulC97TKawewO3GmBfS1SbMu9RHCWctP83iNYNJSSjSs/edit?tab=t.0)
- We also offer video recordings (https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=80JIGse7qzQ) of this same kind of walk-through that teachers can do on their own time as independent study.
- We offer live one-on-one training with our Customer Experience team. We have an online scheduler where teachers can book a 60 minute session to get trained on Achieve. Note that this service is free and open for the life of your adoption. Teachers can come back for subsequent training and take as little or as much time within the 60 min as you need.

Our goal is to ensure that all teachers understand the full program, from the student edition (CED alignment, features, pedagogy, etc.) to the comprehensive teacher package, which includes an annotated teachers edition, teacher resources, and test bank. We also aim to ensure that teachers fully understand the capabilities of our digital platform, Achieve, and that they know how to use the program with students and for their teacher materials. Some additional resources:

Our Implementation website (https://go.bfwpub.com/BFW-Achieve-Implementation-Site.html) features videos and other helpful information to get started:

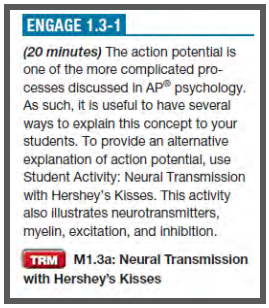
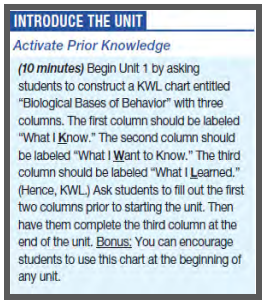
In addition to our implementation training, our individual book programs have materials to help teachers plan and execute the course. These include: Teachers editions that include unit or chapter-opening planning pages that provide a summary of the content, highlighting the key concepts students should understand, pacing suggestions, a list of all available teacher resources, correlation to the CED, etc.





Links in the margins of the teacher's edition lead teachers to professional development videos, and their teacher resources, along with teaching tips:

We provide other useful tools, like lesson plans (resources vary by book):

Central Essay: "from A Paradise Built in Hell"
Rebecca Solnit (p. 572)

DAY ONE
Attention, Please As suggested in the Pre-Built Unit (p. 569-e), begin by engaging students with the context of Hurricane Katrina using the Building Context note on p. 572. Prior to this Day One lesson, provide students with a playlist of materials to enhance students' understanding of the devastation wrought by Hurricane Katrina. This list might include photographs, news recordings, or even songs inspired by the event. At the start of class, conduct a quick poll to determine which source they would like to discuss as a class in more depth. Provide 10 minutes for that discussion, perhaps facilitated by the students themselves. Whole-Class Instruction Following the discussion, read the first few paragraphs of Solnit's essay with students, stopping to ask "Check for Understanding" questions on p. 573. Then, to support students' understanding of the rest of the text and develop their awareness of connotation, assign the Vocabulary Handout found on the digital platform in the Teacher's Resource Materials. You might allow students to work independently or with a partner to complete the work, which provides a scaffold prior to reading Solnit's essay. Independent Student Practice Students should finish reading Solnit's essay. You might also assign Question 1 from "Understanding and Interpreting" (p. 580) to collect at the beginning of the next class session as a formative assessment.
Differentiation Tips for Developing Students	As a way of assessing students' understanding throughout the text, you might assign the Guided Reading table on p. 571. To provide support, extend the lesson sequence by a day so as to provide time during each class period to address students' self-recorded questions and elevate insightful observations to the full class.
Differentiation Tips for Proficient Students	Increase the challenge of the Independent Student Practice described above by assigning Question 2 in "Understanding and Interpreting" (p. 580) in lieu of or in addition to Question 1.

Additionally, our authors occasionally host professional development webinars on timely topics, such as this one having to do with the new question types for AP Psychology: (https://collections.bfwpub.com/assets/67f936a3c34d2e2ea889a4b1?utm_source=Paperflite%20Link).

COST
REQUEST FOR PROPOSAL NUMBER 3688

It is the intent of Knox County and Knox County Schools to use the following scenario to fairly evaluate each proposer's cost to fully implement an advanced academic program. The total cost provided should be inclusive of any and all costs associated with full implementation of the advanced program.

Scenario: To fully implement and demonstrate mastery of an English or World Language advanced academic program for one school year. In this scenario there are five middle school teachers and one hundred twenty-five middle school students participating in the advanced program. Additionally, there are seven high school teachers and two hundred fifty high school students participating in the program. The minimum requirement for training and professional development for all teachers implementing the program is a two-day on-site training, seven hours per day and three days of virtual training, seven hours per day. The vendor is to determine the number of consultants required to carry out the minimum expectations, and the cost should be inclusive of all travel charges for the on-site professional development.

Please refer to the PD brochure for further details. We would have to negotiate the cost based on your PD requirements/timing.

Proposers must thoroughly address all costs associated with the implementation of the English or World Language advanced academic program. In addition to providing a total cost for all charges that would be associated with the advanced academic program, proposers must provide a complete breakdown of those charges. The costs may include, but not be limited to the following:

- Any and all fees associated with the program which may include, but not be limited to application, annual and/or system fees for the students, classrooms, schools and/or courses. Please refer to the attached pricing list.
- Training/ Professional Development charges for full implementation of the advanced academic program meeting the minimum requirement. The proposal should encompass the number of consultants believed necessary to carry out the work required in the scenario. All travel charges for the consultants should be included in the cost. Please refer to the PD brochure.
- Digital resources that the teachers and/or students would need to fully implement the program. Please refer to the attached pricing list.
- Print resources that the teachers and/or students would need to fully implement the program (Shipping Charges are to be included in the cost). Shipping would be 5% for all print materials.
- Exams or Essay costs for students to show mastery of the advanced program (Shipping Charges are to be included in the cost). N/A
- Software Services N/A

Total cost for the scenario: $_____ Please refer to the attached sample quote.

Note: Proposers must also include an itemized list of all products and services offered to Knox County and Knox County Schools with a description and unit price. For professional development services the description should specify the number of participants allowed per consultant. Should the proposal result in a contract the pricing proposed on the itemized list must remain firm for the first year of the contract. Anything not listed on the itemized list of products and services will not be considered part of the contract. The unit price must include all shipping charges for products and travel charges for on-site trainings and professional development. Everything listed on the scenario breakdown should be found on the complete itemized list. While this scenario will only be used for evaluation purposes, the cost should be accurate and include all costs associated with full implementation of the advanced academic program proposed. The County will not pay any hidden costs, shipping charges, or additional travel charges for consultants should the proposal result in a contract. Knox County and Knox County Schools does not guarantee any quantity of products or services will be purchased. Services will be utilized on an as needed basis. Knox County reserves the right to award this proposal on an all-or-none basis, schedule basis or by multiple awards. Knox County reserves the right not to award this proposal.

Equal Employment Opportunity

During the performance of this contract, the contractor agrees as follows:

(1) The contractor will not discriminate against any employee or applicant for employment because of race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, or national origin. The contractor will take affirmative action to ensure that applicants are employed, and that employees are treated during employment without regard to their race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, or national origin. Such action shall include, but not be limited to the following:

Employment, upgrading, demotion, or transfer; recruitment or recruitment advertising; layoff or termination; rates of pay or other forms of compensation; and selection for training, including apprenticeship. The contractor agrees to post in conspicuous places, available to employees and applicants for employment, notices to be provided setting forth the provisions of this nondiscrimination clause.

(2) The contractor will, in all solicitations or advertisements for employees placed by or on behalf of the contractor, state that all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, or national origin.

(3) The contractor will not discharge or in any other manner discriminate against any employee or applicant for employment because such employee or applicant has inquired about, discussed, or disclosed the compensation of the employee or applicant or another employee or applicant. This provision shall not apply to instances in which an employee who has access to the compensation information of other employees or applicants as a part of such employee's essential job functions discloses the compensation of such other employees or applicants to individuals who do not otherwise have access to such information, unless such disclosure is in response to a formal complaint or charge, in furtherance of an investigation, proceeding, hearing, or action, including an investigation conducted by the employer, or is consistent with the contractor's legal duty to furnish information.

(4) The contractor will send to each labor union or representative of workers with which he has a collective bargaining agreement or other contract or understanding, a notice to be provided advising the said labor union or workers' representatives of the contractor's commitments under this section, and shall post copies of the notice in conspicuous places available to employees and applicants for employment.

(5) The contractor will comply with all provisions of Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965, and of the rules, regulations, and relevant orders of the Secretary of Labor.

(6) The contractor will furnish all information and reports required by Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965, and by rules, regulations, and orders of the Secretary of Labor, or pursuant thereto, and will permit access to his books, records, and accounts by the administering agency and the Secretary of Labor for purposes of investigation to ascertain compliance with such rules, regulations, and orders.

(7) In the event of the contractor's noncompliance with the nondiscrimination clauses of this contract or with any of the said rules, regulations, or orders, this contract may be canceled, terminated, or suspended in whole or in part and the contractor may be declared ineligible for further Government contracts or federally assisted construction contracts in accordance with procedures authorized in Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965, and such other sanctions may be imposed and remedies invoked as provided in Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965, or by rule, regulation, or order of the Secretary of Labor, or as otherwise provided by law.

(8) The contractor will include the portion of the sentence immediately preceding paragraph (1) and the provisions of paragraphs (1) through (8) in every subcontract or purchase order unless exempted by rules, regulations, or orders of the Secretary of Labor issued pursuant to section 204 of Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965, so that such provisions will be binding upon each subcontractor or vendor. The contractor will take such action with respect to any subcontract or purchase order as the administering agency may direct as a means of enforcing such provisions, including sanctions for noncompliance:

Provided, however, that in the event a contractor becomes involved in, or is threatened with, litigation with a subcontractor or vendor as a result of such direction by the administering agency, the contractor may request the United States to enter into such litigation to protect the interests of the United States.

Clean Air Act and Federal Water Pollution Control Act

Contractors and subcontractors will comply with all applicable standards, orders or regulations issued pursuant to the Clean Air Act (42 U.S.C. 7401-7671q) and the Federal Water Pollution Control Act as amended (33 U.S.C. 1251-1387). Violations will be reported to the U.S. Department of Education (DOE) and the Regional office of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

Debarment and Suspension
A contract award will not be made to a party listed on the governmentwide exclusions in the System for Award Management (SAM).

Lobbying
The Contractor certifies, to the best of its knowledge and belief, that:

a. No federally appropriated funds have been paid or will be paid, by or on behalf of the Contractor, to any person for influencing or attempting to influence an officer or employee of an agency, a member of Congress, an officer or employee of Congress, or an employee of a member of Congress in connection with the awarding of any federal contract, the making of any federal grant, the making of any federal loan, the entering into of any cooperative agreement, and the extension, continuation, renewal, amendment, or modification of any federal contract, grant, loan, or cooperative agreement.

b. If any funds other than federally appropriated funds have been paid or will be paid to any person for influencing or attempting to influence an officer or employee of any agency, a member of Congress, an officer or employee of Congress, or an employee of a member of Congress in connection with any contract, grant, loan, or cooperative agreement, the Contractor shall complete and submit Standard Form-LLL, “Disclosure Form to Report Lobbying," in accordance with its instructions.

c. The Contractor shall require that the language of this certification be included in the award documents for all contractors and that all subcontractors shall certify and disclose accordingly.
This certification is a material representation of fact upon which reliance was placed when this transaction was made or entered into and is a prerequisite for making or entering into this transaction imposed by 31 U.S.C. § 1352.

Procurement of recovered materials.
Contractors must comply with section 6002 of the Solid Waste Disposal Act, as amended by the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act. The requirements of Section 6002 include procuring only items designated in guidelines of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) at 40 CFR part 247 that contain the highest percentage of recovered materials practicable, consistent with maintaining a satisfactory level of competition, where the purchase price of the item exceeds $10,000 or the value of the quantity acquired during the preceding fiscal year exceeded $10,000; procuring solid waste management services in a manner that maximizes energy and resource recovery; and establishing an affirmative procurement program for procurement of recovered materials identified in the EPA guidelines.

Preferences for Products Produced or Manufactured in the U.S.
(a) This contract award prefers the purchase, acquisition, or use of goods, products, or materials produced in the United States (including but not limited to iron, aluminum, steel, cement, and other manufactured products).

(b) For purposes of this section:

(1) “Produced in the United States” means, for iron and steel products, that all manufacturing processes, from the initial melting stage through the application of coatings, occurred in the United States.

(2) “Manufactured products” means items and construction materials composed in whole or in part of non-ferrous metals such as aluminum; plastics and polymer-based products such as polyvinyl chloride pipe; aggregates such as concrete; glass, including optical fiber; and lumber.

Rachel, I am copying my contract specialist (Katherine) who is working with me while Melissa (the contract specialist who submitted the RFP) as she discussed with our legal dept. Can we replace the language with this below.

"BFW agrees to have and maintain continuous coverage during the course of the contract."

If this works let us know if not then Katherine needs to go back to legal.

Thank you

Equal Employment Opportunity

During the performance of this contract, the contractor agrees as follows:

(1) The contractor will not discriminate against any employee or applicant for employment because of race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, or national origin. The contractor will take affirmative action to ensure that applicants are employed, and that employees are treated during employment without regard to their race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, or national origin. Such action shall include, but not be limited to the following:

Employment, upgrading, demotion, or transfer; recruitment or recruitment advertising; layoff or termination; rates of pay or other forms of compensation; and selection for training, including apprenticeship. The contractor agrees to post in conspicuous places, available to employees and applicants for employment, notices to be provided setting forth the provisions of this nondiscrimination clause.

(2) The contractor will, in all solicitations or advertisements for employees placed by or on behalf of the contractor, state that all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, or national origin.

(3) The contractor will not discharge or in any other manner discriminate against any employee or applicant for employment because such employee or applicant has inquired about, discussed, or disclosed the compensation of the employee or applicant or another employee or applicant. This provision shall not apply to instances in which an employee who has access to the compensation information of other employees or applicants as a part of such employee's essential job functions discloses the compensation of such other employees or applicants to individuals who do not otherwise have access to such information, unless such disclosure is in response to a formal complaint or charge, in furtherance of an investigation, proceeding, hearing, or action, including an investigation conducted by the employer, or is consistent with the contractor's legal duty to furnish information.

(4) The contractor will send to each labor union or representative of workers with which he has a collective bargaining agreement or other contract or understanding, a notice to be provided advising the said labor union or workers' representatives of the contractor's commitments under this section, and shall post copies of the notice in conspicuous places available to employees and applicants for employment.

(5) The contractor will comply with all provisions of Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965, and of the rules, regulations, and relevant orders of the Secretary of Labor.

(6) The contractor will furnish all information and reports required by Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965, and by rules, regulations, and orders of the Secretary of Labor, or pursuant thereto, and will permit access to his books, records, and accounts by the administering agency and the Secretary of Labor for purposes of investigation to ascertain compliance with such rules, regulations, and orders.

(7) In the event of the contractor's noncompliance with the nondiscrimination clauses of this contract or with any of the said rules, regulations, or orders, this contract may be canceled, terminated, or suspended in whole or in part and the contractor may be declared ineligible for further Government contracts or federally assisted construction contracts in accordance with procedures authorized in Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965, and such other sanctions may be imposed and remedies invoked as provided in Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965, or by rule, regulation, or order of the Secretary of Labor, or as otherwise provided by law.

(8) The contractor will include the portion of the sentence immediately preceding paragraph (1) and the provisions of paragraphs (1) through (8) in every subcontract or purchase order unless exempted by rules, regulations, or orders of the Secretary of Labor issued pursuant to section 204 of Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965, so that such provisions will be binding upon each subcontractor or vendor. The contractor will take such action with respect to any subcontract or purchase order as the administering agency may direct as a means of enforcing such provisions, including sanctions for noncompliance:

Provided, however, that in the event a contractor becomes involved in, or is threatened with, litigation with a subcontractor or vendor as a result of such direction by the administering agency, the contractor may request the United States to enter into such litigation to protect the interests of the United States.

Clean Air Act and Federal Water Pollution Control Act

Contractors and subcontractors will comply with all applicable standards, orders or regulations issued pursuant to the Clean Air Act (42 U.S.C. 7401-7671q) and the Federal Water Pollution Control Act as amended (33 U.S.C. 1251-1387). Violations

c. The Contractor shall require that the language of this certification be included in the award documents for all contractors and that all subcontractors shall certify and disclose accordingly.

ADDENDUM I
ADVANCED ACADEMIC PROGRAMS

ADDENDUM DATE: September 30, 2025

BUYER: Jay Garrison, CPPO, CPPB

THE FOLLOWING IS TO BE AMENDED:

ATTACHMENT A, COST, WILL BE DELETED AND REPLACED WITH A NEW COST SHEET. SEE ATTACHED. FAILURE TO PROVIDE THE REVISED COST SHEET AND ALL REQUIRED ITEMS WILL BE JUST CAUSE TO DEEM YOUR SUBMITTAL AS NONRESPONSIVE.

SECTION 3.4 SHALL BE AMENDED TO THE FOLLOWING:

AWARD LENGTH: Knox County intends to issue a one (1) year award with an option to renew upon consent of both Knox County and the awarded Contractor. This term bid agreement may be renewed for an additional four (4) years, one (1) year at a time for a possible total of five (5) years. Knox County reserves the right to revoke the award if a pattern of unavailability arises with the successful proposer(s).

SECTION 3.29 SHALL BE AMENDED TO THE FOLLOWING:

PRICING: The proposer(s) warrants that the unit price stated shall remain firm for a period of twelve (12) months from the first day of the Contract period. If the Contractor's price is increased after the first contract period, Knox County must be given a written notice to consider. Such a request shall include as a minimum, (1) the cause for the adjustment; (2) the amount of the change requested with documentation to support the requested adjustment. Price increases will only be considered at the renewal period(s). If the price increase is rejected the contractor may:

- Continue with the existing prices;
- Request a lower price increase;
- Not accept the renewal offer.

If a price increase is approved by Knox County, the approval notification will be done in writing and the Contractor will be notified of the new price schedule and effective date of increase. This documentation will become part of the proposal file. No approvals will be authorized verbally.

THE FOLLOWING IS FOR CLARIFICATION:

QUESTION 1: Could you please clarify whether the accrediting organization that issues any certifications to students must be Tennessee-based, or if national accreditation is acceptable?

ANSWER 1: National accreditation is acceptable.

QUESTION 2: We understand that Knox County intends to draft the contract. As a global provider of specialist exam services, we typically begin with a bespoke contract template that includes essential terms specific to our services—such as exam security protocols—which may not be covered in a standard agreement. This template has been successfully used as a starting point with many U.S. districts. For efficiency during the contracting phase, would Knox County be amenable to reviewing and potentially using our template as the basis for the agreement?

ANSWER 2: The County's Contract will take precedence over all other Contract documents. Proposers may submit a separate document with other terms and conditions, however, conflicting terms and conditions between the County's Contract and any other agreement will be governed by the County's Contract.

QUESTION 3: The RFP references Exhibit B as a sample contract, but it appears to be missing from the document. Could you kindly provide a copy?

ANSWER 3: See attached.

QUESTION 4: The RFP requests fixed pricing for the initial 36-month term. We typically offer fixed pricing with an annual inflationary adjustment. Could you advise on how Knox County would prefer suppliers to address inflationary increases in their proposals?

ANSWER 4: Knox County is amending this requirement to require fixed pricing for a period of 12 months from the date of contract commencement. No cost increases will be granted during any term of the contract.

QUESTION 5: Could you please clarify what is meant by "unit price" in this context? Is it intended to refer to pricing per student, per exam, per school, or another metric?

ANSWER 5: This requirement has been amended per the revised Cost sheet. See attached.

QUESTION 6: We have reviewed the Appendix C insurance requirements. Because we are an entity headquartered in the UK, we may not be able to comply with all of these requirements. Where we may need derogations e.g. it may not be possible to name you as an additional insured, how should we indicate this?

ANSWER 6: This requirement cannot be waived. The County must be named additionally insured on the policy. Upon a notice of award to a proposer(s), the successful proposer(s) will be required to submit a current Certificate of Insurance along with all endorsement pages naming Knox County as additionally insured.

QUESTION 7: Do you want us to list all the AP courses that Knox has currently bought from us?

ANSWER 7: No. This is a new, standalone solicitation and previous experience with Knox County will not be considered.

QUESTION 8: In regards to samples, we were going to send one copy of each course student edition. Do you require digital access as well?

ANSWER 8: Digital access is not required, but acceptable.

QUESTION 9: Would the district consider an all-digital platform to fulfill this RFP's scope of work?

ANSWER 9: No. The County will not accept an all-digital platform.

QUESTION 10: Can the curriculum be supplemental to the courses or must it be core curriculum?

ANSWER 10: The curriculum can be supplemental.

End of addendum.

SAT Suite of Assessments

College Board has many years of experience in delivering the SAT Suite of Assessments (SAT Suite) at scale to districts and states. As of 2024, the SAT Suite is a fully digital test, administered on Bluebook™, College Board's custom built student testing application. These tests have been pressure-tested at scale: More than 9.1 million students have already taken one of the digital assessments in the SAT Suite. In October 2023, Bluebook delivered the largest ever digital test with nearly 1.25 million students testing on a single day, which is almost as many assessments delivered annually by other assessment companies, collectively.

The digital SAT Suite represents an evolution of the SAT Suite that debuted in the 2015–2016 academic year. The digital suite was designed to be responsive to the changing educational landscape as well as the emerging needs of students and their families, teachers, state and district users, higher education officials, and policymakers.

The digital SAT Suite:

- Measures the skills and knowledge that students are learning in school and that matter most for college and career readiness
- Allows students and educators to track growth via an integrated, vertically scaled suite of assessments from grade 8 through high school and a series of empirically derived benchmark scores aligned with college and career readiness requirements
- Supports students' readiness for test day and their development of relevant knowledge and skills through free, world-class practice resources, including Official Digital SAT Prep on Khan Academy®
- Connects students to scholarships

- Recognizes the strong academic performance of students through the College Board National Recognition Program
- Supports all students who need accommodations and/or supports to access the tests and their content

AP

The Advanced Placement (AP) Program, administered by College Board, has a long-standing track record of delivering rigorous, large-scale, standardized assessments that are aligned with nationally recognized college-level curricula and informed by state and national academic standards. In 1956, during the first AP Exam administration, 1,229 students sat for 2,199 AP Exams. By 2024, those numbers had grown to over 3 million students sitting for over 5.7 million exams. Students who choose to take the exam at the end of the course will register with College Board to sit for that exam. Each AP Exam is developed and validated by committees of college faculty and experienced AP teachers to ensure alignment with current postsecondary expectations and high school instructional goals. Through its comprehensive and equitable assessment framework, the AP Program supports college readiness by reliably measuring student mastery of course content and skills, while maintaining strict psychometric standards and robust quality control processes at scale.

The AP Program:

- Provides scalable, reliable assessment solutions that serve millions of students annually
- Aligns with widely accepted national and state academic standards
- Delivers actionable performance data to inform district-level curriculum and instruction
- Supports access through tools like AP Potential, fee reductions, and educator training
- Enhances college and career readiness by helping students earn credit and demonstrate postsecondary preparedness
- Equips teachers with instructional resources, including AP Classroom and professional development
- Meets accountability and reporting needs with recognized, standards-based outcome measures
- Is widely recognized by college and universities for credit, placement, and admissions decisions, with over 90% of US institutions accepting qualifying AP scores

AP Career Kickstart

AP Career Kickstart expands the AP Program by offering high schools a new set of career courses and exams. We're partnering with employers, college faculty, and high school educators to design courses that can lead to college credit and employer-endorsed credentials, and prepare students for high-demand jobs.

Career Kickstart courses are powered by the AP® features that educators value: robust teacher training, dedicated educator communities, free student resources, high-quality assessments, and the broadest national network of college credit policies. Career Kickstart courses emphasize hands-on experience, teach professional and technical skills, and align to CTE standards and credentials valued by industry.

Career Kickstart courses prepare students through:

- Applied, career-connected learning: Classes engage students in hands-on learning experiences that connect to real-world applications of course content.

- Co-developed with industry experts: Career Kickstart courses are co-developed with leaders from industry to ensure that the courses are aligned with industry hiring needs and industry-recognized credentials.
- Professional skills: Career Kickstart courses teach professional skills (such as communication, problem solving, and collaboration) that are critical in the workplace.
- Credentials: Career Kickstart courses map to industry-preferred IRCs that we know can jumpstart a student's career-planning and trajectory.

CLEP

College Board's nationally administered College-Level Examination Program (CLEP) allows students to demonstrate their mastery of introductory college-level material and receive college credit by earning qualifying scores on 34 exams. There are no preset exam administration dates, so exams can be taken year-round when students are ready.

- The American Council on Education regularly evaluates CLEP processes and procedures for developing, administering, and scoring the exams. Effective July 2001, ACE recommended a uniform credit-granting score of 50 across all subjects (with additional Level-2 recommendations for the world language exams), representing the performance of students who earn a grade of C in the corresponding college courses. Every test title has a minimum scale score of 20, a maximum scale score of 80 and a cut score of 50. Most CLEP exams are designed to correspond to one-semester college courses, although some exams correspond to full-year or two-year courses. While CLEP is sponsored by College Board, only colleges may grant credit toward a degree. Each college or university determines how CLEP credit will be awarded.
- The CLEP program's test development process is informed by the conviction that the exams must be rigorous and relevant to their respective disciplines. CLEP offers 34 exams that cover introductory college course material in five broad categories including Composition and Literature, Science and Mathematics, World Languages, History and Social Sciences, and Business. Each exam has a standing test development committee that consists of three or four college faculty members, each of whom teaches the relevant course and oversees ongoing test development.
- The process is supported by scientific validation and empirical evident at every step, from test development through administration and scoring.

Pre-AP

Pre-AP courses deliver grade-level appropriate instruction through focused course frameworks, instructional resources, learning checkpoints, and collaborative educator workshops. They are designed to support all students across varying levels of abilities through focus. They are not honors or advanced courses. The Program grants educators and their students the space and time for deep engagement with content.

Pre-AP challenges students to build critical thinking skills through these shared principles:

- Close Observation and Analysis: Students carefully observe a data set, text, image, or problem--capturing relevant details before attempting to explain, analyze, or evaluate.
- Evidence-Based Writing: Students learn to craft precise sentences before progressing to longer forms of writing—applying these skills as they craft claims, develop arguments, and provide explanations.

- Higher-Order Questioning: Students engage with questions that are elevated beyond simple recall as they make predictions, synthesize, evaluate, and compare–learning that deep questions lead to deeper understanding.
- Academic Conversation: Students become active participants in their own learning through frequent opportunities to compare, critique, debate, and build upon others' ideas--recognizing that all voices, including their own, deserve to be heard.

AP Professional Learning

AP Professional Learning offerings incorporate tiered objectives and techniques that ensure effective strategies for reform, rigor, college readiness, and school improvement. AP® subject workshops help AP teachers plan and focus their instruction and earn continuing education units (CEU). The workshops cover the following topics:

- Course and Exam Description (CED) and Course Planning. Discuss developing a semester and/or yearlong instructional plan that incorporates all units, topics, and skills of the course, as referenced in the CED.
- Expanding AP Opportunities. Discuss strategies to create a supportive AP classroom for all students and to encourage students to participate in AP, including underrepresented students. Strategies and Pedagogical Tools: Identify instructional strategies and tools to teach the content and skills in the course and exam description.
- AP Classroom and AP Daily. Explore how AP Classroom can be utilized to develop each skill/practice and develop lesson plans that reinforce topic and skill connections. AP Daily videos are led by experienced AP teachers to help students understand essential course concepts. The videos are short and available on-demand. •
- Assess and Reflect. Practice interpreting data within the Instructional Planning Report to identify student strengths and weaknesses and reflect on implications for instruction.

Cybersecurity Pathway

Cybersecurity is an in-demand, high-growth field with entry-level jobs that pay well and don't require a four-year degree. There are currently more than 500,000 open cybersecurity jobs across the country[1], but less than 2% of high school students have access to cybersecurity pathways[2]. Career Kickstart is piloting the cybersecurity pathway with schools in 2024-25 and 2025-26 in preparation for national launch in 2026-27.

Cybersecurity is the first pathway Career Kickstart will launch. We are exploring additional pathways in other high-growth sectors like health sciences and business.

CK STUDENT EXPERIENCE

Career Kickstart courses prepare students through:

Applied learning: Students will build the skills needed to solve problems in the job sector by doing activities rooted in authentic work-based scenarios.

Career connections: Students learn about the career field and the skills and interests required to be successful.

Supportive instruction: Course content is designed with appropriate scaffolding and contexts to ensure students from all backgrounds can meaningfully engage and succeed.

Career Kickstart Cybersecurity pathway resources:

- Course frameworks outline the essential knowledge and learning objectives for each course, include pacing suggestions, and emphasize both the technical and professional skills needed in the industry.
- Sample lesson plans aligned to the course frameworks, provide applied and career-connected pedagogy.
- 5-day summer training on course content, lesson development and delivery.
- Monthly professional learning opportunities during the school year.
- Online teacher community to share best practices.
- Career Kickstart Classroom (modeled after AP Classroom), will include exam support for teachers and students.

Career Kickstart Program

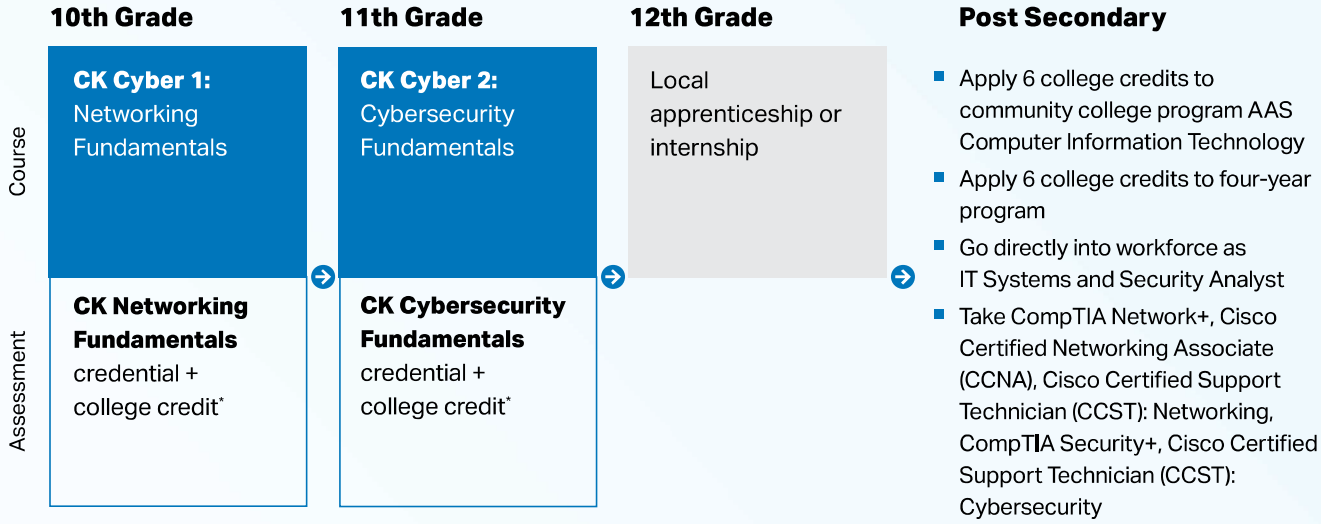
Career Kickstart™ is a new career-focused program that will lead to credentials and college credit for all students who want to prepare for a career, whether they are heading to two- or four-year colleges, technical schools, or the workforce. With a focus on high-demand fields like cybersecurity, Career Kickstart will bring the best of Advanced Placement to courses designed for career and technical education (CTE).

Career Kickstart courses are powered by the AP® features that educators value: robust professional learning for teachers, dedicated educator communities, free student resources, high-quality assessments, and the broadest national network of college credit policies.

Career Kickstart offers two-course pathways that equip students for in-demand careers. Both industry experts and college faculty participate in defining the scope and sequence of the courses. Courses emphasize hands-on experience, teach professional and technical skills, and align to career and technical education (CTE) standards and credentials valued by industry.

Cybersecurity is the first pathway Career Kickstart will launch. We are exploring additional pathways in other high- growth sectors like health sciences and business.

Why College Board Is Developing Career Kickstart



College Board reaches more than 7 million students a year, helping them navigate the path from high school to college and career. Our not-for-profit membership organization was founded more than 120 years ago. We pioneered programs like the SAT® and AP® to expand opportunities for students and help them develop the skills they need. Our BigFuture® program helps students plan for college, pay for college, and explore careers.

To continue these pioneering efforts, College Board is building Career Kickstart to strengthen and expand CTE education nationwide. Students demand more career exploration in high school to help them turn a passion into a profession, but many lack access to quality career-focused programs that lead to in-demand jobs. College Board launched Career Kickstart to provide a pathway for these students.

With a proven record of designing high-quality educational opportunities at scale, College Board is building Career Kickstart in partnership with industry, higher education, and high school educators to assure national access to outstanding career education that today is only available in some communities.

College Board's aim is to clear a path for all students to own their future, saving students time and money on their educational journey. Career Kickstart is an important new program to meet that mission.

Career Kickstart Student Experience

About the Cybersecurity Pathway

Cybersecurity is a high-growth field with entry-level jobs that pay well and don't require a four-year degree. There are currently more than 500,000 open cybersecurity jobs across the country, but less than 2% of high school students have access to cybersecurity pathways.[1]

The two yearlong courses in the Career Kickstart Cybersecurity Pathway—first Cybersecurity 1: Networking Fundamentals and then the Cybersecurity 2: Cybersecurity Fundamentals course—are designed to provide students with stackable credentials that they can apply to entry-level jobs and to college, and to help connect them to jobs that provide good salaries in this in-demand, high-growth industry.

After demonstrating competency through Career Kickstart cybersecurity coursework, students have multiple options to continue their career development:

- Go directly into the workforce or secure an apprenticeship.
- Continue progress toward taking common industry certifications including CompTIA Network+, Cisco Certified Networking Associate (CCNA), Cisco Certified Support Technician (CCST): Networking, CompTIA Security+, and Cisco Certified Support Technician (CCST): Cybersecurity.
- Apply college credits to a relevant community college degree or certificate program.
- Apply college credits to a relevant four-year degree.

Several early-career jobs associated with the cybersecurity pathway do not require a college degree and pay median salaries in the range of $62,000 to $137,000, including:[2]

- Cloud Architect
- Cyber Crime Investigator
- Cyber Defense Incident Responder
- Cyber Ops Planner
- System Testing and Evaluation Specialist
- Systems Administrator
- Vulnerability Assessment Analyst

Teacher Resources

Lesson Plans

In addition to the course framework, sequencing, and pacing, pilot teachers will have access to approximately two Career Kickstart–provided lesson plans per unit, including any digital resources associated with each plan (e.g., presentation slides, teacher notes, student handouts, etc.).

CYBERSECURITY 1
Sample Lessons

UNIT 1

Paper Messages

Use double-sided origami paper as a physical representation of the on/off states of bits to prompt students to demonstrate how information is transmitted digitally. Use the strengths and limitations of this representation to motivate the need for protocols and multiple bits in a row to represent and transmit data.

Binary Number Cards

Students use printable base-10 (decimal) and base-2 (binary) cards to physically model a number's place value. This activity develops students' conceptual understanding of number systems and provides the basis for teaching base-16 (hexadecimal) in the next unit.

UNIT 2

Cable Construction

Students build their own ethernet cables to deepen their understanding that all data sent in a network eventually run through a physical cable. Students learn that the strengths and drawbacks of cables are related to the physical properties of the transmission medium.

UNIT 3

CS Disconnected

There's trouble in the computer lab! Using Cisco Packet Tracer, students must exercise their troubleshooting skills to identify and fix multiple connectivity issues in the lab.

For SY2025-26, Career Kickstart looks to partner with curriculum providers to build out even more high-quality instructional resources for teachers to use in the classroom..

UNIT 1

Vulnerability Testing

In a safe virtualized environment, students probe a file server for vulnerabilities using automated tools, document their findings, and present a vulnerability report suggesting mitigations for the vulnerabilities they've detected.

Secure Communication

Using open-source tools, students generate asymmetric key pairs and practice using encryption and digital signature protocols to securely communicate with a classmate. Through sending and receiving messages, students gain an understanding of how encryption works to protect the contents of a message, verify the integrity of a message, and verify the source of a message.

Cyber Incident Analysis

In this lesson, students role-play as cyber incident responders investigating a cybersecurity incident. Students work in teams to analyze evidence from a cybersecurity incident and determine who was responsible, how they carried out the cyberattack, and what their motivations were. Student teams practice communication by presenting their analyses to the class.

Summer Training and Professional Learning

Pilot teachers will engage in a required weeklong Summer Institute. There will be multiple dates and locations to ensure everyone can attend. This institute will prepare teachers for Day 1 of their Career Kickstart program, so they'll feel confident delivering Career Kickstart in a way that emphasizes real-world, job-related applications; problem-solving; and the development of students' technical and professional skills. Teachers will also leave the institute as part of a larger community of Career Kickstart cybersecurity educators, able to collaborate with one another throughout the year.

A high-level overview of a teacher's journey through the Summer Institute:

DAY 1 Grounding Our Work	Develop your understanding of the Career Kickstart program and your role as a pilot teacher.
DAY 2 Building Foundations	Deep dive into the course guide, sample lesson plans, and Career Kickstart pilot assessment. Develop skills for coaching students' professional skills.
DAY 3–4 Building Engaging Lessons	Build our engaging instructional practice: lesson planning, scaffolding strategies, and lesson delivery. Incorporate professional skills and career-oriented learning opportunities.
DAY 5 Putting Theory into Practice	Create and share new lesson plans to bring the course to life. Collaborate with others and begin planning your year.

In addition to summer training, there will be online professional learning opportunities throughout the year.

Online Teacher Community

During Career Kickstart Summer Institute, teachers will leave with at least one lesson per topic authored by the Career Kickstart pilot teacher community in the online teacher community (OTC). The OTC is a place for teachers to both engage in discussions and share resources with the Career Kickstart Cybersecurity pilot teacher community.

In the future, Career Kickstart will look to develop something similar to AP Classroom, which will house additional student and teacher resources for Career Kickstart courses.

Assessment Overview

Cybersecurity 1: Networking Fundamentals and Cybersecurity 2: Cybersecurity Fundamentals will both include an exam that measures the learning objectives and skills outlined in the course frameworks. Students will receive a score for their performance on the Career Kickstart Cybersecurity Pathway exams. Just like AP, that score will range from 1–5. College Board is actively working with community colleges, four-year institutions, and technical schools to expand credit policies and ensure that Career Kickstart Cybersecurity Pathway courses set a strong foundation for student success.

More information about exam design and administration will be available by early 2025.

Cybersecurity is essential as it touches every aspect of our digital, societal, economic, political, and physical lives. It protects systems, networks, and data ensuring confidentiality, integrity, and availability of information. By securing these areas, we maintain the safety, trust, and integrity of our interconnected world.

Career Kickstart Cybersecurity offers students the foundational knowledge and a head start for a wide range of in-demand career opportunities in the cybersecurity field, a competitive edge through industry-recognized credentials, and college credit opportunities.

Three Steps to Build Your AP Capstone Diploma Program

1 Plan for the Course Sequence

The AP Capstone Diploma™ Program comprises two, yearlong project-based courses: AP Seminar and AP Research. AP Seminar is an introductory AP® class for grades 10 or 11, and serves as a prerequisite for AP Research, which is typically offered in grades 11 or 12.

These courses can be assigned to a variety of academic departments, allowing flexibility for any educator to become an AP Seminar or AP Research teacher. Teachers in each course typically have English/language arts, science, or social science certifications. There is no obligation for AP Seminar teachers to also teach AP Research.

For more information about resourcing your AP Capstone™ program, utilize the AP Capstone Implementation Guide.

2 Apply to Participate

School or district leaders must complete a free, online application and be approved to join the AP Capstone Diploma Program. Once approved to participate in the program, schools are eligible to offer AP Seminar and AP Research courses. Applications must be submitted during the academic year prior to implementation and are reviewed on a rolling basis.

Apply now to participate at collegeboard.org/apcapstone.

3 Register Teachers for Training

New AP Seminar and AP Research teachers at schools approved to offer these courses must complete summer professional learning prior to teaching their course.

AP Capstone training focuses on interdisciplinary learning and project-based approaches. It includes:

- A 5-day workshop led by a trained consultant
- Access to additional online professional learning updated annually
- Training in a virtual or in-person setting, hosted at select AP Summer Institutes

Private workshops are also available for districts with a large number of AP Seminar or AP Research teachers requiring training.

AP Capstone Scholarships are awarded to eligible teachers at schools where at least 50% of the student population qualify for free or reduced-price lunch. The scholarship covers the cost of the professional learning tuition.

Visit the AP Capstone Professional Learning page for scholarship application information and for approved schools to register for summer training. Registration launches annually in February.

AP Equity and Access Policy

College Board strongly encourages educators to make equitable access a guiding principle for their AP® programs by giving all willing and academically prepared students the opportunity to participate in AP. We encourage the elimination of barriers that restrict access to AP for students from ethnic, racial, and socioeconomic groups that have been traditionally underrepresented. Schools should make every effort to ensure that their AP classes reflect the diversity of their student population. College Board also believes that all students should have access to academically challenging coursework before they enroll in AP classes, which can prepare them for AP success. It's only through a commitment to equitable preparation and access that true equity and excellence can be achieved.

How AP Capstone Works

The AP Capstone Diploma program is a college-level program based on two courses—AP Seminar and AP Research—that complement and enhance discipline-specific AP courses.

The program gives students a chance to practice core academic skills that are increasingly valued by colleges. The ability to think independently, write effectively, research, collaborate, and learn across disciplines is essential for success in college, career, and beyond.

Students who earn scores of 3 or higher in AP Seminar and AP Research and on 4 additional AP Exams of their choosing receive the AP Capstone Diploma. This signifies their outstanding academic achievement and attainment of college-level academic and research skills. Students who earn scores of 3 or higher in both AP Seminar and AP Research but not on 4 additional AP Exams receive the AP Seminar and Research Certificate™.

AP Capstone was developed in response to feedback from higher education and is easily implemented and flexible. It has the potential to differentiate and transform high schools and their students by elevating the learning environment through a challenging, college-level program with high standards of assessment.

Implementation

How to Become an AP Capstone School

Any school can participate in the AP Capstone Diploma Program; as of the 2024-25 school year, no application or sign-up form is required. To become an AP Capstone school and offer AP Seminar and AP Research, schools must ensure that their teachers complete the required AP Capstone Summer Institute prior to teaching either course.

Costs and Resourcing Considerations

There are no annual administrative fees charged by College Board. Administrators should consider the costs and resources outlined below when planning to implement AP Capstone courses.

AP CAPSTONE SUMMER INSTITUTE FEE

The cost for the 2025 AP Capstone Summer Institute is $1,075 per participant. The fee is updated annually.

This fee includes tuition and electronic materials for the AP Summer Institute, as well as access to the online scoring training. It does not include travel, lodging, meal expenses, and incidental costs.

All new AP Seminar and AP Research instructors are required to attend an AP Capstone Summer Institute before teaching either course for the first time. A school can't offer an AP Course Audit–authorized AP Seminar or AP Research course without a trained teacher. This training is offered by select AP Summer Institutes throughout the summer. School leaders aren't required to attend this AP Summer Institute but may use this opportunity to deepen their understanding of the program and may make a special request to attend. Teachers complete training once before their first year teaching the course—this isn't an annual requirement.

A limited number of fee waivers for teachers from eligible schools are available through an application process available on our AP Summer Institute Tuition Fee Waivers page.

Note: The AP Summer Institute fee doesn't include travel, lodging, some meals, credit card processing fees for registration, or incidentals. Additional training may be required at the school's expense if assessment scoring performance doesn't meet College Board standards. Fees are subject to change annually.

In addition, all AP Seminar and AP Research teachers must complete online assessment scoring training during the school year—this is an annual requirement for all AP Capstone teachers that is separate from the AP Summer Institute for new teachers.

See collegeboard.org/apcapstonepl for more information.

EXAM FEES

The 2024-25 exam fee for AP Seminar and AP Research is $147 per exam, and schools retain a $9 rebate per exam. An exam order for AP Seminar and/or AP Research must be submitted for all students included in the exam roster in AP Registration and Ordering. College Board provides a $37 fee reduction per AP Exam for students who are eligible for the College Board fee reduction. Schools are expected to forgo their $9 rebate for these students. Many states use federal and state funding to further reduce the exam fee for these students. The AP Program will update state subsidy information posted on AP Central (cb.org/apexamfeeassistance) as soon as each state finalizes their 2025 funding plan.

See Part 1 of the AP Coordinator's Manual for detailed information about fees.

RESOURCING YOUR AP CAPSTONE PROGRAM

During the 2024-25 school year, all AP Seminar and AP Research students will receive digital access to EBSCO Academic Search Ultimate and Turnitin via the AP Digital Portfolio at no additional cost.

REQUIREMENTS

Teachers and students need high-speed internet access and technology to conduct research, complete multimedia presentations, and submit team and individual projects. Schools should be sure their technology infrastructure offers the bandwidth to perform these tasks.

Schools and districts should consider the following recommendations even though they're not mandatory:

- Compensation and/or release time for teachers to take online scoring training and score students' through-course assessments
- Extra time before or after school, or on weekends, for students to give their multimedia presentations (and to free up class time)
- Staff designated to support students enrolled in the AP Capstone program (e.g., librarian, media specialist, expert adviser)
- Extra time during faculty meetings to explain the AP Capstone program and align curriculum with AP courses
- Professional learning time to allow AP Capstone teachers to meet as a professional learning community (PLC)
- Professional learning funding for AP Capstone teachers to attend AP Annual Conference sessions
- Release time for teachers to be AP readers
- Funding to reduce the AP Exam fee for AP Capstone students
- Meetings with parents to talk about the AP Capstone program
- Classroom furniture that facilitates group instruction and student collaboration
- Access to databases and online academic resources through the school library or media center
- One-to-one student access to computers, laptops, or tablets during AP Seminar and AP Research class time

Recruiting Students

Students who are motivated and prepared for college-level coursework are best suited for the AP Capstone Diploma program, but the program also benefits those students who show potential for AP coursework but haven't yet enrolled in AP courses. Students should demonstrate curiosity about real-world issues, a willingness to take intellectual risks, and a dedication to acquiring the skills that colleges and universities value—critical inquiry, analysis, and research. In short, AP Capstone students have an interest in becoming curious, independent, and collaborative scholars.

RECRUITMENT OF STUDENTS WHO ARE NEW TO AP

AP Capstone can propel a diversity of students to pursue their own interests/passions. Students develop the tools to meaningfully and thoughtfully weigh in on issues that matter to them—whether local, regional, national, or global in nature. Students choose their own research topic for their theses. For some schools, AP Seminar may be used as a way to introduce students to the rigor of Advanced Placement® while providing the foundational skills that will complement other AP courses.

Scheduling AP Capstone Courses

AP Seminar and AP Research are flexible and may be offered as a sequence in grades 10 and 11, grades 11 and 12, or grades 10 and 12. Schools may offer a combination of sequences and align AP Capstone courses with an existing senior project requirement or existing AP courses.

Currently, many schools are offering AP Seminar in their English department to satisfy a graduation requirement. Learn more about this approach on collegeboard.org/apseminarela. Although many schools are positioning AP Seminar for English 10, this course can be offered through any academic department and in grades 10, 11, or 12. AP Research follows AP Seminar. AP Research can be offered in grades 11 and 12 and can fit into any department.

It's not recommended that AP Seminar be offered in grade 9. However, students in grade 12 can be encouraged to take AP Seminar if they understand that they won't meet the eligibility requirements for the AP Capstone Diploma or the AP Seminar and Research Certificate.

AP Capstone schools can only offer AP Seminar in their first year of implementation. After the first year, schools can then introduce AP Research when ready.

Note: AP Seminar is a prerequisite for AP Research. See the Prerequisite policy on AP Central for details.

GRADE-LEVEL SEQUENCE	GRADE 10/11	GRADE 11/12	GRADE 10/12
Pros	▪ Builds college-level critical skills early in the students' high school career. ▪ Increases participation and performance in AP courses. ▪ Enables grade 12 students to mentor students in AP Seminar and AP Research. ▪ Lets students complete a research project before submitting college applications and participating in college interviews.	▪ Student maturity provides a larger pool of students able to participate in AP Seminar. ▪ Students have a broader foundation of skills and content knowledge before beginning college-level work. ▪ Schools can structure a culminating experience for graduating seniors.	▪ Enables students to acquire college-level skills early and apply those skills in a culminating research project. ▪ Enables development of college-level critical skills early in the students' high school career. ▪ Increases participation and performance in AP courses. ▪ Enables schools to structure a culminating experience for graduating seniors.

GRADE-LEVEL SEQUENCE	GRADE 10/11	GRADE 11/12	GRADE 10/12
Cons	▪ Adds a major research project to the traditionally busy grade 11.	▪ Students have limited opportunity to retake AP Seminar and AP Research.	▪ Requires that the curriculum bridge the grade 11 gap so AP Research doesn't need to reteach the skills acquired in AP Seminar.

English 10: AP Seminar

OFFERING AP SEMINAR AS AN ENGLISH 10 COURSE

There are a variety of ways to implement AP Seminar. Schools are choosing to offer AP Seminar as an English course for grade 10. This approach introduces students to AP and expands access for students to engage in more relevant coursework with project-based assessments. Integrating AP Seminar into English departments provides the greatest opportunity for students to fit the course within their schedules and meet a graduation requirement.

CONSIDERATIONS TO IMPLEMENT ENGLISH 10: AP SEMINAR

- Course Categorization
  AP Seminar can fulfill an English Course Requirement*. AP Seminar students master skills in analyzing a variety of texts, writing explanatory and argumentative essays, conducting research, working in teams, and presenting. These skills align with English 10 standards, offering teachers the flexibility to incorporate local English standards into their instruction. State crosswalks, available upon request, illustrate how AP Seminar corresponds with state ELA standards.

  Teachers can supplement their AP Seminar course to meet English 10 standards by adding literary and rhetorical analysis, as well as narrative writing, into the themes they choose.

  Learn how schools and districts are incorporating AP Seminar as a core course.

  - Teacher Perspectives: Rethinking Your English Sequence with AP Seminar
  - Administrator Insights: Rethinking Your English Sequence with AP Seminar

- Instructor Credential
  Certified English instructors in states with an approved English 10 course code for AP Seminar are eligible to teach English 10: AP Seminar.

  Additionally, certified English instructors must complete the required AP Capstone Summer Institute to teach English 10: AP Seminar.

*Schools should contact their state department of education to find out their specific policies regarding English credit.

- Curricular Resources
  A variety of curricular resources are available for English curriculum leaders and staff interested in understanding strategies and instructional approaches of English 10: AP Seminar.

  - Instructional Guide: Strategies to incorporate English 10 skills such as literary analysis and creative writing into the course.
  - Sample Syllabus A: Integrates full literary texts (Night, To Kill a Mockingbird, and Macbeth) into the course and suggests a final unit to address narrative writing standards.
  - Sample Syllabus B: Weaves literary fiction and nonfiction texts throughout the course.
  - Sample Syllabus C: Connects longer works read over the summer to shorter texts (including artistic works) based on thematic links.

  Learn more about this approach on AP Central: collegeboard.org/apseminarela

- Course Sequence
  It's recommended to use AP Seminar to fulfill English 10 requirements in approved states. However, depending on the state policy, schools and districts have the flexibility to offer AP Seminar as a core English course in grades 11 and/or 12.

  A typical pathway to offer English 10: AP Seminar is to all sophomores, as shown in the table below. To view the entirety of pathways, see the English Sequence Options Table.

GRADE 9	GRADE 10	GRADE 11	GRADE 12
English 9 or Pre-AP® English 1	English 10: AP Seminar	English 11	English 12
			AP English Language
			AP English Literature
		AP English Language	English 12
			AP English Literature
		AP English Literature	English 12

- Eligible Students
  Offering English 10: AP Seminar to students is a local decision due to the flexible implementation options of the course. For some schools, AP Seminar can fulfill an English 10 option, or, in some, it can be the gradewide English 10 course. We recommend schools have the structures in place to support a diversity of learners before requiring all grade 10 students to take this AP course.

  Learn more about this on AP Central: collegeboard.org/apseminarela

Making AP Capstone Work with Your School Schedule

AP Seminar and AP Research are full-year courses enabling students to focus on college-level critical skills (AP Seminar) and college-level research skills (AP Research).

AP Seminar may be offered in a traditional schedule or an A/B block schedule. The performance task assessments usually begin toward the end of the first or the beginning of the second semester. The second performance task can't be started prior to January, when the stimulus materials for that task are published by College Board. Final student work must be uploaded to the AP Digital Portfolio by April 30, 2025, at 11:59 p.m. ET. Teachers must review final student submissions, score student presentations, and affirm authenticity in the digital portfolio by May 10, 2025, at 11:59 p.m. ET. Recommended completion dates for both performance tasks are February 28 and April 15, respectively. The assessment schedule limits the ability to offer AP Seminar on a 4x4 block schedule. AP Seminar requirements can't be completed in a fall block-scheduled course. Although the 4x4 block schedule doesn't preclude offering the AP Capstone courses, it does require schedule variations.

AP Research may be offered in a traditional schedule or an A/B block schedule. The course can also be offered in a 4x4 block schedule, though this isn't recommended. Offering AP Research on this schedule requires support and accountability measures to make sure students are supervised throughout the research process and that teachers have ample time to teach the required skills and score student presentations and oral defenses. Schools that offer AP Research in the fall semester need to design student supports to monitor student–adviser relationships and to ensure that research projects are completed on time. AP Research teachers need time to score student presentations before the deadline unless students are required to complete the research project and presentation before the end of the first semester. However, this limits the time available to students to complete the rigorous research project while completing other course requirements. Schools that offer AP Research in the spring semester should know that students have less time to complete the research project and presentation because all student work must be submitted in the AP Digital Portfolio by April 30, 2025, at 11:59 p.m. ET.

SCHOOLS OFFERING AP SEMINAR AND AP RESEARCH IN A 4X4 BLOCK SCHEDULE

Due to the design of the through-course performance tasks in AP Seminar and AP Research, it isn't ideal to offer AP Seminar and AP Research in a 4x4 block schedule. However, if your school proceeds with this type of schedule, please consider the following:

- Schedule as full-year course. AP Seminar and AP Research are both offered as full-year instructional classes spanning all semesters/trimesters/quarters/etc. Schools pursuing this schedule must ensure that the same students are enrolled in the same classes during all semesters. This would require students to pair AP Seminar or AP Research with another course.
- Schedule as fall semester course with dedicated support during spring semester. AP Seminar and AP Research are offered during the fall semester; this allows students to have dedicated independent work time and access to AP Seminar and AP Research teachers and classmates.

  Schools pursuing this option for AP Seminar should schedule dedicated instructional days during the second semester for AP Seminar students and teachers to review the following:

  - Performance Task 1. Team Multimedia Presentations, if not completed in the prior semester
  - Performance Task 2. Instructions and stimulus materials, which are released in January
  - Performance Task 2. Individual Multimedia Presentations

CONSIDERATIONS FOR DETERMINING CLASS SIZES AND COMBINING CLASSES

- Class Size Recommendations

  Although decisions about class sizes are made by individual schools, the recommended class size for AP Seminar and AP Research courses is 20–24 students, an optimal size for fostering collaboration and teaching presentation skills. School leaders scheduling AP Capstone courses should consider the responsibilities and requirements of teacher assessment scoring. For example, an AP Research teacher with 40 students will need to schedule and score 40 Presentations and Oral Defenses, each requiring 20 minutes. School leaders and teachers need to coordinate closely to ensure that there's enough time to schedule presentations and assessment scoring activities to meet the April 30, 2025, 11:59 p.m. ET deadline.

  Schools with large class sizes and/or many class sections are strongly encouraged to assign multiple AP Seminar and AP Research teachers to manage the scheduling and scoring of student presentations because the time frame of the presentations coincides with AP Exam preparation in the spring.

- Combining AP Seminar or AP Research with Another AP Class

  There are scenarios in which schools have to combine an AP Seminar class or AP Research class via an anchor AP course or a concurrent AP course. School leaders must consider additional instructional time to satisfy learning objectives in both courses. Please note: AP Seminar classes and AP Research classes can't be offered concurrently to the same students. (See the Prerequisite policy posted on AP Central for details.)

OFFERING AP CAPSTONE TO HOMESCHOOLED AND VIRTUAL SCHOOL STUDENTS

- For Students

  Homeschooled and virtual school students who wish to participate in AP Capstone have the opportunity to do so through a virtual or local brick-and-mortar school. Independent study for AP Seminar or AP Research is not permitted. Virtual and brick-and-mortar schools may have their own local deadlines and policies regarding instruction and testing; therefore, students should do the following as early as possible:

  - Use the AP Course Ledger to find a virtual or local brick-and-mortar school that offers AP Seminar or AP Research.
  - Find a school to arrange testing. The AP coordinator for a school that agrees to order and administer exams for homeschooled and virtual school students will create an exam only section in AP Registration and Ordering for that subject and add those students.
  - AP Seminar students are required to participate in a team project and must ensure they are assigned to work with team members.
  - Students must enroll in both an exam only section and a teacher-led class section in order to have access to resources assigned by the teacher for the class section as well as for teachers to submit presentation scores for students in the AP Digital Portfolio.

Note: AP Research doesn't have an end-of-course exam, but an exam must be ordered for a student in order for their performance task to be scored.

- For Accredited Virtual School Providers

  Some best practices for offering AP Seminar or AP Research in a virtual setting include:

  - Scheduling classes in a synchronous format
  - Providing opportunities for students to collaborate outside of classroom hours through online platforms (e.g., Zoom, Google Meet)
  - Grouping AP Seminar students for Performance Task 1 based on their scheduling availability

More information about special ordering circumstances can be found on AP Central and in Part 1 of the AP Coordinator's Manual.

Positioning AP Capstone Courses in Your Master Schedule

The flexibility of AP Capstone allows program implementation in a variety of settings and in academic disciplines of choice. Because AP Seminar and AP Research are both skills based, the courses can be associated with any academic content area. Schools may position the courses as required core classes or as electives as long as they abide by any applicable state and district policies. Schools should also confirm that course designations of AP Seminar and AP Research align with entry requirements of higher education destinations for their students.

The following table lists implementation models, along with the pros and cons associated with each. These options help meet the demands of the school curriculum, state and district requirements, and local school traditions and culture.

SCHEDULE VARIATION TYPE	EXAMPLE	PROS	CONS
Core course, English	AP Seminar is offered as an English course, satisfying both a core credit and/or a fourth year of English for graduation requirement.	▪ Gives more students the opportunity to access AP Seminar. Allows teachers the flexibility to integrate state standards.	▪ Requires additional funding to train and support English teachers.
Gradewide implementation	AP Seminar is offered as a required course for all students in grade 10.	▪ Gives students a chance to develop critical research skills that can apply across all disciplines and transfer to other courses.	▪ Requires additional funding to train and support teachers.
AP course anchor	All AP Capstone students are enrolled in a common AP course known as an anchor course. For example, all AP Seminar students are enrolled in AP U.S. History or all AP Research students are enrolled in AP Biology.	▪ Permits interdisciplinary instruction that supports student mastery of AP Capstone skills and enhances performance in the AP anchor course. ▪ Gives students a chance to apply AP Capstone skills in an AP content area. ▪ Fosters collaboration between teachers in different content areas.	▪ Presents master schedule complications in scheduling students for 2 courses and in scheduling common planning time for teachers to develop instructional strategies and lesson plans. ▪ Increases program costs because the AP content teacher should be trained in AP Seminar and/or AP Research curriculum and assessment.

Concurrent enrollment in an AP course	AP Capstone courses are integrated with AP courses. For example, AP Seminar and AP United States Government and Politics are taught concurrently, or AP Research and AP Chemistry are taught concurrently.	▪ Provides students with an immediate opportunity to apply rigorous college-level critical skills to rigorous college-level content.	▪ Requires 1 teacher to balance the demands of 2 AP courses in 1 course.
Distinct, tailored sections or academy setting	AP Capstone courses are offered in multiple sections tailored to emphasize a specific area of interest or in the context of an existing school program. For example, AP Seminar or AP Research or both are offered as both a science and a social science course or as part of a public service or health sciences academy.	▪ Allows students to focus on a particular area of interest while acquiring a broad perspective on real-world issues. ▪ Enhances an existing content curriculum or academy curriculum in preparation for specialized higher education.	▪ Limits the opportunity for students to explore topics and perspectives outside of their interest areas. ▪ Limits the interest of students who may not fall within specific departmental or academy requirements.
Non-AP course anchor	AP Capstone courses are integrated with existing non-AP courses. For example, AP Seminar and an art history elective are taught concurrently, or AP Research and a statistics elective are taught concurrently.	▪ Provides an instructional framework for the existing course. ▪ Provides students with the opportunity to learn specific academic content, along with the skills taught in AP Seminar and AP Research. ▪ Fosters collaboration between teachers in different content areas.	▪ Creates tension between the original curriculum and the requirements of AP Seminar and AP Research. ▪ Limits students' ability to explore issues that speak to their personal interests.

SCHEDULE VARIATION TYPE	EXAMPLE	PROS	CONS
Independent, interdisciplinary elective	AP Capstone courses are offered as independent electives. (Note: AP Seminar is a prerequisite to AP Research. AP Research can't be offered independently.)	▪ Provides students with college-level critical skills that can be applied across disciplines. ▪ Benefits those students who show potential for AP coursework but haven't yet enrolled in AP courses.	▪ Elective designation may limit opportunities for students to complete both AP Seminar and AP Research.

Adding AP Capstone to Student Transcripts

Schools may choose to add a subtitle to their AP Seminar or AP Research courses (e.g., AP Seminar: [Subtitle]) that indicates a special disciplinary focus or emphasis as long as it complies with local, district, and/or state/country policies.

INCORPORATING AP SEMINAR AS AN ENGLISH COURSE

Many schools offer AP Seminar as an English course due to a growing number of states granting AP Seminar as a state graduation requirement for English.

Schools adopting this implementation model can add a specific designation to students' transcripts. For instance, 10th-grade students who take AP Seminar as their English course can have the designation "English 10: AP Seminar" on their transcript. Similarly, for 11th grade, the course can have the designation "English 11: AP Seminar."

Addressing the AP Capstone Diploma Requirements

To earn the AP Capstone Diploma, students must earn a score of 3 or higher in both AP Seminar and AP Research as well as a score of 3 or higher on 4 additional AP Exams of their choosing. The exams may be taken at any time during high school and need not be concurrent with the AP Seminar and the AP Research courses. No specific AP courses, other than AP Seminar and AP Research, are required for the AP Capstone Diploma.

Accessing AP Capstone Awards

Students who earn the AP Capstone Diploma or AP Seminar and Research Certificate can view and print their diploma or certificate online through their AP score report in July. The award is also acknowledged on any AP score report that's sent to colleges after the award has been conferred.

Administrators can access this information through their AP educator score reports at AP Score Reports for Educators.

Staffing AP Capstone Courses

The selection of AP Seminar and AP Research teachers is critical to the success of the AP Capstone program. The most effective AP Capstone teachers are those who are curious about real-world issues, are competent in teaching a skill-based rather than a content-based course, and are master facilitators of student learning, allowing students to take charge of their own learning. Teachers who have experience conducting and/or supervising independent research may be considered as well.

AP Seminar and AP Research teachers aren't required to have specific content-area certification unless this is stipulated by local, district, or state/country policy.

All AP Seminar and AP Research teachers are required to attend an AP Capstone Summer Institute before their first academic year teaching the respective course.

Note: Administrators should be aware of the amount of time needed for scoring student work when assigning teachers to multiple sections of AP Seminar and/or AP Research. Although AP Seminar teachers may also teach AP Research, administrators should ensure that they're properly supported, especially in the spring when student work and teachers' scores are submitted.

The most successful AP Seminar and AP Research teachers demonstrate the ability to:

- Explore academic and real-world questions, problems, and issues from different disciplines and from multiple perspectives.
- Teach college-level thinking and research skills such as writing a thesis, conducting research, evaluating sources, developing arguments, and designing, planning, and conducting a research-based investigation.
- Teach time management, collaboration, oral communication, and presentation skills.
- Facilitate student learning in collaborative settings such as workshops and tutorials.
- Motivate students to think critically and innovatively about research questions.
- Collaborate closely with an AP Capstone team that includes administrators, AP teachers, media specialists, school counselors, and expert advisers.
- Manage scoring and submit student work according to submission deadlines.
- Modify instruction style in order to accommodate through-course performance tasks and skills-based learning outcomes.

Prior experience teaching AP or other college-equivalent courses taught in their high school isn't required.

SCENARIO	PROS	CONS
Different teachers are assigned to AP Seminar and AP Research courses.	▪ Teachers are able to specialize in the skills required for success in each course. ▪ Students are exposed to 2 teachers with different strengths that support a diverse learning experience.	▪ Teachers must coordinate a transition from AP Seminar to AP Research to take advantage of the weeks after the AP Seminar assessments are complete. ▪ Teachers must establish and maintain expectations across 2 courses through collaborative planning.
Teachers loop with a cohort of students from AP Seminar to AP Research.	▪ Teachers establish a relationship with students in a 2-year experience that fully develops student strengths and bridges student weaknesses. ▪ Teachers are able to build a seamless transition from AP Seminar to AP Research by maximizing use of available instructional time.	▪ Schools incur a training cost increase because they must send 2 teachers to the required AP Seminar and AP Research summer institute. ▪ Teachers need expertise and a level of comfort in college-level skill development and college-level research methodology.
Two teachers are assigned to AP Seminar or AP Research in a team-teaching structure.	▪ Teachers from 2 different disciplines support a variety of student interests. ▪ Teachers share responsibility for scoring assignments.	▪ Training costs increase because schools must send 2 teachers to the required AP Seminar or AP Research summer institute. ▪ FTE or local district requirements may limit shared responsibility for 1 course.

Getting Others Involved

School leaders should consider convening an AP Capstone team of faculty members to support the implementation of this new diploma program. Regular team meeting agenda items might include management of program implementation, student and teacher support issues, student recruitment, communication with parents and the community, and planning for vertical and horizontal articulation of AP Capstone skills. School or district leaders might also consider appointing a point person for AP Capstone to chair team meetings, ensure effective internal and external communication, and serve as program liaison to College Board. It's suggested that this point person be the school principal, AP coordinator, or AP Capstone teacher, who will receive important messaging from College Board on key updates and deadlines.

Additional AP Capstone team roles and responsibilities include the following:

SCHOOL LEADERS

- Form the AP Capstone team and collaborate with faculty and staff to develop an AP Capstone implementation strategy.
- Create a master schedule that supports broad student enrollment and effective instruction.
- Ensure that teachers have time to complete online scoring training and score student presentations.
- Be sure that teachers and students have access to required high-speed internet and technology appropriate to conduct research, complete multimedia presentations, and submit team and individual projects.
- Fund required AP Capstone Summer Institute and ensure release time for teachers to complete online scoring training.
- Support AP Capstone implementation in communications with students, faculty, parents, and the community.
- Read all communications from College Board about updates to the AP Capstone program.

TEACHERS

- Attend required AP Capstone Summer Institute for AP Seminar and/or AP Research.
- Facilitate student learning.
- Score student presentations and ensure timely upload of student work to College Board.
- Initiate relationships with colleagues or leaders from community organizations, getting them involved in the AP Capstone Diploma program as guest lecturers or expert advisers.
- Manage student–adviser relationships.
- Assist school leadership in the vertical and horizontal expansion of AP Capstone skills.

LIBRARIANS/MEDIA SPECIALISTS

- Ensure that students have access to college-level research materials, including online tools such as EBSCO, JSTOR, and ProQuest. Access to EBSCO Academic Search Complete is provided to AP Seminar and AP Research teachers and students at AP Capstone schools.
- Assist students in identifying and researching a variety of questions across multiple disciplines.
- Contribute to workshops and tutorials that address specific research issues.
- Work with teachers to conduct relevant lessons on research practices.

COUNSELORS

- Familiarize themselves with AP Capstone so they can share highlights of the program with parents and visiting college admissions representatives.
- Assist in identifying students for participation in AP Capstone.
- Help students communicate AP Capstone accomplishments to colleges and universities.
- Ensure that student course selections meet AP Capstone Diploma and/or AP Seminar and Research Certificate requirements.

Expert Advisers for AP Research

Expert advisers are an essential part of the AP Research course and may be drawn from the faculty, the community, local business and industry, or higher education. A designated staff member may also coordinate a pool of advisers for the AP Research course and match students with advisers. AP Research teachers and school administrators identify school and district policies that pertain to students who are engaging virtually or face-to-face with external advisers, and they communicate such policies to parents, students, and potential advisers. See the Role of Expert Advisers in the Academic Paper section of the AP Research Course and Exam Description.

Recognition from Higher Education

ADMISSIONS BENEFITS

AP Capstone Diploma candidates enjoy a variety of admissions benefits from colleges and universities before, during, and after application cycles. Various benefits include invitations to meet with research faculty, direct admission into honors programs, and opportunities to join undergraduate research projects.

To facilitate admissions recognition, school leaders and students should indicate participation in the AP Capstone Diploma program in the following ways:

- School reports to higher education. School leaders include their school's participation in the AP Capstone Diploma program, along with the number of AP Capstone Diploma awards.
- Counselor recommendations. Counselors identify students as AP Capstone Diploma candidates on recommendation forms, including third-party applications such as the Common Application and the Coalition Application.
- Teacher recommendations. AP Seminar and AP Research teachers highlight student research projects.
- Individual honors. Students designate themselves as AP Capstone Diploma candidates, AP Capstone Diploma recipients, or AP Seminar and Research Certificate recipients in the awards/honors sections of their applications.
- Including courses on transcripts. Students and schools indicate AP Seminar and AP Research on high school course transcripts.
- Admissions interviews and essays. Students discuss their AP Seminar or AP Research work during admissions interviews and in their admissions essays, where appropriate.
- Sending AP Seminar and AP Research scores. Students send AP Seminar and AP Research scores to their preferred higher education institutions.

Note: AP Capstone Diploma candidates are defined as students who have earned a score of 3 or higher in AP Seminar, are enrolled or plan to be enrolled in AP Research, and are also likely to earn a 3 or higher on 4 additional AP Exams, as determined by school administrators.

CREDIT AND PLACEMENT BENEFITS

Several colleges and universities award credit for the successful completion of AP Seminar and AP Research. College Board currently provides information that colleges, universities, and state systems need to make sound, data-driven policy decisions regarding recognition of success in AP Capstone courses.

Visit collegeboard.org/apcapstonehedsupport to see a list of colleges and universities that endorse the AP Capstone program and to use the AP Credit Policy Search to find specific credit and placement policies.

For Teachers

AP Capstone AP Course Audit Steps

Following the required summer training, new AP Seminar and AP Research teachers are equipped to prepare a course syllabus. The following activities must be completed within their AP Course Audit account:

- Teacher—Complete the course audit form
- Teacher—Submit course syllabus
- AP Course Audit Administrator—Review and approve the course audit form

Schools don't need to specify their implementation approach in the AP Course Audit, though teachers can specify it in the AP Digital Portfolio. There's a variety of implementation approaches for AP Seminar and AP Research, though students complete the same AP Seminar and AP Research Exam.

New teachers can access AP Classroom and the AP Digital Portfolio after their course audit form has been approved.

Some countries, states, and districts may have earlier submission deadlines. Teachers are encouraged to check with school administrators to determine if they should submit syllabi to other authorizing systems before the deadline.

AP Seminar and AP Research teachers must develop and submit a syllabus of their own creation and can't submit the sample syllabus provided during training.

All new 2024-25 AP Capstone teachers must complete a course audit form and submit a syllabus for review.

All previously authorized courses can be renewed by a school administrator beginning March 1, 2024.

Teacher Roles During the AP Capstone Performance Tasks

We recommend that all AP Capstone teachers be transparent with students about their roles and what any individual providing guidance to students should and shouldn't do. As a reminder, students shouldn't receive specific, directive feedback on their performance tasks.

For more information about the roles of AP Capstone teachers, see the AP Seminar Course and Exam Description and the AP Research Course and Exam Description.

Submitting Student Work Using the AP Digital Portfolio

Students taking AP Seminar and AP Research must use the AP Digital Portfolio at digitalportfolio.collegeboard.org to submit performance tasks as final by the April 30, 2025, 11:59 p.m. ET submission deadline.

Each school's AP Capstone teachers, students, and AP coordinator interact with the digital portfolio throughout the school year. The following diagram illustrates the roles and major tasks in the process.

Digital Submission for AP Capstone

Completed in My AP ■ Completed in the AP Digital Portfolio

1. AP coordinator or AP teacher signs in to myap.collegeboard.org at the start of the school year and creates AP Seminar and AP Research class sections. If applicable, the AP coordinator notifies teachers when class sections have been created.
2. Teachers sign in to myap.collegeboard.org and get the join code for each class section they teach to distribute to students during class.
3. Students sign in to myap.collegeboard.org with College Board login information and enroll in an AP Seminar or AP Research class section using the join code provided by their teacher or AP coordinator. If instructed to do so by the AP coordinator, students also indicate their exam registration in My AP.
4. AP coordinator submits the exam order for all students included in the exam roster in AP Registration and Ordering.
5. Teacher creates AP Seminar student teams for team assignments.
6. Teacher distributes College Board–provided source material to AP Seminar students.
7. Students submit written performance tasks as final in the AP Digital Portfolio no later than April 30, 2025, at 11:59 p.m. ET or an earlier deadline set by their teacher.
8. Teacher submits scores for student presentations and completes affirmations for required checkpoints in the AP Digital Portfolio by May 10, 2025, at 11:59 p.m. ET.
9. AP coordinator verifies that all students have submitted their written performance task components as final in the AP Digital Portfolio by April 30, 2025, at 11:59 p.m. ET and that teachers have submitted scores for student presentations and completed affirmations in the digital portfolio by May 10, 2025, at 11:59 p.m. ET.
10. Performance tasks and scores for all students that the AP coordinator has ordered an exam for will be automatically submitted to the AP Program at the deadline.

TECHNICAL REQUIREMENTS AND RECOMMENDATIONS FOR THE AP DIGITAL PORTFOLIO

- Use a computer, tablet, or mobile device that supports the latest versions of Chrome (preferred), Safari (preferred), Firefox, or Edge, and is connected to the internet.
- The scoring feature isn't available on mobile devices.

For more information about the digital portfolio, see the AP Digital Portfolio: Teacher User Guide and the AP Digital Portfolio: Student User Guide.

Due Dates for AP Seminar and AP Research Performance Tasks

The deadline for all student work to be submitted to the AP Digital Portfolio is April 30, 2025, at 11:59 p.m. ET. Teachers must review final student submissions, score student presentations, and affirm authenticity in the digital portfolio by May 10, 2025, at 11:59 p.m. ET. Although the AP Program recommends interim deadlines for each component of the performance tasks, teachers may choose to set their own interim deadlines, which will be determined by their school calendars and schedules.

AP Seminar End-of-Course Exam Date

The 2025 exam date for the AP Seminar End-of-Course Exam is Monday, May 12, 2025, at 12 p.m. local time. See the complete 2025 AP Exam schedule.

For detailed information about ordering exams for late testing, see Part 1 of the AP Coordinator's Manual.

Getting Involved with the AP Reading

College Board encourages AP Seminar and AP Research teachers to apply to become AP readers. By participating in the AP Reading, teachers ensure that AP Exams continue to measure a student's ability to master college-level work. Ninety-eight percent of high school AP teachers and college faculty who have participated in more than one AP Reading say that their participation has had a positive impact on their teaching.

AP readers for AP Capstone courses can take advantage of flexible scheduling options, opportunities for professional learning hours, and continuing education credits (CEUs), as well as compensation.

For more information and to apply, visit collegeboard.org/readap.

For AP Coordinators

The AP Capstone section of Part 2 of the AP Coordinator's Manual is the primary source of information for AP coordinators at schools offering AP Seminar or AP Research. Download the manual, and review the AP Capstone page for AP coordinators at collegeboard.org/apcapstonecoordinator.

Role of the AP Coordinator in AP Capstone

AP coordinators:

- Create class sections in AP Registration and Ordering for their school's AP classes (if teachers haven't already created their own class sections);
- Manage the ordering, receipt, distribution, administration, and return of AP Seminar End-of-Course Exam materials;
- Order AP Research Exams;
- Validate that uploaded student work is submitted as final by the April 30, 2025, (11:59 p.m. ET) submission deadline; and
- Validate that teachers have submitted scores for student presentations and completed affirmations for required checkpoints in the AP Digital Portfolio by May 10, 2025, at 11:59 p.m. ET.

Important: AP Research doesn't have an end-of-course exam, but an exam must be ordered online through AP Registration and Ordering for a student in order for their performance task to be scored by the AP Program.

AP coordinators don't have to manually submit work to the AP Program through the AP Digital Portfolio for it to be scored at the AP Reading. All performance tasks that have been submitted as final by a student, and any teacher scores and affirmations associated with those performance tasks, will automatically be sent to the AP Program for scoring after the deadline as long as an exam was ordered for them.

Note: When students provide their registration information in My AP when first enrolling in a class section, they'll be assigned a unique, alphanumeric AP ID. This AP ID will automatically be added to the digital portfolio.

Accessing the AP Digital Portfolio

After signing in to digitalportfolio.collegeboard.org with their College Board login information, AP coordinators will see all of the AP Capstone class sections that were created in myap.collegeboard.org and all students enrolled in each section. A legend at the top of the page helps AP coordinators determine each student's progress toward final submission of their work and whether their presentations have been scored by their teacher.

Checking for Missing Data in the AP Digital Portfolio

AP coordinators should view the status of their AP Seminar and AP Research students' submissions and work with the teacher(s) to resolve:

- Missing student final submissions (before April 30, 2025, at 11:59 p.m. ET).
- Missing teacher scores on presentations (before May 10, 2025, at 11:59 p.m. ET).

Executive Summary

The overarching purpose behind this evaluation was to gauge the impact of AP® professional development (PD) on AP student outcomes in a state with a significant rate of PD implementation. The evaluation attempted to predict the level of student AP performance by the number of AP professional development events attended by teachers in that school in the prior year, while controlling for some socioeconomic status (SES), teacher, and school effects. The outcomes predicted by the number of PD events attended were defined as the average AP score obtained for that school as well as the percentage of AP Exam takers scoring 3 or above. A similar analysis was also performed for AP courses comprising the STEM disciplines (Biology, Chemistry, Computer Science, Environmental Science, Calculus AB, Calculus BC, Physics B, Physics C: Mechanics, Physics C: Electricity and Magnetism, and Statistics). The controlling factors (covariates) used in the analyses were average household income (a proxy for SES), the percentage of students taking AP in the school (school effect), and the average number of years teaching AP (teacher effect).

The results were as follows:

- After controlling for average household income (SES), level of AP activity, and teacher experience, schools with higher levels of teachers participating in AP PD were more likely to have higher levels of overall average AP performance (average exam score and average percentage of exams with scores of 3 or above) the following year.
- In addition to the number of PD events attended, teacher experience was also a statistically significant predictor of subsequent overall AP performance.
- For STEM-related AP Exams only, the level of AP PD attended by teachers in the school was also a statistically significant predictor of subsequent AP performance. Teacher experience was also significant and more predictive for AP STEM course performance than overall AP performance (reported in the previous bullet).

Given some data access restrictions that did not allow for teachers to be directly linked to their students, drawing direct causal inferences between AP PD and positive student outcomes is not warranted. In addition, there was no information collected regarding implementation of skills learned from the PD. However, the results do point to the potential unique contribution that a school's level of AP PD activity may have on subsequent student success on AP Exams while accounting for a set of school environmental factors.

Introduction

The continuing education of teachers has long been considered a cornerstone to improving our education system (Borko & Putnam, 1995; Darling-Hammond, 1993). Although the field of PD is varied in terms of approach and apparent outcomes, Desimone (2009) has identified a set of well-accepted characteristics of professional development (content focus, active learning, coherence, duration, and collective participation) that serve as a foundation for these efforts. Although there is some value placed on the direct impact of PD on teachers in the areas of job satisfaction, increased content, or pedagogical knowledge, students should ultimately be the beneficiaries of this training. However, this indirect effect of PD on student outcomes raises significant challenges for measuring any potential impact of the PD program. If PD is to affect student outcomes, success is contingent upon the acquisition of skills and strategies by the teacher. Once teachers possess these skills, they must implement them effectively in the classroom. In addition, although it seems plausible to expect some indirect impact of a teacher's newly acquired skills on students, it is equally important to note the complexity of the system with which student learning takes place. Educators do not teach and students do not learn in a vacuum; they are part of a complex dynamic of social, financial, and educational factors. In assessing the efficacy of any program, it is important to acknowledge this complexity.

The relative level of PD engagement within a school or some amount of collective participation has been shown to have positive effects by promoting an atmosphere of shared understanding among colleagues regarding goals, methods, problems, and solutions (Ball, 1996). In addition, research has clearly demonstrated that PD should be a sustained effort as opposed to a singular event in order to be effective (Guskey & Yoon, 2009). This finding highlights the importance of a school or district engaging in and maintaining an active program of PD. There is also evidence that the benefits of PD are not necessarily apparent immediately and that there is often a lag from the time PD is delivered to an effective manifestation of that PD in the classroom (Guskey, 2000). Evaluations need to take this potential latency into account when planning impact studies so the effects on students have adequate time to manifest themselves. It also points to the importance of evaluation studies to follow up on outcomes initially and then continue over an extended period of time.

The current study investigated the relationship of a school's level of AP PD activity on subsequent student performance on the AP Exam while controlling for teacher, school, and SES effects. In an effort to account for factors outside of AP PD participation that might influence student AP performance, the analyses included proxies for these effects such as years of experience (teacher), level of AP activity (school), and average household income (SES). Teacher experience was defined as the mean number of years teaching AP. Research has demonstrated that more years of teaching experience can have a positive impact on student performance though these results tend to be mixed (Wenglinsky, 2002; Rice, 2010). A majority of the positive effects are generally seen when comparing new teachers to those who have several years of experience. The benefit of experience does not increase at the same rate that experience increases (Rice, 2010; Goe, 2007; Wenglinsky, 2002). For example, the effect of experience when comparing a new teacher to a teacher with five years' experience is more pronounced than when comparing a teacher with 20 years' experience to another with 25. The relationship between SES and educational outcomes has been a pervasive topic for several decades since it was highlighted in the work of Coleman (1966). For the purposes of this study, a proxy for SES (average household income) was used. Average household income was taken from the National Center for Education Statistics (NCES) database and provides some information on the economic standing of the students in the school.

The current study examined the relationship between the level of AP PD activity undertaken in a school and the subsequent utility of that PD in predicting student outcomes while accounting for student, teacher, and school effects. More specifically, the current study examines the level of AP PD activity and subsequent AP performance both in terms of average grade and percentage of students scoring a 3 or above (which is often used as an indicator of success). The analyses focused on AP outcomes for all subject areas as well as those only related to STEM courses.

Following an overview of the AP professional development program, this report will describe the methodology used to examine these outcomes. Two sets of analyses will be reported. The first will simply examine the differences in student outcomes given the level of school engagement in AP PD. The second analysis will also utilize the level of school AP PD activity and incorporate other potentially mediating school, teacher, and student effects into a prediction model of subsequent student AP performance. The report will conclude with a discussion of the study's broader implications and limitations.

AP Professional Development

In order to reach a large constituency and provide a variety of PD offerings, the AP Program enlists the support of a large network of educators to conduct a wide array of workshops and institutes. AP workshops are led by an accomplished member of the AP community and/or a College Board–endorsed consultant. The workshops typically guide participants through the skills students must master in the AP classroom and the most innovative teaching practices to help engage students. These PD events often concentrate on specific subject-area topics and offer curricular assistance for new, intermediate, and experienced AP teachers.

Some recent research has supported the notion that this AP PD is perceived by teachers as an effective factor in their teaching and that this perception is maintained after implementing the newly obtained strategies in their own classrooms (Godfrey, 2009; Laitusis & Barry, in press). Although the positive perceptions of teachers are valuable, evidence relating to the efficacy of this PD on student performance is also of ultimate concern. Bausmith and Laitusis (in press) investigated the impact of the AP Achievement Institute I (APAI I) on subsequent student AP performance. The study matched a set of students to their participating teachers before their engagement in PD and then matched a subsequent cohort of students to these same teachers after the PD. The results indicated that although the teacher classrooms had become more diverse and represented lower levels of student prior achievement (as indicated by state assessment data), student performance outcomes on AP were maintained from the prior year (Bausmith & Laitusis, in press). Although these results seem promising and student prior achievement was taken into account, other factors such as school and teacher effects that may influence outcomes were not incorporated. The current study attempts to address the greater level of complexity inherent in an educational setting by incorporating school, teacher, and students effects into a PD model predicting student AP success.

Method

The study utilized the AP PD activity of a set of teachers in a Midwestern state for the 12-month period leading up to an academic year. Then the AP data from the students who attended the schools where these teachers taught were matched using data from the following spring administration. The original sample used for analysis consisted of 309 schools with AP Exam data. In order to increase the stability of any statistical analysis, only schools with at least five or more test-takers were retained. This resulted in a reduced sample of 247 schools (i.e., 80%). Due to the reliance on background data obtained from additional extant databases (NCES), there were several additional schools that were removed from the regression analysis, resulting in a data set with 197 schools. Since the purpose of the second analysis was to investigate the relationship between the level of AP PD and student AP outcomes, only schools that had PD participation information in the database were retained for the regression analysis, which further reduced the sample to 136 schools.

The number of AP PD events was aggregated from an internal database of teachers who had registered for College Board–sponsored AP PD offerings during a 12-month time period leading up to the school year. If a school did not show any record of teachers attending AP PD during the experimental window, they were assumed to have not participated in PD. It is unknown whether any of the teachers in these schools also participated in other forms of PD or attended AP PD that was not recorded in the database. The PD events represented a fairly broad range of topics and ranged in duration from one to five days. The unit of analysis representing AP PD activity for this study was the number of AP PD events attributed to a school in a particular 12-month period leading up to an administration year. Outcome data (student AP scores) were then obtained for this subsequent administration year. For example, the level of school AP PD activity from September 2004 through August 2005 was used to predict student AP performance in the spring of 2006 administration. Since matched teacher–student data could not be obtained, the unit of analysis was at the school level so all teacher PD participation and student performance were aggregated up to the school level.

In addition to examining the relationship between the level of AP PD and overall AP performance, the study also examined student performance on a subset of the exams relating to the STEM disciplines (Biology, Chemistry, Computer Science, Environmental Science, Calculus AB, Physics B, Physics C: Electricity and Magnetism, Physics C: Mechanics, and Statistics).

Two sets of analyses were undertaken to examine the relationship of AP PD activity and student performance on AP. First, two one-way analyses of variance (ANOVAs) were undertaken to examine whether student AP performance measured as mean AP Exam score and percentage of exams with a score of 3 or above was statistically significantly different across three levels of teacher activity in AP PD. Second, to control for other variables that have been shown to be related to student performance, a regression analysis was used to examine the relationship of AP PD activity on student AP performance when teacher experience, SES levels, and school AP activity were controlled. AP activity was an indicator of the relative size of the AP program at the school and was computed as the percentage of students at the school taking at least one AP Exam. The unit of analysis for all indicators was at the school level.

Results

Although the schools with no AP PD data for the year in question were not retained for the regression (second) analysis, it was still of interest to understand the characteristics of this group of teachers and how they compared to the sample used in the study. In order to accomplish this, a one-way ANOVA was performed comparing three groups of schools: (1) schools with no known AP PD activity, (2) schools with low AP PD activity, and (3) schools with higher AP PD activity. A second ANOVA was conducted using the percentage of AP Exam scores at or above a score of 3 as the performance outcome. The categories representing the level of AP PD activity were determined by taking a median split of the PD activity variable, which turned out to be 3 or fewer events for low and more than 3 for high activity. Student performance in terms of mean exam score as well as mean percentage scoring 3 or above are displayed in Table 1 for each of these groups.

The results of the analyses indicated a statistically significant effect between groups for AP Exam (all exams) score, $F(2,194) = 16.82$, $p < .01$ indicating a statistically significant difference with respect to student performance across the different categories of previous school AP PD activity. An examination of the effect size of $\eta^2 = .15$ indicates that this effect is in the moderate range (Cohen, 1988). A set of post-hoc analyses using the Scheffe procedure indicated that significant differences were noted between the "high" PD category and both of the other two categories ("none" and "low"). Therefore, there were no significant differences with respect to AP scores between the "no activity" and "low activity" schools the following year. Only schools with a higher level of PD activity statistically differentiated themselves with respect to mean AP score the following year.

Similar to the findings for mean AP score, there was also a statistically significant difference between groups for student performance represented by the percentage of exams with scores of 3 or above across levels of AP PD, $F(2,194) = 15.89$, $p < .01$, $\eta^2 = .15$ indicating a significant difference with respect to student performance based on previous school AP PD activity. A set of post-hoc analyses using the Scheffe procedure indicated the same pattern of results presented for mean AP Exam score. Only schools with a higher level of PD activity statistically differentiated themselves with respect to the percentage of exams with AP Exam scores of 3 or higher.

A similar set of analyses were also performed on student AP outcomes for STEM-related courses. In these analyses only schools with five or more AP students and scores on at least five or more STEM exams were retained. The descriptive results are summarized in Table 2.

Similar to the results presented for all exams, there appears to be higher AP STEM exam performance as number of AP PD events increases for the school in the prior year. The between groups difference for STEM performance by mean score and mean percent scoring 3 or above were both statistically significant $F(2,121) = 9.65$, $p <= .01$, $\eta^2 = .14$ and $F(2,121) = 11.48$, $p <= .01$, $\eta^2 = .16$, respectively. A post-hoc analysis indicated the same pattern reported previously for all exams; statistically significant differences were seen only between the group representing the high number of PD events and the other two categories ("none" and "low") and no significant difference between the "none" and "low" PD activity groups.

The results presented so far seem to suggest an association between a highly active professional development environment and positive student performance outcomes. However, the results presented thus far only show the relation between teacher-activity levels in AP PD and student AP performance outcomes in isolation without accounting for the complexity of the educational environment that may also influence student exam performance. The dynamics inherent in any education system are varied and complex. In an attempt to address at least some aspect of this complexity, another set of analyses was performed to examine the role of AP PD in this system by accounting for some of the variables that have been shown to relate to student performance. The variables that were used in these analyses include (a) teacher experience (number of years teaching AP-level course work), SES (average household income), and school (level of AP activity) factors.

Before the regression models were run, each of the variables was checked to see if it satisfied the statistical assumptions underlying this form of analysis. Checks for normality, multicollinearity, and both univariate and multivariate outliers were performed for each independent variable (years teaching AP, household income, AP activity, and number of AP PD events) in the model. The results of these checks revealed moderate levels of skewness for all of the variables with the exception of household income. In order to correct for this lack of normality, a log-base-10 transformation was performed on each of the skewed independent variables.

A sequential regression analysis was undertaken in two steps. Teacher experience, parental income, and school AP activities were entered first. This was done to control for the effect of these variables on student AP performance. The next step in the model added an additional predictor (AP PD events) to the previous three. AP PD events was our independent variable of greatest interest in that we wanted to see if this variable could explain any student performance above and beyond that explained by the background (teacher, SES, and AP activity) variables. Therefore, any differences in the model between step 1 and step 2 were said to represent the influence of AP PD events above and beyond that of the background variables.

Of initial interest was whether the model tested was statistically significant. Table 3 presents the results of the regression model. The significance test for the first two steps of the model were both significant, with $F(3,131) = 3.87$, $p <= .01$ and $F(4,130) = 8.96$, $p <= .01$ for steps 1 and 2, respectively. Also of note was how much of the variance attributed to the dependent measure could be explained by the predictors. A measure of this is obtained in the multiple correlation coefficient (R^2). In this example the adjusted R^2 was reported, because it is generally regarded as a more conservative estimate as it takes into consideration the number of predictors and the sample size, which may artificially inflate the multiple correlation statistic. The initial step with background variables only produced an $R^2 = .06$, indicating that 6% of the variance of student AP mean score was accounted for by these variables. With the addition of the number of AP PD events the R^2 increased to .19, causing a change in R^2 of .13. All of these R^2 values including the change in R^2 were significant at the $p <= 0.01$ level of significance. This indicates that the number of AP PD events attended in the prior year significantly adds to the prediction of subsequent AP performance above and beyond the teacher, SES, and school effects used in this study.

While discussion so far has focused on the model as a whole, also of note is the relative importance or role each of the independent variables has in predicting student outcomes. Table 3 provides a summary of these predictors and their relative contribution for explaining student mean performance for all AP subject areas. Because of the different scales associated with each of the predictor variables, standardized regression coefficients were evaluated (β in Table 3). Each β is displayed with its corresponding level of statistical significance. An inspection of this table indicates that two variables — "experience" and number of "AP PD events" — make statistically significant contributions to the explanation of student performance on the AP Exam in the subsequent year. The β for experience and AP PD of .22 and .42, respectively, also shed light on the relative importance of each of these predictors in the model. Although experience is a statistically significant factor, the level of AP PD in a school had a greater level of association with subsequent mean AP score while accounting for the previously mentioned teacher, SES, and school background effects in the model.

A second regression analysis was performed for student performance on AP Exams only in the STEM disciplines (Biology, Chemistry, Computer Science, Environmental Science, Calculus AB, Calculus BC, Physics B, Physics C: Electricity and Magnetism, Physics C: Mechanics, and Statistics). For these analyses all predictors and AP PD participation variables were the same as before. The only modification to the previous model presented was with respect to the outcome measures (performance on all AP Exams was replaced by performance on only STEM exams).

The STEM model was initially tested for overall statistical significance. The significance tests for the first two steps of the model indicated that both were statistically significant, with $F(3,90) = 6.52$, $p <= .01$ and $F(4,89) = 11.22$, $p <= .01$ for steps 1 and 2, respectively. The initial step of the model, which included only the background variables (household income, AP activity, and teacher experience), resulted in an adjusted $R^2 = .15$. This indicated that 15% of the variance of student scores on AP STEM exams was accounted for by these background variables. With the addition of the number of AP PD events, the R^2 increased to .31, causing a change in R^2 of .16. All of these R^2 values, including the change in R^2, were significant at the $p <= .01$ level.

Each β was also tested for its level of statistical significance. Table 4 provides a summary of these predictors and their relative contribution to explaining student mean performance on AP STEM exams.

Table 4.

Summary of Regression Parameters Predicting AP Exam Performance for STEM Exams

	Experience	1.12	0.29	0.33	3.83	0.00
	AP PD Events	0.67	0.15	0.44	4.58	0.00

An inspection of this table indicates that the variables "experience" and "AP PD events" significantly contribute to an explanation of student performance on AP STEM exams in the subsequent year. The β for experience and AP PD of .33 and .44, respectively, are similar to the findings reported for all exams in that both were significant and AP PD had the greater weight. The main difference in this model is the increased importance of teacher experience in the model.

The regression results reported here using the mean grade for all exams and the mean grade for STEM exams as dependent variables were also replicated using the percentage of students scoring 3 or above and are reported in Appendixes A and B. The results for the percentage scoring 3 or above for both the "all exams" and "only STEM" models were consistent with those reported just for mean grade.

Conclusions

The results of this study provide some incremental evidence that a school culture that includes a significant engagement in professional development activities is associated with higher student performance. The model that was tested indicated that a school's level of AP PD activity can predict student outcomes above teacher experience and other factors, such as household income and a simple level of AP activity (percentage of students taking AP in the school). The influence of experience also seemed to play a significant role, and the effects seemed to increase in the STEM-related exams. However, the level of PD activity was still the most significant contributor. Given the unit of analysis and the inability to directly attribute student test scores to specific teachers, it is difficult to say for certain that the specific PD events were the cause, or whether the outcomes were unduly influenced by some artifact of a school culture with a robust professional development component. In addition, although the professional development and teacher-experience predictors in the model were significant, there was still a majority of the variance unaccounted for in the model, indicating that there is much more that could help inform our understanding of student performance.

Research in professional development is characterized by significant levels of variability over what works and what does not (Guskey & Yoon, 2009). However, the field is beginning to identify elements that generally seem to be indicative of positive PD outcomes. The variations in many of these studies are likely due to the complex nature of the environment where the intervention is taking place. This report highlighted some of this complexity and made an attempt to incorporate a certain level of it into the design. The education system in practice and the individuals who comprise it are significantly more complex. Any research in this area needs to appreciate this complexity and understand and incorporate it into further work.

Limitations

Given the previous discussion regarding the complexities inherent in teachers imparting knowledge gained through professional development to their students, it is unwise to draw too many inferential claims from these results. The grain size for the analysis is moderate (school level) and the sample was limited to a geographical region and affected by some limitations inherent in the data. Since the PD is not directly linked from teachers to students, it may be more appropriate to couch the results in terms of a culture of PD affecting student outcomes as opposed to any causal effect regarding the number of PD events and its impact on student performance. However, even with these limitations, the results do begin to address some of the complexities inherent in the educational process while pointing to some potential positive effects of PD and the influence of other factors such as experience.

Another factor in determining the effectiveness of a training program is an understanding of the program's level of implementation. Perceived program effectiveness can be influenced by both the degree and quality of this implementation. Unfortunately, implementation data were not available for this study. Understanding mediating factors such as level of support from administration, alignment with organizational goals, and level of collaboration with peers would provide a context for assessing the degree to which a program is realizing its stated goals. Ideally any evaluation of this sort would benefit from data that directly linked teachers engaged in PD activities to their students' subsequent performance over the course of several years, along with additional controls for confounding variables.

Future Work

Given the limitations of the study, there are several areas that can be addressed that would add to the rigor of the study. Further research could begin to unpack some of the relationships described in this study by increasing the specificity of the analysis to individual students and teachers and linking them together in the analysis. This would allow for greater specificity in terms of who attended the PD and the outcomes of the students they teach. Since the PD was ongoing, there would be some difficulty in producing a clear pre–post comparison but the use of a control group to draw comparisons may be more practical and would increase the rigor. Further research could also better address the climate within which learning takes place, leading to a more complete understanding of how strategies learned by teachers are implemented and what some of the barriers for this implementation may be in the classroom. The study also did not collect information on how any of the PD was implemented in the classroom. Subsequent work in this area would benefit from a greater understanding of the level of implementation and characterization of challenges that may confront this implementation.

Finally, any single study should not be viewed as providing conclusive evidence for any relationship under investigation. Rather, these results should be viewed as an additional source of incremental evidence toward a more complete understanding of an otherwise complex dynamic.

Pre-AP Courses

Pre-AP®

Pre-AP English 1 English 2

Empowering Your Students' Growth

In Pre-AP® English courses, texts take center stage, inspiring and preparing all students for close, critical reading and analytical writing. Students examine how authors use specific words to affect the thoughts, emotions, and actions of readers and listeners. Students progress on their own writer's journey by first refining their approach to crafting complex, thought-provoking sentences, and then creating well-organized paragraphs and analytical essays.

Although both courses prioritize well-crafted texts and analytical writing, Pre-AP English 1 provides a foundation that's strengthened and extended in Pre-AP English 2. Beginning with an examination of key details in short fiction, Pre-AP English 1 moves to the study of pivotal words and phrases in poetry and drama, compelling evidence in nonfiction, and the techniques used by novelists to create powerful openings.

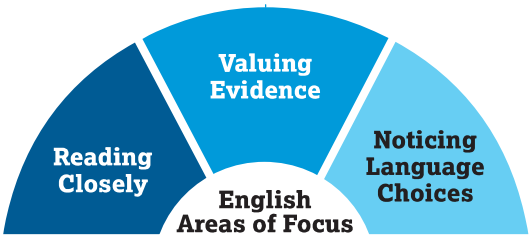
In Pre-AP English 2, students build on what they learned by examining how poets, playwrights, novelists, and writers of nonfiction use language to serve their unique purposes. Students' writing becomes more nuanced and sophisticated without losing sight of the importance of well-crafted sentences.

Challenges and Opportunities

Pre-AP English courses were designed in collaboration with educators nationwide to address the central curricular challenges they face every day. The research-supported course materials provide targeted and effective strategies educators can customize to meet students' specific needs. By addressing these challenges, Pre-AP empowers all students to learn, grow, and succeed, while building critical thinking skills for high school and beyond.

Pre-AP English courses provide focused time for students to engage with well-crafted texts.

Pre-AP English courses equip students with the skills to engage directly with a variety of literary and nonfiction texts. Students are encouraged to slow down to notice and enjoy rich texts that invite close reading and to first observe before analyzing and evaluating.

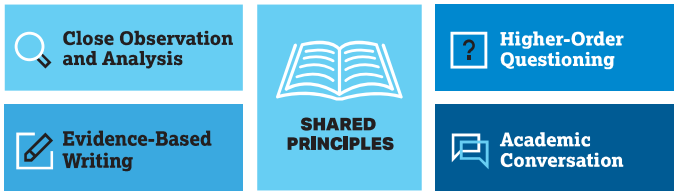


Pre-AP English courses help young writers build a foundation in evidence-based writing.

Pre-AP English courses infuse writing practice into daily work so students can internalize the habits of mind associated with analytical writing. Students learn to weigh options for evidence and to then embed that evidence seamlessly into their writing.

Pre-AP English courses emphasize the importance of language choices.

Pre-AP English courses guide students to investigate the meaning of words in context and to develop word consciousness—an awareness of the deliberate choices writers make when choosing one word over another.



Pre-AP English Areas of Focus

The Pre-AP English areas of focus are English language arts practices that students develop as they engage with the course content. These areas of focus are vertically aligned to the disciplinary reasoning skills necessary for success in high school and beyond.

Pre-AP Shared Principles

The Pre-AP shared principles—a horizontal alignment across all Pre-AP courses—are a set of research-supported instructional principles and practices that build important cross-disciplinary skills and foster cross-curricular alignment in a school. These four principles create a common instructional focus for both students and educators.

The Pre-AP English Course Model: Putting It All Together

Three essential Pre-AP course components: (1) a focused course framework, (2) engaging model lessons, and (3) assessments for learning. These resources help educators plan their year, deliver rigorous grade-level appropriate instruction, and monitor student progress with both content and skills throughout the year.

Focused Course Framework

The Pre-AP English course framework focuses on a limited number of concepts and skills with the broadest relevance for high school coursework and college and career success.

Each Pre-AP English course contains four units of study that serve as an organizing frame for the model lessons and assessments for learning.

The Pre-AP English framework includes five Big Ideas:

- Engaging with Texts
- Constructing Texts
- Focusing on Language
- Investigating Through Research
- Entering the Conversation

Engaging Model Lessons

Pre-AP English lessons feature:

- Rich, engaging, and carefully curated texts that offer a range of familiar and fresh voices, with an emphasis on contemporary, particularly original texts, or classics with timeless relevance.
- Scaffolded writing instruction that builds from the sentence to the paragraph to the page.

Assessments for Learning

Pre-AP assessments function as a component of the teaching and learning cycle. Progress isn't measured by performance on any single assessment. Rather, Pre-AP English courses offer a place to practice, to grow, and to recognize that learning takes time.

High-quality assessments include:

- 2 digital, multiple-choice, formative assessments per unit.
- 1 culminating performance task per unit.
- Question bank that allows teachers to select questions or craft their own to design quizzes.

These assessments serve as valuable tools for educators and students to gauge understanding and to determine where adaptations in instruction might be needed.

Pre-AP®

Pre-AP Algebra 1

Empowering Your Students' Growth

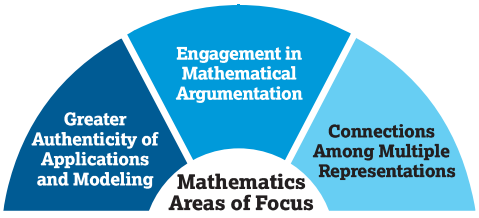
Pre-AP® Algebra 1 focuses on the foundational, grade-appropriate concepts and skills required for student growth and success in high school mathematics. Students gain a deep understanding of linear relationships through equations and functions. By mastering these building-block concepts in Pre-AP Algebra 1, they develop the necessary tools to tackle challenging mathematics through the rest of high school and beyond. The Pre-AP Algebra 1 course framework is focused and streamlined, devoting time and space for teachers to support students of any ability to progress toward expertise in important mathematics concepts and skills.

Addressing Inequities with Pre-AP Mathematics

The Pre-AP mathematics sequence of Algebra 1, Geometry with Statistics, and Algebra 2 is designed to create more equitable opportunities for students to take AP STEM courses, especially for those who are currently underrepresented in STEM courses and careers. By narrowing the scope of content across the three courses, it offers a strategic approach to mathematics that concentrates on the content and skills that matter most for college readiness. This intentional focus increases STEM readiness for a larger percentage of students, especially for courses such as AP Computer Science Principles, AP Precalculus, AP Statistics, and/or AP Calculus AB.

Challenges and Opportunities

Pre-AP Algebra 1 was designed in collaboration with educators nationwide to address the central challenges they face. The research-supported course materials provide targeted and effective strategies that educators can customize to meet students' specific needs. By addressing these challenges, Pre-AP empowers all students to learn, grow, and succeed, while building critical thinking skills for high school and beyond.



Pre-AP Algebra 1 is a course for all students.

Pre-AP Algebra 1 gives students ample time to synthesize foundational standards learned in middle school (such as proportions, plotting points, calculating slope, writing equations, and making tables of values) into a complete understanding of linear relationships and their practical applications. The progression of the course builds durable skills and a deep knowledge of the mathematical tools essential for success in mathematics and for life beyond school.

Pre-AP Algebra 1 optimizes students' readiness for college-level mathematics.

The modern world is shaped by advances in mathematics. Pre-AP Algebra 1 students explore real-world applications of linear, quadratic, and exponential functions. They use their understanding of these contexts to explain the world around them—from natural phenomena to the technology that connects our global community. By exploring problems and contexts that are relevant to their daily lives, students appreciate mathematics and build the critical thinking skills necessary to become true problem solvers.

Pre-AP Mathematics Areas of Focus

The Pre-AP mathematics areas of focus are math practices that students develop as they engage with the course content. These areas of focus are vertically aligned to the disciplinary reasoning skills necessary for success in high school and beyond.

Pre-AP Shared Principles

The Pre-AP shared principles—a horizontal alignment across all Pre-AP courses—are a set of research-supported instructional principles and practices that build important cross-disciplinary skills and foster cross-curricular alignment in a school. Unit 4: Exponent Properties and Exponential Functions

Engaging Model Lessons

Pre-AP lessons help educators apply the framework, areas of focus, and shared principles to daily instruction.

Pre-AP Algebra 1 lessons feature:

- Authentic, relevant, and engaging contexts enabling real-world applications.
- Disciplinary thinking skills of modeling and argumentation.
- Tasks that challenge students to think and value the mathematical process, building skills that serve them in school and in life.

Assessments for Learning

Pre-AP assessments function as a component of the teaching and learning cycle. Progress isn't measured by performance on any single assessment. Rather, Pre-AP Algebra 1 offers a place to practice, to grow, and to recognize that learning takes time.

High-quality assessments include:

Pre-AP®

Pre-AP Biology

Empowering Your Students' Growth

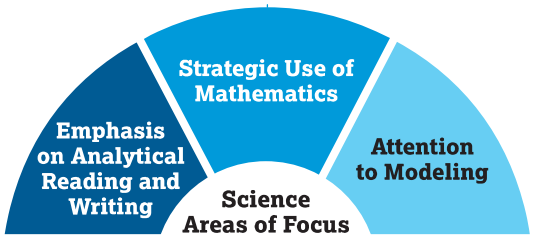
Pre-AP® Biology focuses on developing students' skills and knowledge through the study of four core units: ecological systems, evolution, cellular systems, and genetics. The course purposefully sequences the units of study from a macro-level understanding before focusing on the micro-level. Students begin exploring the workings of biological systems through an easily observable, macroscopic lens in ecology first because it's typically an accessible entry point for all students. Then, they apply this understanding of the interdependent nature of biological systems to better understand microscopic systems later in the course.

By engaging in science practices, through the Pre-AP science areas of focus, students increase their mastery of biological knowledge and strengthen cross-disciplinary reading, writing, and data-analysis skills. Students make meaningful connections among the structures, processes, and interactions that exist across biological systems—from cells to ecological communities. They analyze real-world phenomena and collaborate with peers in dialogue, investigations, and problem solving.

Challenges and Opportunities

Pre-AP Biology was designed in collaboration with educators nationwide to address the central curricular challenges they face every day in biology classrooms. The research-supported course frameworks provide targeted and effective strategies that educators can customize to meet students' specific needs. By addressing these challenges, Pre-AP empowers all students to learn, grow, and succeed, while building critical thinking skills for high school and beyond.

Pre-AP Biology courses engage students with relevant contextual problems to drive curiosity, observation, and analysis.



Pre-AP Biology asks students to think like scientists by deeply observing and analyzing complex living systems. Students learn to synthesize key content and apply scientific practices. This approach sparks students' curiosity about the living world around them and helps them make relevant connections to real-world applications and contexts in their lives.

Pre-AP Biology courses connect core ideas to drive deeper understanding of biological concepts.

Pre-AP Biology students must use and build upon prior knowledge of biology concepts to new scientific ideas strategically scaffolded throughout the course. This process helps students make meaningful connections. Pre-AP Biology instructional sequencing and design challenges students to develop a durable and coherent understanding of key biology concepts that prepares them for success in high school, as well as college science courses.

> "Those skills that students really need to excel on an SAT or on an AP Bio Exam … those skills are being asked of them in the 9th grade. Pre-AP prepares students not just for AP classes but also to be well-rounded students."
> —Demetrius, Pre-AP Biology Teacher

Pre-AP®

Pre-AP Chemistry

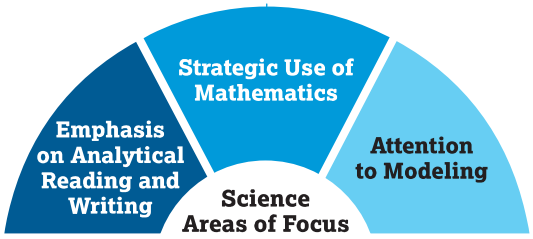
Empowering Your Students' Growth

The Pre-AP® Chemistry course is designed to leave students with a deep—and lasting—understanding of the nature of matter at the molecular level. The course starts by engaging students in analyzing properties of matter that are observable and measurable. This not only sparks their interest in chemistry but also provides a better foundation from which to build deeper understanding as students explore properties of molecules and atoms. By the end of the course, students will see how a particle view of matter can explain the phenomena under study and be used to make predictions about matter.

Pre-AP Chemistry motivates students to be active participants as they engage in critical thinking and strategically apply mathematical skills through data analysis, modeling, and productive collaboration with their peers.

Challenges and Opportunities

Pre-AP Chemistry was designed in collaboration with educators nationwide to address the central curricular challenges they face every day in chemistry. The research-supported course materials provide targeted and effective strategies that educators can customize to meet students' specific needs. By addressing these challenges, Pre-AP empowers all students to learn, grow, and succeed, while building critical thinking skills for high school and beyond.

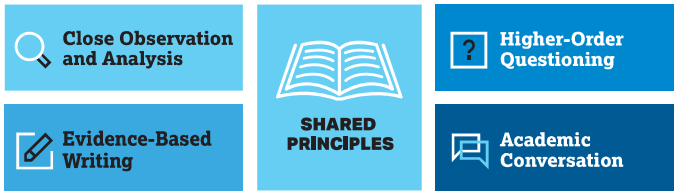


Pre-AP Chemistry provides students with opportunities to develop a deep, coherent conceptual understanding of matter at the molecular level by moving strategically from macroscopic to atomic explorations of the properties of matter.

Many introductory chemistry courses are conceptually organized in a manner that results in students having few opportunities to appropriately scaffold their understanding of the particle nature of matter. Without this deeper, coherent understanding of matter, students may not be adequately prepared to tackle the more advanced concepts of matter and energy. To address this challenge, Pre-AP Chemistry starts with macroscopic properties of everyday materials and progresses throughout the course to the study of increasingly deeper and more detailed perspectives.

Pre-AP Chemistry prioritizes opportunities to use context-driven mathematics, across multiple representations, to establish connections between quantitative and conceptual understandings.

Introductory chemistry courses often use mathematics without context-focused applications, and students may be able to solve problems but lack understanding of the underlying chemical principles. To avoid this challenge, Pre-AP Chemistry doesn't ask students to demonstrate their knowledge only by mathematical problem solving. Pre-AP Chemistry's first unit, with its focus on observable properties of matter, allows for a context-focused introduction of the mathematical skills that will be necessary throughout the course.



Pre-AP Science Areas of Focus

The Pre-AP science areas of focus are science practices that students develop as they engage with the course content. These areas of focus are vertically aligned to the disciplinary reasoning skills necessary for success in high school and beyond.

Pre-AP®

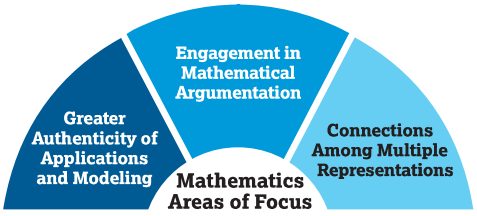
Pre-AP Algebra 2

Empowering Your Students' Growth

The Pre-AP® Algebra 2 course capitalizes on, solidifies, and extends the conceptual understanding and procedural fluency of functions and data analysis that students developed in prior courses. They build upon linear, quadratic, and exponential functions as they work to define logarithmic, polynomial, rational, square root, and trigonometric functions. Quantitative literacy is developed by weaving data sets, contextual scenarios, and mathematical modeling throughout the course. Students are able to make sense of many real-world scenarios because of their increased toolbox of functions. These skills make students critical consumers of the day-to-day mathematics that surrounds them, as well as prepare them for subsequent coursework in mathematics and the sciences.

Addressing Inequities with Pre-AP Mathematics

The Pre-AP mathematics sequence of Algebra 1, Geometry with Statistics, and Algebra 2 is designed to create more equitable opportunities for students to take AP® STEM courses, especially for those who are currently underrepresented in STEM courses and careers. By narrowing the scope of content across the three courses, it offers a strategic approach to mathematics that concentrates on the content and skills that matter most for college readiness. This intentional focus increases STEM readiness for a larger percentage of students, especially for courses such as AP Computer Science Principles, AP Precalculus, AP Statistics, and/or AP Calculus AB.



Challenges and Opportunities

Pre-AP Algebra 2 was designed in collaboration with educators nationwide to address the central challenges they face. The research-supported course materials provide targeted and effective strategies that educators can customize to meet students' specific needs. By addressing these challenges, Pre-AP empowers all students to learn, grow, and succeed, while building critical thinking skills for high school and beyond.

Pre-AP Algebra 2 is a course for all students.
Many traditional Algebra 2 courses prioritize unnecessary symbolic manipulation and arcane topics with little relevance to students' lives. Not everyone will leave high school intending to become engineers, scientists, or mathematicians, but all students benefit from working collaboratively to solve cognitively demanding problems. Pre-AP Algebra 2 accomplishes this goal through a focus on authentic applications, increased focus on prioritized content, and increased emphasis on bivariate data analysis.

Pre-AP Algebra 2 optimizes students' readiness for college-level mathematics.
Every student who successfully completes the course must have several choices available to them, including progressing to a college-level statistics or calculus course. It could mean choosing to hone their skills in a college algebra or mathematical modeling course before tackling AP Precalculus, AP Calculus, or AP statistics. Pre-AP Algebra 2 also creates opportunities for students to take college-level science classes that require a basic working understanding of trigonometry. Regardless of an individual student's path, Pre-AP Algebra 2 serves their needs by engaging them in authentic mathematical experiences.

Pre-AP Mathematics Areas of Focus

The Pre-AP mathematics areas of focus are math practices that students develop as they engage with the course content. These areas of focus are vertically aligned to the disciplinary reasoning skills necessary for success in high school and beyond.

Pre-AP World History and Geography

Empowering Your Students' Growth

Pre-AP® World History and Geography focuses on building the disciplinary skills of contextualization, causation,comparison, continuity and change over time. The course framework encourages students to use the tools of the historian and geographer on a regular basis: sources, data, maps, and evidence-based inquiry. Primary and secondary sources, paired with investigative questions, develop historical thinking skills and learning key concepts that shape our understanding of world history and geography.

> "At the beginning of the year, not many students ask questions. They're still nervous. After a few months of Pre-AP, they're beginning to get the confidence to ask questions in a way that they never have before."
> —Matthew, Pre-AP World History and Geography Teacher

Challenges and Opportunities

Pre-AP World History and Geography was designed in collaboration with educators nationwide to address the central curricular challenges they face every day in their classrooms. The research-tested course materials provide targeted and effective strategies educators can customize to meet students' specific needs. Pre-AP empowers all students to learn, grow, and succeed, building critical thinking skills they need for high school and beyond.

PRE-AP WORLD HISTORY AND GEOGRAPHY courses utilize high-quality sources to guide students toward evidence-based discoveries.

Pre-AP World History and Geography allows students to encounter a wide range of primary and secondary sources as they regularly practice discovering, analyzing, and weighing evidence. Often, students have too few opportunities to interact directly with sources. In this course, students become inquisitive investigators who use the tools of the discipline to uncover and interpret new evidence about the world and its inhabitants.

PRE-AP WORLD HISTORY AND GEOGRAPHY courses allow students to make connections across time and space.

Pre-AP World History and Geography allows students to identify connections within geographic and historical relationships across time and space. They practice contextualization, causation, comparison, continuity and change over time. By allowing teachers and students to slow down and focus, students can strengthen and flex these social studies skills to evaluate historical and geographic relationships.

PRE-AP WORLD HISTORY AND GEOGRAPHYcourses support students to develop evidence-based arguments.

Pre-AP World History and Geography includes regular, purpose-driven writing practice that sharpens students' argumentation skills. Students discover that claims require accurate, appropriate evidence, and they reinforce these skills through regular practice of purpose-driven writing exercises.

World History and Geography Areas of Focus

Each Pre-AP course is focused on three instructional priorities that are central to meaningful learning and student engagement in that discipline. They represent the reasoning skills that students need to develop and strengthen in history and social sciences.

Pre-AP Shared Principles

The Pre-AP shared principles—a defining touchstone of all Pre-AP courses—are a set of research-supported instructional principles and practices that build important cross-disciplinary skills and foster cross-curricular alignment in a school. These four principles create a common instructional focus for both students and educators.

The Pre-AP World History and Geography Course Model

Three essential Pre-AP course ingredients: (1) a focused course framework, (2) engaging model lessons, and (3) assessments for learning. These instructional resources help educators plan their year, deliver rigorous grade-level appropriate instruction, and monitor student progress and growth throughout the year.

Focused Course Framework

The Pre-AP World History and Geography course framework creates time and space for deep learning.

The framework defines what students should know and be able to do by the end of the course and is organized by seven units: one geography unit to open the year and six units based on historical periods. Schools have flexibility to select the pathway of units that best aligns to their district course sequence and state standards.

Engaging Model Lessons

Pre-AP lessons help educators apply the Framework, Areas of Focus, and Shared Principles to daily instruction.

- Sources are central to the model lessons, allowing students to interact regularly with accessible, authentic textual excerpts as well as images, maps, and charts.
- The course challenges students to investigate, collaborate, and debate ideas—skills to build and retain content knowledge while acquiring confidence and self-discipline.

Assessments for Learning

Pre-AP assessments function as a component of the teaching and learning cycle. Progress is not measured by performance on any single assessment. Rather, Pre-AP World History and Geography assessments offers a place to practice, to grow, and to recognize that learning takes time.

High-quality resources include:

- Two digital, multiple-choice, formative assessments per unit
- One culminating performance task per unit
- Question bank that allows teachers to select questions or craft their own to design quizzes.

These assessments serve as valuable tools for educators and students to gauge understanding and to determine where adaptations in instruction might be needed.

Empowering Your Students' Growth

Expression and creativity are key to building critical thinking skills in high school. To increase students' access to high-quality arts instruction, College Board has carefully cultivated four arts courses—dance, music, theatre, and visual arts—as part of the suite of Pre-AP® courses. In each arts course, students are guided to observe and interpret, practice and experiment, research and make, reflect and evaluate, and revise and share. Students grow in their appreciation for the creative process, as well as through their final products and performances.

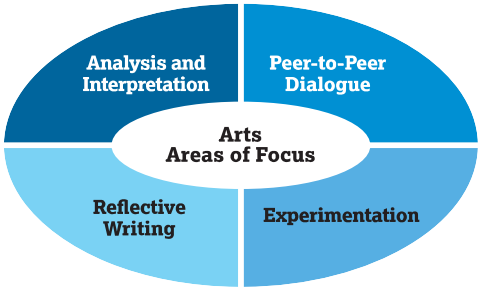
Challenges and Opportunities

Pre-AP Arts courses were designed in collaboration with educators nationwide to address the central curricular challenges they face every day. The research-supported course materials provide targeted and effective strategies educators can customize to meet students' specific needs. By addressing these challenges, Pre-AP empowers all students to learn, grow, and succeed, while building critical thinking skills for high school and beyond.

Pre-AP Arts courses are designed with flexibility for universal implementation.

Pre-AP Arts courses are adaptable so educators can implement instructional lessons in different settings. This allows schools to make the best use of their available resources. The Pre-AP Arts approach complements the already-existing, performance-focused courses in your school, while providing resources to incorporate the core Pre-AP practices throughout the curriculum.

Pre-AP Arts courses focus on the creative process—not just the final product or performance.



Pre-AP Arts courses challenge students to take a deliberate and critical analysis of their own creative processes. Students take the time to generate and refine ideas, practice skills and techniques, reflect, revise approaches, and collaborate with their peers. Pre-AP Arts courses build confidence as students learn to value the creative process and hone new techniques and skills in their journey of self-expression.

Pre-AP Arts courses employ authentic and relevant assessments.

Pre-AP Arts assessments motivate students to refine and revise their creative work. Students are challenged to analyze, critique, and communicate about their creative process, final product, and technical skill development. These assessments flow seamlessly from the creative work itself, making assessments a relevant, valuable, and meaningful tool for students and educators alike.

> "Even the students who had absolutely no dance experience were able to incorporate dance movement that we had taught prior into a new context."

Pre-AP Arts Areas of Focus

Pre-AP Arts courses are built on four foundational instructional priorities for meaningful learning and student engagement. The areas of focus are vertically aligned to practices embedded in high school and college arts courses, including AP®.

Pre-AP Shared Principles

The Pre-AP shared principles—a horizontal alignment across all Pre-AP courses—are a set of research-supported instructional principles and practices that build important cross-disciplinary skills and foster cross-curricular alignment in a school. These four principles create a common instructional focus for both students and educators.

The Pre-AP Arts Course Model: Putting It All Together

Three essential Pre-AP course components: (1) a focused course framework, (2) engaging model lessons, and (3) assessments for learning. These resources help educators plan their year, deliver rigorous grade-level appropriate instruction, and monitor student progress throughout the year.

Focused Course Framework

The Pre-AP Arts framework focuses on a limited number of concepts and skills with the broadest relevance for high school coursework and college and career success.

The framework defines what students should know and be able to do and is unified by five Big Ideas:

- Observe and Interpret
- Practice and Experiment
- Research and Make
- Reflect and Evaluate
- Revise and Share

Engaging Model Lessons

Pre-AP lessons help educators apply the framework, areas of focus, and shared principles to daily instruction.

Pre-AP Arts lesson highlights:

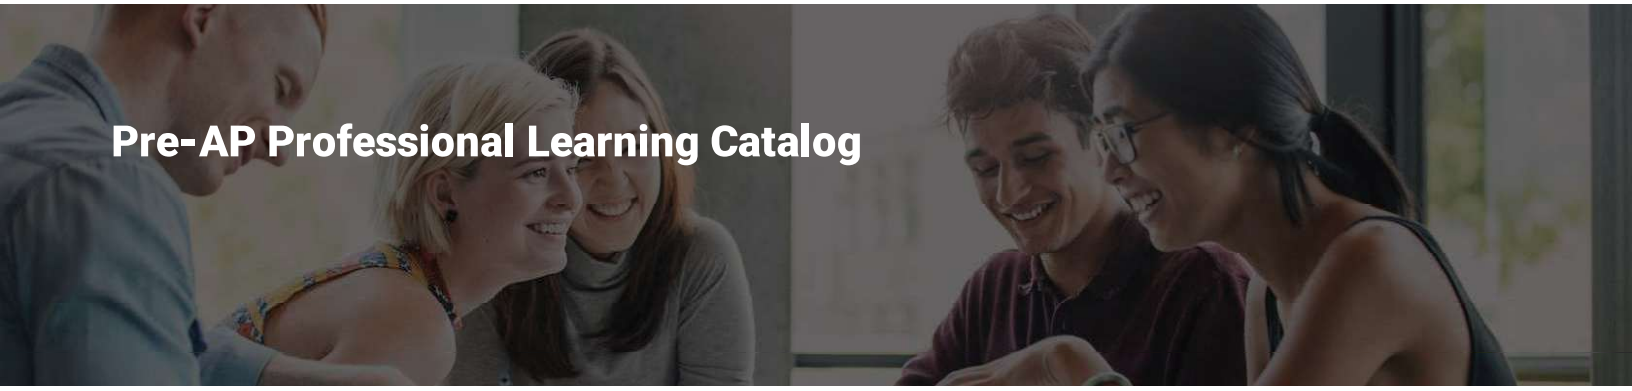
- The arts courses offer instructional modules. These units of study can be flexibly integrated into a school's existing arts course.
- All arts courses feature a wide range of engaging and contemporary anchor works, and the lessons elevate the creative process. This builds student interest and confidence.

Assessments for Learning

Pre-AP assessments function as a component of the teaching and learning cycle. Progress isn't measured by performance on any single assessment. Rather, Pre-AP Arts courses offer a place to practice, to grow, and to recognize that learning takes time.

The high-quality assessments:

- Include 1 authentic performance-based assessment per module.
- Are embedded in instructional practice, honing technical skill as well as revision and reflection.



These assessments serve as valuable tools for educators and students to gauge understanding and to determine where adaptations in instruction might be needed.

4. Pre-AP Online Scoring Modules

Purpose

The online scoring modules focus on examining and scoring student work for Pre-AP performance tasks. Participants first analyze a performance task and scoring guidelines. Then they interactively practice scoring student work samples and consider how to generate feedback based upon performance trends.

Each course includes at least three scoring modules (except for Pre-AP Visual and Performing Arts, which has one), and each scoring module can be completed in 1-2 hours. We encourage teachers to complete all the scoring modules in advance of administering the associated performance task.

Objectives

- Analyze what the performance tasks are asking students to do and what the scores represent.
- Examine the merits of formative assessment and emphasizing feedback for students.

- Practice scoring a student sample with feedback and rationales generated from a professional learning community.

SAT Suite of Assessments

The College Board is proud to offer our college readiness assessments to Knox County Schools. SAT School Day (SAT SD), along with PSAT/NMSQT®, PSAT 10, and PSAT 8/9, provides students and educators with clear indicators of college and career readiness, makes it easy to understand academic strengths and areas of growth, supports course planning, and helps connect students with an array of post-secondary options and opportunities, including scholarships. No other assessment system can provide all the benefits detailed below.

In this proposal, we provide information on College Board's SAT Suite of Assessments.

The SAT

The SAT is the key component to the SAT Suite, an assessment system comprised of the SAT (including SAT SD), PSAT/NMSQT, PSAT 10, and PSAT 8/9. This set of assessments focuses on the durable knowledge and skills that evidence shows matter most for college and career readiness and success. The tests are connected by the same underlying content continuum of knowledge and skills, and when used together, provide multiple opportunities for students to demonstrate their achievement and make improvements. The tests of the SAT Suite share a vertical scale reported in an integrated portal with student and educator access, making the results clear and actionable for families and schools.

Enduring Value of the SAT

When nearly every college and university went test-optional during the pandemic, millions of students still took the SAT. The SAT continues to play a vital role in a holistic admission process and colleges and universities across the country are reviewing their test policies with some moving back to requiring students to submit test scores. When viewed within the context of where a student lives and learns, test scores can confirm a student's grades or demonstrate their strengths beyond what their high school grades may show.

Most students want to take the SAT, find out how they perform, and then decide whether they want to submit their scores to colleges. When surveyed, 83% of students said they want the option to submit test scores to colleges. This finding remains consistent whether students have taken the SAT and across race/ethnicity and parents' level of education.

SAT Validity

College Board has conducted extensive research on the validity of the SAT as a predictor of college readiness and success, including convergent validity, predictive validity, and course performance. Based on hundreds of thousands of students attending 250+ colleges and universities, our research has found that SAT scores are useful predictors of:

- First-semester college course performance in the matching academic domains
- First-year grade-point average (FYGPA)
- Retention through each year of college
- Degree completion

The PSAT Related Assessments

The PSAT Related Assessments include the PSAT/NMSQT, PSAT10 and PSAT 8/9. These assessments are built on the same content framework and scoring scale as the SAT. They contain grade-level appropriate content and provide the same type of accommodations for students with disabilities and support for EL students are provided for PSAT10 and PSAT 8/9. Additionally, the PSAT/NMSQT and PSAT10 offer opportunities in scholarship and recognition programs from the National Merit Scholarship Corporation (PSAT/NMSQT only) and College Board's 23 scholarship partners, including the APIA Scholars, the Hispanic Scholarship Fund, the American Indian Graduate Center, the Jack Kent Cooke Foundation, the Horatio Alger Association, the Jackie Robinson Foundation, and UNCF (the United Negro College Fund). Districts and schools can utilize these assessments, in conjunction with the SAT, to gain insights into college and career readiness as students progress through grades 8-12.

More About the SAT Suite of Assessments

College Board's College and Career Readiness Benchmarks

Students are considered college and career ready when their SAT section scores meet both the Math and the Reading and Writing benchmarks. It's important to note that college readiness is a continuum—students scoring below the SAT benchmarks can still be successful in college, especially with additional preparation and perseverance.

Students with an SAT Math section score that meets or exceeds the benchmark have a 75% chance of earning at least a C in first-semester, credit-bearing college courses in algebra, statistics, precalculus, or calculus.

Students with an SAT Reading and Writing section score that meets or exceeds the benchmark have a 75% chance of earning at least a C in first-semester, credit-bearing college courses in history, literature, social sciences, or writing classes.

Career Readiness

College Board has engaged in significant research that has found that SAT Suite scores are connected to a student's readiness for careers. With an SAT or PSAT score, students can identify jobs that may be a good fit based on how their test performance aligns to the quantitative and literacy specifications of a career. In partnership with researchers at HumRRO, College Board worked to map SAT scores to the occupational descriptors of jobs, using the U.S. Department of Labor's Occupational Information Network (O*NET) database. Covering the entire U.S. economy, O*NET is the nation's primary source of up-to-date occupational information, including each occupation's knowledge, skill, and ability (KSA) descriptor.

SAT Scores and Reports

Scores for the SAT Suite are reported to the state, districts, and schools via College Board's K-12 Reporting portal. There are three years of data in the system, and a user may request historical data. This allows districts/schools to easily compare performance year over year.

The vertically aligned SAT Suite supports the measurement of student growth year to year. Growth reports are available to districts and schools via College Board's K-12 Reporting Portal. College Board will review and revise our growth tables following the first administration of the digital SAT Suite, which will occur during the 2023-2024 school year. New growth reports will become available in the 2025-2026 school year.

One of the benefits of the SAT Suite is AP Potential, which is a research-based way to identify students who are prepared to be successful in Advanced Placement courses. AP Potential can be a powerful tool to help students maximize their course options in 11th and 12th grades based on their post-secondary and career interests/plans.

The Knowledge and Skills Report will provide districts, schools, and students with detailed feedback on academic strengths and areas for improvement. For educators, this report can support curricular and instructional alignment and enhancements. For students, it can be used to highlight the knowledge and skills that they can develop using free resources such as Official Digital SAT Prep via Khan Academy.

Skills Insight

Skills Insight is a score interpretation framework that College Board developed for the digital SAT Suite. Derived from a careful analysis of student performance on hundreds of digital SAT Suite questions, Skills Insight identifies what test takers who score in particular ranges ("performance score bands") on the Reading and Writing and Math sections typically know and can do in these subject areas, as demonstrated by their digital suite assessment performance. Skills Insight is an online tool that provides an easy and intuitive way for teachers, students, and education professionals to better understand and make use of scores from the digital SAT Suite. In addition to the skill statements, exemplar questions solidify those statements by illustrating the kinds and rigor of test questions that students in various performance score bands are typically able to answer correctly.

SAT Suite Question Bank

The SAT Suite Question Banks is a publicly available resource on our website that provides educators and others with access to Reading and Writing and Math items. Question Bank users can sort questions by content domains, score bands, level of difficulty, and skill area. The Question Bank can be used in concert with Skills Insight and performance reports from the K-12 Reporting Portal to help educators understand how knowledge and skills are assessed on the SAT Suite.

Personalized Resources to Support Students

College Board will continue to provide a series of supports and services that ensure students from all backgrounds have access to focused practice and college and career planning resources. Full-length practice tests are available for each assessment in the digital assessment platform to help students become familiar with the test design, test questions, and tools. In addition, students will be able to practice for the digital SAT using the Official Digital SAT Prep Course on Khan Academy.

BigFuture School and Connections™

College Board's SAT Suite includes educational services to help students navigate post-secondary and career pathways and to help K-12 educators and counselors serve their students' needs, including BigFuture School and Connections.

BigFuture School Mobile App

BigFuture School is a free, optional mobile app offering a new way for students to access their scores. Schools may also continue to distribute score reports directly to students. BigFuture School lets students view their score information and get customized career information and guidance about planning and paying for college. During the testing experience, eligible students may choose to provide a mobile number that will only be used by College Board to text them a link to download the app, send a code they will use to log in to the app, and let them know when their scores are ready. The mobile phone number will not be shared or used for any other reason. For students who provide their mobile number, they will have the opportunity to also provide a recovery email, which we recommend providing a second secure option to authenticate access to the mobile app.

Connections

During the testing experience and when students access BigFuture School, they may opt into Connections, a new optional feature exclusively for eligible students that allows them to hear from nonprofit colleges, scholarship programs, and educational organizations that may be a good match. Connections is free to students. No personal information is shared with these organizations as part of Connections. If a student is interested in one of the colleges or programs, the student decides if and when to contact them. Students may control specific communication preferences in Connections and may opt-out of Connections at any time.

Delivery of the Digital SAT Suite of Assessments

The digital SAT Suite of Assessments utilizes a multi-stage adaptive test design. Each assessment is comprised of two sections – Reading and Writing, and Math. Each section is comprised of two modules. The first module in each section is comprised of a mix of easy, medium, and difficult level questions. Based on how a student performs in the first module, they will automatically be provided with a second module which is comprised of items at a lower or higher level of difficulty.

The digital SAT Suite of Assessment is delivered using College Board's propriety test delivery system which is comprised of two components: Bluebook and Test Day Toolkit. Bluebook is College Board's digital testing application which must be installed on the devices that students will use to take the test. Test Day Toolkit is College Board's web-based test administration tool for test coordinators, proctors, and other staff who are responsible for planning the administration and testing students. Additional information about Bluebook can be found at https://bluebook.collegeboard.org. Information about Test Day Toolkit can be found at https://bluebook.collegeboard.org/test-admin.

Most students will be able to take the SAT Suite digitally. However, some students may require paper testing. College Board will provide linear paper testing to any student who has an accommodation in College Board's SSD Online system which requires that the student be assessed using a linear paper format. In addition, College Board will support linear paper testing for students with religious beliefs and tenets that prohibit the use of technology and for students that are located in specialized facilities that have regulations and/or security protocols that prevent the assessments from being administered online.

2025 – 2026 Test Administration Dates

The digital, adaptive design of the SAT Suite has increased test security as each student is administered a unique version of the assessment which allows more flexibility in when and how schools can administer the assessments. Schools can administer the assessments on as many days of the testing window as needed. Standard and accommodated test takers will test during the window.

The test administration dates for the 2025 – 2026 school year are as follows:

Annex 1

College Board's College and Career Readiness Educational Services

With the Covered Assessments, College Board shall provide the following educational services to help students navigate post-secondary and career pathways and to help K-12 educators and counselors serve their students' needs (collectively, "Educational Services").

"App" refers to a College Board mobile application, BigFuture® School, that students age 13 and older can download from the App Store to access Educational Services. The App is only available for students taking the SAT School Day, PSAT/NMSQT, PSAT 10 and PSAT 8/9. "BigFuture School" as used herein refers to the Educational Services provided on the App (including in-App notifications if the student elects to turn on those notifications) and potential other channels such as through a website portal exclusively for the Educational Services.

SCORE INFORMATION: In BigFuture School, students may access their scores and other score information (collectively, "Score Information") for College Board assessments including scores received by students on Covered Assessments. For SAT School Day, Score Information will include career readiness indicator(s) derived from the student's scores and the U.S. Department of Labor/Employment and Training Administration Occupational Informtion Network (O*NET), mapping the math, reading, and writing skills measured by the SAT to the qualitative and literacy skills for occupations in O*NET.

RECOMMENDATIONS: In BigFuture School, College Board may provide students with educational information and recommendations about college and career options including, for example, AP Potential, postsecondary options and opportunities, career pathways, scholarships, National Recognition Program potential eligibility, financial aid and paying for college information, and opportunities to participate in College Board research studies (collectively, "Recommendations"). In providing and customizing Recommendations, College Board may use score ranges, career readiness indicators as provided in their Score Information for SAT School Day, and student information collected in connection with Covered Assessments and through students' use of Educational Services. In the Recommendations, College Board may include third-party links to other sites that are not operated by us, including colleges, universities, scholarship organizations, and career information sites. College Board is not responsible for the content or operation of other websites, and links to other websites are not intended to imply endorsement of them by College Board.

CONNECTIONS*: Connections is available to students taking the SAT School Day, PSAT/NMSQT, and PSAT 10. Connections is a College Board program through which students are provided information about non-profit colleges, universities, nonprofit scholarship providers, and other government agencies administering educational programs ("Eligible Institutions") and may receive preliminary offers of admission from nonprofit colleges and universities ("Participating Colleges"). Information provided to students is based on criteria provided by those Eligible Institutions and Participating Colleges and student information and interests. This may include:

- student interests, demographics, students' use of Educational Services, and other information collected by College Board during Covered Assessment(s) for which the student opts-in to Connections; (
- students' interests and preferences (such as through user controls within the App, through engagement in BigFuture School, and any updates students make to their information in their use of Educational Services) ;
- assessment score ranges the student received on past and future SAT, AP, PSAT/NMSQT and PSAT10 assessments; and.
- for preliminary offers of admission from Participating Colleges, assessment score ranges the student received on past and future SAT assessments may be used, and race and ethnicity will not be used.

College Board never shares students' personally identifiable information with Eligible Institutions or Participating Colleges as part of Connections.

Connections is entirely optional, and students must affirmatively opt-in and agree to College Board's use of their information as described above for Connections if they wish to participate. Unless an LEA or a school directs College Board to exclude its students from Connections (as further described below), students can opt-in during Covered Assessment(s) or in the App and may be able to do so through other channels. If a student opted-in to Connections during a prior SAT School Day, PSAT/NMSQT, or PSAT 10 assessment pursuant to an agreement with their school, district, or state, Client acknowledges and agrees to use of the student's information from Covered Assessment(s) under this Agreement in Connections, with notice of the same and opportunity to opt-out presented to any such students during the Covered Assessment(s).

Students can opt-out of Connections at any time, using any of the multiple ways provided, including, an opt-out feature within the App, an unsubscribe option from Connections emails, opt-out instructions included in each mailing, and by contacting College Board's customer service. Students can also choose to remain in Connections but opt-out of individual communications channels (emails, hardcopy mailings, and in-App).

Opted-in students may receive information from and about from Eligible Institutions and Participating Colleges in the App (including in-App notifications if the student elects to turn on those notifications), by hard copy mail, and by email, subject to the student providing their home address, email, and/or downloads the mobile application, all of which data elements are optional. Eligible Institutions and Participating Colleges do not know the identity of a student to whom information is delivered unless and until the student chooses to provide their personal information directly to the Eligible Institution or Participating College, which the student can only do outside of the App and outside of the Educational Services. A student may be able to link from the App, email, or QR code in a mailing to further content within BigFuture School or to an external webpage or webform hosted by that Eligible Institution or Participating College. Any preliminary offer of admission will include a school-specific website link through which the student may share their information directly with the Participating College, after which the Participating College may inform the student about any next steps to enroll as well as to be considered for any financial aid. College Board may track students' access to such links/webpages for purposes of reporting and analytics, but College Board will not disclose such information to Eligible Institutions or Participating Colleges other than in de-identified and aggregated form.

Content provided to students through Connections are created by Eligible Institutions and Participating Colleges and may include text, images, videos, and interactive elements. While Connections may be personalized by College Board (e.g., student name at the top of an email) through automated means, College Board is not responsible for and does not create, edit, or approve of the content. Notwithstanding the foregoing, College Board may send a communication to the student alerting them that information through Connections is forthcoming and/or available in BigFuture School for them to access.

For students who receive a preliminary offer of admission, there is no guarantee of admission, scholarships, or financial aid and it may require them to complete additional steps to accept the offer as defined by the Participating College(s). The Participating College(s) may also require confirmation of information it relied upon in making a preliminary offer of admission, such as requiring the student to submit their final transcript to complete the admissions process. Each Participating College makes the decision on preliminary offers of admission. College Board is not involved in any of the selection or decision making by the Participating College(s).

*Not offered in New York at this time. There may be other exclusions.

ADDITIONAL DETAILS REGARDING EDUCATIONAL SERVICES:

There is no incremental cost for Educational Services.

College Board shall provide Client with reporting on its students' use of Educational Services, with the content and cadence within College Board's sole discretion.

College Board collects certain information from students during Covered Assessments to ensure test validity and fairness, for identity matching and the purposes described above under the "College Board Collection, Use, and Disclosure of Data" section. College Board also uses that information in Educational Services, as described above, and to communicate with students about their Covered Assessment(s) and the Educational Services. For students who use the Educational Services, they may be able to update this information within the Educational Services, if they so choose. All questions are optional.

Questions include the following:
- Home/Mailing Address
- Email Address
- Race
- Ethnicity
- First Language
- Best Language

- Whether the student will complete or leave high school and enroll full-time in college
- How many total years the student will spend in grades 9-12
- Whether the student is a U.S. citizen (for students testing outside the United States)

To use the App, College Board will provide a secure method for the student to access and authenticate their identity using information collected about them in connection with the Covered Assessment(s) and Educational Services. This may include Client providing student information for this purpose, including, for example, student email address, students providing a mobile number during the administration of the Covered Assessment with their phone number then being used to authenticate into the App, and/or Client providing an access code to each student. By providing their mobile number, the student authorizes College Board to text them to download the App, authenticate into the App, and about their scores, including when their scores are available for Covered Assessments. College Board does not use mobile numbers collected during Covered Assessments for any other purposes. Students are encouraged to provide an email address solely for App account recovery purposes. The foregoing is clearly explained to the student.

Client may direct College Board to automatically exclude its students from Connections for the Covered Assessment(s) under this Agreement by contacting College Board Customer Service at (866) 609-1369. Client may visit collegeboard.org/connections-tc for more information about Connections and for access to an opt-out form.
- Opt-outs must be submitted before the a deadline communicated by College Board in order to suppress displaying the Connections opt-in to students during their testing experience for the Covered Assessment(s).
- If a student had already opted-in to Connections under this Agreement before Client opted-out, the student's data from Covered Assessment(s) under this Agreement will no longer be used for Connections upon College Board's implementation of Client's opt out

- If Client excludes its students from Connections and a student is not participating in Connections through other assessment(s) outside of this Agreement, the student will not receive any new content or messaging and anything previously delivered may be still accessed by the student.
- If Client opts-out, scores the student received on Covered Assessment(s) may still be used for Connections as described above if the student opted-in to Connections through an agreement between College Board and their school, district, or state which has access to Covered Assessment score(s).
- In some instances, Client's state may have elected to opt-out its students and College Board will abide by that exclusion for Client's students.
- If Client opts-out, Client may revoke this opt-out election by contacting College Board at SAT Customer Service at 888-SAT-HELP, +1-212-520-8600 (International), or email sateducator@collegeboard.org.
- Upon opt-out, students will still be able to use BigFuture School to receive Score Information and Recommendations.

Students may have opportunities to link from BigFuture School to BigFuture® and to other college and career planning services on College Board's website, www.collegeboard.org. Those services are not part of Educational Services and do not use student data collected under the Covered Assessments which are the subject matter of this Agreement or any DPA; the only exception being scores on College Board assessments, as all students have independent rights in their own test scores, as further acknowledged above. Students use BigFuture in their personal capacity and may need a personal College Board account to use certain features. Students with personal College Board accounts may also be able to access their scores through their personal accounts. Students may also have opportunities to copy data from their personal College Board accounts to Educational Services for use in the Educational Services. Such data copies shall be considered part of Educational Services, and those copies are subject to the same privacy rules as student data collected during Covered Assessments. collegeboard.org/privacycenter.

The Initial Term and each subsequent Renewal Term shall be collectively referred to as the "Term." If, during the Term, Client decides to change to the administration of a digital College Board assessment, College Board reserves the right to attach an additional schedule specific to such administration, containing operational policies and any additional terms and conditions.

2.2 Termination. If either party breaches any of the provisions of this Agreement (including but not limited to Client's failure to make any payment when due), either party shall have the right to give the other party written notice to cure such breach within thirty (30) days and, if such breach is not cured within a thirty (30) day period, either party shall have the right to terminate this Agreement, without waiver of any other remedy, whether legal or equitable; provided, however, if Client breaches the Representations and Warranties or Ownership of Intellectual Property, or both, then College Board shall have the right to terminate this Agreement immediately.

2.2.2 Partial Payment Upon Termination. Client will compensate College Board for all Services, including any costs associated with the initial deployment of resources in preparation for providing the Services under this Agreement, through the effective date of any termination in accordance with invoices issued or to be issued by College Board.

4.0 Taxes. Client agrees to pay any sales, use, value added or other taxes or import duties (other than College Board's corporate income taxes) based on, or due as a result of, any fees paid to College Board under this Agreement, unless Client is exempt from such taxes as the result of Client's corporate or government status and Client has furnished College Board with a valid tax exemption certificate.

6.0 Limitation of Liability. TO THE EXTENT PERMITTED BY LAW, AND NOTWITHSTANDING ANY OTHER PROVISION OF THIS AGREEMENT, THE TOTAL LIABILITY, IN THE AGGREGATE, OF COLLEGE BOARD AND ITS OFFICERS, TRUSTEES, PARTNERS, EMPLOYEES, AGENTS AND COLLEGE BOARD'S SUBCONTRACTORS AND CONSULTANTS, AND ANY OF THEM, TO CLIENT AND ANYONE CLAIMING BY, THROUGH OR UNDER CLIENT, FOR ANY AND ALL CLAIMS, LOSSES, COSTS, OR DAMAGES WHATSOEVER ARISING OUT OF, RESULTING FROM OR IN ANY WAY RELATED TO THIS AGREEMENT OR THE WORK PERFORMED BY COLLEGE BOARD PURSUANT TO THIS AGREEMENT FROM ANY CAUSE OR CAUSES, INCLUDED BUT NOT LIMITED TO THE NEGLIGENCE, PROFESSIONAL ERRORS OR OMISSIONS, STRICT LIABILITY OR BREACH OF CONTRACT OR WARRANTY EXPRESS OR IMPLIED OF COLLEGE BOARD OR COLLEGE

Client agrees and acknowledges that all intellectual property provided under or pertaining to this Agreement, including, but not limited to, any College Board publications, College Board website(s), CD-ROMs, videos, examinations, and all items contained therein, including all copies thereof, all data and score reports and any parts thereof, all copyrights, trademarks, trade secrets, patents, and other similar proprietary rights are the sole and exclusive property of College Board. College Board's obligation to furnish the Services shall be suspended (or reduced, as applicable) during the period and to the extent that provision of the Services is disrupted by the Force Majeure Event, without such suspension or disruption constituting a material breach of its obligations under this Agreement.

9.3 Governing Law and Choice of Forum. This Agreement shall be construed in accordance with the terms and conditions set forth in this Agreement and the law of the State of New York without regard to choice or conflict of laws principles that would cause the application of any other laws. Any dispute or controversy arising out of or relating to this Agreement or otherwise shall be determined by a court of competent jurisdiction in New York County, New York State (or the Federal Court otherwise having territorial jurisdiction over such County and subject matter jurisdiction over the dispute), and not elsewhere, subject only to the authority of the Court in question to order changes of venue; provided, however, that prior to the instigation of any such action (other than an action for equitable relief) a meeting shall be held at a mutually agreed upon location, attended by individuals with decision-making authority to attempt in good faith to negotiate a resolution of the dispute. 9.8 Survival. It is agreed that certain obligations of the parties under this Agreement, which, by their nature would continue beyond the termination, cancellation, or expiration of this Agreement, shall survive termination, cancellation, or expiration of this Agreement, including without limitation, payment, ownership of intellectual property, representations and warranties, limitation of liability, confidential and proprietary information, indemnification, term and termination, and Section 9 (Miscellaneous) herein.

9.9 Amendment; Waiver. Any provision of this Agreement may be amended or waived if, and only if, such amendment or waiver is in writing and signed, in the case of an amendment, by the parties, or in the case of a waiver, by the party against whom the waiver is to be effective. No failure or delay by any party in exercising any right, power, or privilege hereunder shall operate as a waiver thereof nor shall any single or partial exercise thereof or the exercise of any other right, power, or privilege. Except as otherwise provided herein, the rights and remedies herein provided shall be cumulative and not exclusive of any rights or remedies provided by law.

9.10 Severability. The provisions of this Agreement shall be deemed severable and the invalidity or unenforceability of any provision shall not affect the validity or enforceability of the other provisions hereof. If any provision of this Agreement, or the application thereof to any person or entity or any circumstance, is invalid or unenforceable, (a) a suitable and equitable provision shall be substituted therefor in order to carry out so far as may be valid and enforceable provision and (b) the remainder of this Agreement and the application of such provision to other persons, entities, or circumstances shall not be affected by such invalidity or unenforceability, nor shall such invalidity or unenforceability affect the validity or enforceability of such provision, or the application thereof, in any other jurisdiction.

9.11 Order of Precedence. In the event of conflict between the terms and conditions of any Schedule and this Agreement the terms and conditions of the Schedule shall prevail. The parties acknowledge and agree that each shall construe the terms, covenants, and conditions set forth in this Agreement, including each Schedule, as consistent with one another insofar as possible, so as to give effect to the fullest extent possible to each particular clause. Client shall remit any required Client-issued purchasing documents such as a contract or purchase order prior to the scheduled delivery of any Services to ensure prompt payment for Services received under this Agreement ("Client Purchase Order"). Notwithstanding anything to the contrary, the parties hereby acknowledge and agree that the Client Purchase Order shall be subject to the terms and conditions of this Agreement and this Agreement shall supersede any terms and conditions included in the Client Purchase Order; and further, Client understands that College Board is accepting the Client Purchase Order solely to effectuate payment but does not agree to accept any terms and conditions included in the Client Purchase Order. Client acknowledges and agrees that if Client is required to provide a Client Purchase Order, College Board may delay and/or withhold furnishing Services if Client fails to issue the Client Purchase Order for such Services, as applicable, prior to the scheduled delivery date for such Services.

9.12 Headings. Headings contained in this Agreement are for reference purposes only. They shall not affect in any way the meaning or interpretation of this Agreement.

9.13 Integration, Execution and Delivery. This Agreement includes the Schedules attached hereto and constitutes the entire agreement between College Board and Client and supersedes all prior written or oral understandings, bids, offers, negotiations, or communications of every kind concerning the subject matter of this Agreement, including any Client Purchase Order. No course of dealing between parties and no usage of trade shall be relevant to supplement any term used in this Agreement. Acceptance or acquiescence in a course of performance rendered under this Agreement shall not be relevant to determine the meaning of this Agreement and no waiver by a party of any right under this Agreement shall prejudice that party's exercise of that right in the future. This Agreement may be executed through signatures to any number of counterparts, each of which shall be deemed an original, which together will constitute one Agreement. Delivery of an executed counterpart of this Agreement by electronic transmission, including through Docusign, shall be equally as effective as delivery of an original executed counterpart of this Agreement. Any party delivering an executed counterpart of this Agreement by electronic transmission also shall deliver an original executed counterpart of this Agreement (except if the parties are using Docusign), but the failure to deliver an original executed counterpart shall not affect the validity, enforceability, and binding effect of this Agreement. Terms and Conditions

Institution is providing funding for certain test takers to take the College Level Examination Program® (CLEP®) exams.

By completing this CLEP Voucher Order Form ("Purchase Order"), Institution ("Customer" or "You") is entering into a binding contract with College Board for the purchase of CLEP and accepts these Terms and Conditions. You will comply with these Terms and Conditions which incorporates and supplements the Legal Terms for Educators and Institutions (https://privacy.collegeboard.org/educator-legal-terms?navId=gf-edterms). In the event there is a conflict or inconsistency between these Terms and Conditions and other purchasing documents between College Board and Customer relating to CLEP, these Terms and Conditions shall control; provided, however, in case Customer acquires CLEP pursuant a separate written agreement with College Board, including College Board's College Readiness Agreement, the terms of that written agreement shall control to the extent of any conflict.

CLEP Program Overview. College Board's CLEP Program is a credit-by-examination program that allows students to earn college credit by demonstrating college-level mastery of any of the 34 CLEP subjects. The credit-granting score and credit awarded for successful scores on each exam varies by institution and is determined by each college or university. CLEP does not guarantee a minimum credit award at any institution.

Ordering. Only complete and accurate orders will be processed. Vouchers will be delivered according to the timelines specified in the Purchase Order.

Voucher Codes. College Board shall furnish Customer with the specified number of voucher codes. Customer is responsible for distributing voucher codes to test takers and ensuring that test takers register for the correct exam(s). All unused voucher codes will expire on the date specified in the Order Form or June 30 of the current academic year (whichever occurs first).

Registration. Individual test takers must register for CLEP exams using the College Board's My CLEP Student Registration Portal. During the registration process, a CLEP voucher will be used in lieu of credit or debit card payment. Upon successful completion of the registration process, the voucher will be considered used. A test taker will then have up to six months or until the expiration date specified in the order form or June 30 of the current academic year (whichever occurs first) to take the CLEP exam for which he or she has registered. After that time, the registration will expire.

Test administration. CLEP vouchers do not restrict testing location, and registered candidates can test at any authorized CLEP test center. Customer understands and agrees that all CLEP testing is also subject to the terms and conditions located in the CLEP Test Administrator Handbook, a copy of which is available in the CLEP eLearning platform, which provides the training to become a certified test center administrator.

Student Score Reports. Test takers' scores are available for high school and school district purchasers only and must be accessed through the My CLEP Professional Portal (https://myclep.collegeboard.org/). If College Board furnishes a score report for the students participating using the voucher codes issued pursuant to the Purchase Order, then the College Board hereby grants the Customer a limited, nonexclusive, nontransferable, non-assignable right to access and use the student score reports and individual student data (collectively,"Student Data") for internal purposes only. Customer shall keep the Student Data confidential and may not use or distribute the Student Data externally or to third parties other than the student without the express written consent of the College Board.

Payment. The fee for each CLEP exam and each remote proctoring session (if applicable) is published on the CLEP website at https://clep.collegeboard.org/register-for-an-exam. All fees are payable within 30 days of the invoice date.

Ownership of Intellectual Property. College Board is the exclusive owner of all rights in and to the CLEP examination, all individual test items (questions) and all data collected therefrom, including but not limited to, all personally identifiable information collected under the registration and administration of the exam. In addition, the College Board is the exclusive owner of CLEP and the related publications and reports, including all copyrights, trademarks, trade secrets, patents, and other similar proprietary rights, and all renewals and extensions thereof (collectively, "College Board Intellectual Property"). Customer acknowledges and agrees that nothing in the Purchase Order, including these Terms and Conditions, shall be interpreted to indicate that the College Board is passing its proprietary rights in and to College Board Intellectual Property to Customer. Copying, disseminating or posting any CLEP material on an internal or external website, including social media sites, is a breach of these Terms and Conditions. Nothing in these Terms and Conditions is intended to diminish or interfere with student rights in their assessment data.

General Disclaimer. COLLEGE BOARD MAKES NO WARRANTIES WHATSOEVER AND PROVIDES CLEP ON AN "AS IS" AND "AS AVAILABLE" BASIS. COLLEGE BOARD HEREBY DISCLAIMS ALL OTHER WARRANTIES, WHETHER EXPRESS, IMPLIED, OR STATUTORY, INCLUDING, WITHOUT LIMITATION, ANY IMPLIED WARRANTY OF MERCHANTABILITY, FITNESS FOR A PARTICULAR PURPOSE, AND NON-INFRINGEMENT OF THIRD- PARTY RIGHTS. COLLEGE BOARD DOES NOT WARRANT THE OPERATION OF THE DELIVERABLES TO BE UNINTERRUPTED OR ERROR-FREE OR THAT ALL DEFICIENCIES OR ERRORS ARE CAPABLE OF BEING CORRECTED. FURTHERMORE, COLLEGE BOARD DOES NOT WARRANT OR MAKE ANY REPRESENTATIONS REGARDING THE USE OF CLEP OR THE RESULTS OBTAINED THEREFROM OR THAT CLEP WILL SATISFY CLIENT'S REQUIREMENTS.

Limitation of Liability. TO THE EXTENT PERMITTED BY LAW, THE TOTAL LIABILITY, IN THE AGGREGATE, OF COLLEGE BOARD AND ITS OFFICERS, TRUSTEES, PARTNERS, EMPLOYEES, AGENTS AND COLLEGE BOARD'S SUBCONTRACTORS AND CONSULTANTS, AND ANY OF THEM, TO CLIENT AND ANYONE CLAIMING BY, THROUGH OR UNDER CLIENT, FOR ANY AND ALL CLAIMS, LOSSES, COSTS, OR DAMAGES WHATSOEVER ARISING OUT OF, RESULTING FROM OR IN ANY WAY RELATED TO THE PURCHASE ORDER OR THE WORK PERFORMED BY COLLEGE BOARD PURSUANT TO THE PURCHASE ORDER FROM ANY CAUSE OR CAUSES, INCLUDED BUT NOT LIMITED TO THE NEGLIGENCE, PROFESSIONAL ERRORS OR OMISSIONS, STRICT LIABILITY OR BREACH OF CONTRACT OR WARRANTY EXPRESS OR IMPLIED OF COLLEGE BOARD OR COLLEGE BOARD'S OFFICERS, TRUSTEES, PARTNERS, EMPLOYEES, AGENTS, SUBCONTRACTORS OR CONSULTANTS OR ANY OF THEM, SHALL NOT EXCEED THE ACTUAL AMOUNT PAID TO COLLEGE BOARD UNDER THIS PURCHASE ORDER FOR THE SPECIFIC EXAM SUBJECT TO THE DAMAGES CLAIM.

IN NO EVENT SHALL EITHER PARTY, THEIR AFFILIATES OR THEIR SUBCONTRACTORS BE LIABLE FOR ANY SPECIAL, INCIDENTAL, INDIRECT, CONSEQUENTIAL, EXEMPLARY, OR PUNITIVE DAMAGES (INCLUDING, BUT NOT LIMITED TO, ANY DAMAGES FOR LOSS OF PROFITS OR SAVINGS, LOSS OF USE, BUSINESS INTERRUPTION OR THE LIKE), EVEN IF SUCH PARTY HAS BEEN ADVISED OF THE POSSIBILITY OF SUCH DAMAGES.

Arbitration. Other than disputes involving infringement of College Board's intellectual property rights, all disputes against College Board and/or any or all of its contractors, that relate in any way to registering for or taking a CLEP exam, including but not limited to requesting or receiving test accommodations, score reporting, and the use of test taker data, shall exclusively be resolved by a single arbitrator through binding, individual arbitration administered by the American Arbitration Association ("AAA"), under the AAA Consumer Arbitration Rules in effect at the time a request for arbitration is filed with the AAA. Copies of the AAA Rules can be located at www.adr.org. Unless the parties mutually agree otherwise, the seat and the place of the arbitration shall be New York, New York. The parties agree that the Federal Arbitration Act ("FAA"), 9 U.S.C. § 1 et seq. governs this provision, and it is the intent of the parties that the FAA shall pre-empt all State laws to the fullest extent permitted by law. No arbitration may be maintained as a class action, and the arbitrator shall not have the authority to combine or aggregate the disputes of more than one individual, conduct any class proceeding, make any class award, or make an award to any person or entity not a party to the arbitration, without the express written consent of College Board. By agreeing to arbitration in accordance with this section, you are waiving your right to have your dispute heard by a judge or jury. Each party will be responsible for its own fees and expenses incurred in connection with the arbitration, regardless of its outcome. For purposes of this provision, each College Board contractor is a third-party beneficiary of this section, is entitled to the rights and benefits hereunder, and may enforce the provisions hereof as if it were a party hereto.

Governing Law; Severability.
If permitted by applicable law, this Agreement shall be construed under the laws of the State of New York. In the event that any provision of this Agreement is deemed invalid or unenforceable, the other provisions of this Agreement shall continue in full force and effect.

Relationship of the Parties. The relationship of the Customer and College Board is that of independent contractors. Neither party nor their employees are partners, agents, employees, or joint ventures of the other party. Neither party shall have any authority to bind the other party to any obligation by contract or otherwise. College Board, its employees, and agents shall not be considered employees of the Client while performing the services and will not be entitled to fringe benefits normally accruing to employees of the Customer. Customer and College Board recognize and agree that College Board is an independent contractor.

If the Customer is using federal funds to pay for all or a portion of the CLEP exams, Customer acknowledges and agrees that College Board shall not be categorized as a "subrecipient" receiving a federal award as defined by OMB Circular Subpart A.210(c) of Circular No. A-133. College Board shall be defined as a "vendor" that provides good and services within normal business operations, provides similar goods or services to other purchasers and operates in a competitive environment. Customer acknowledges and agrees that the substance of the relationship with College Board is that of a vendor not a subrecipient.

During the performance of this contract, the contractor agrees as follows:

(1) The contractor will not discriminate against any employee or applicant for employment because of race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, or national origin. The contractor will take affirmative action to ensure that applicants are employed, and that employees are treated during employment without regard to their race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, or national origin. Such action shall include, but not be limited to the following:
Employment, upgrading, demotion, or transfer; recruitment or recruitment advertising; layoff or termination; rates of pay or other forms of compensation; and selection for training, including apprenticeship. The contractor agrees to post in conspicuous places, available to employees and applicants for employment, notices to be provided setting forth the provisions of this nondiscrimination clause.

(2) The contractor will, in all solicitations or advertisements for employees placed by or on behalf of the contractor, state that all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, or national origin.

(3) The contractor will not discharge or in any other manner discriminate against any employee or applicant for employment because such employee or applicant has inquired about, discussed, or disclosed the compensation of the employee or applicant or another employee or applicant. This provision shall not apply to instances in which an employee who has access to the compensation information of other employees or applicants as a part of such employee's essential job functions discloses the compensation of such other employees or applicants to individuals who do not otherwise have access to such information, unless such disclosure is in response to a formal complaint or charge, in furtherance of an investigation, proceeding, hearing, or action, including an investigation conducted by the employer, or is consistent with the contractor's legal duty to furnish information.

(4) The contractor will send to each labor union or representative of workers with which he has a collective bargaining agreement or other contract or understanding, a notice to be provided advising the said labor union or workers' representatives of the contractor's commitments under this section, and shall post copies of the notice in conspicuous places available to employees and applicants for employment.

(5) The contractor will comply with all provisions of Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965, and of the rules, regulations, and relevant orders of the Secretary of Labor.

(6) The contractor will furnish all information and reports required by Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965, and by rules, regulations, and orders of the Secretary of Labor, or pursuant thereto, and will permit access to his books, records, and accounts by the administering agency and the Secretary of Labor for purposes of investigation to ascertain compliance with such rules, regulations, and orders.

(7) In the event of the contractor's noncompliance with the nondiscrimination clauses of this contract or with any of the said rules, regulations, or orders, this contract may be canceled, terminated, or suspended in whole or in part and the contractor may be declared ineligible for further Government contracts or federally assisted construction contracts in accordance with procedures authorized in Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965, and such other sanctions may be imposed and remedies invoked as provided in Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965, or by rule, regulation, or order of the Secretary of Labor, or as otherwise provided by law.

(8) The contractor will include the portion of the sentence immediately preceding paragraph (1) and the provisions of paragraphs (1) through (8) in every subcontract or purchase order unless exempted by rules, regulations, or orders of the Secretary of Labor issued pursuant to section 204 of Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965, so that such provisions will be binding upon each subcontractor or vendor. The contractor will take such action with respect to any subcontract or purchase order as the administering agency may direct as a means of enforcing such provisions, including sanctions for noncompliance:

Provided, however, that in the event a contractor becomes involved in, or is threatened with, litigation with a subcontractor or vendor as a result of such direction by the administering agency, the contractor may request the United States to enter into such litigation to protect the interests of the United States.

c. The Contractor shall require that the language of this certification be included in the award documents for all contractors and that all subcontractors shall certify and disclose accordingly.

ADDENDUM I
ADVANCED ACADEMIC PROGRAMS

ADDENDUM DATE: September 30, 2025

BUYER: Jay Garrison, CPPO, CPPB

THE FOLLOWING IS TO BE AMENDED:

ATTACHMENT A, COST, WILL BE DELETED AND REPLACED WITH A NEW COST SHEET. SEE ATTACHED. FAILURE TO PROVIDE THE REVISED COST SHEET AND ALL REQUIRED ITEMS WILL BE JUST CAUSE TO DEEM YOUR SUBMITTAL AS NONRESPONSIVE.

SECTION 3.4 SHALL BE AMENDED TO THE FOLLOWING:

AWARD LENGTH: Knox County intends to issue a one (1) year award with an option to renew upon consent of both Knox County and the awarded Contractor. This term bid agreement may be renewed for an additional four (4) years, one (1) year at a time for a possible total of five (5) years. Knox County reserves the right to revoke the award if a pattern of unavailability arises with the successful proposer(s).

SECTION 3.29 SHALL BE AMENDED TO THE FOLLOWING:

PRICING: The proposer(s) warrants that the unit price stated shall remain firm for a period of twelve (12) months from the first day of the Contract period. If the Contractor's price is increased after the first contract period, Knox County must be given a written notice to consider. Such a request shall include as a minimum, (1) the cause for the adjustment; (2) the amount of the change requested with documentation to support the requested adjustment. Price increases will only be considered at the renewal period(s). If the price increase is rejected the contractor may:

- Continue with the existing prices;
- Request a lower price increase;
- Not accept the renewal offer.

If a price increase is approved by Knox County, the approval notification will be done in writing and the Contractor will be notified of the new price schedule and effective date of increase. This documentation will become part of the proposal file. No approvals will be authorized verbally.

THE FOLLOWING IS FOR CLARIFICATION:

QUESTION 1: Could you please clarify whether the accrediting organization that issues any certifications to students must be Tennessee-based, or if national accreditation is acceptable?

ANSWER 1: National accreditation is acceptable.

QUESTION 2: We understand that Knox County intends to draft the contract. As a global provider of specialist exam services, we typically begin with a bespoke contract template that includes essential terms specific to our services—such as exam security protocols—which may not be covered in a standard agreement. This template has been successfully used as a starting point with many U.S. districts. For efficiency during the contracting phase, would Knox County be amenable to reviewing and potentially using our template as the basis for the agreement?

ANSWER 2: The County's Contract will take precedence over all other Contract documents. Proposers may submit a separate document with other terms and conditions, however, conflicting terms and conditions between the County's Contract and any other agreement will be governed by the County's Contract.

QUESTION 3: The RFP references Exhibit B as a sample contract, but it appears to be missing from the document. Could you kindly provide a copy?

ANSWER 3: See attached.

QUESTION 4: The RFP requests fixed pricing for the initial 36-month term. We typically offer fixed pricing with an annual inflationary adjustment. Could you advise on how Knox County would prefer suppliers to address inflationary increases in their proposals?

ANSWER 4: Knox County is amending this requirement to require fixed pricing for a period of 12 months from the date of contract commencement. No cost increases will be granted during any term of the contract.

QUESTION 5: Could you please clarify what is meant by "unit price" in this context? Is it intended to refer to pricing per student, per exam, per school, or another metric?

ANSWER 5: This requirement has been amended per the revised Cost sheet. See attached.

QUESTION 6: We have reviewed the Appendix C insurance requirements. Because we are an entity headquartered in the UK, we may not be able to comply with all of these requirements. Where we may need derogations e.g. it may not be possible to name you as an additional insured, how should we indicate this?

ANSWER 6: This requirement cannot be waived. The County must be named additionally insured on the policy. Upon a notice of award to a proposer(s), the successful proposer(s) will be required to submit a current Certificate of Insurance along with all endorsement pages naming Knox County as additionally insured.

QUESTION 7: Do you want us to list all the AP courses that Knox has currently bought from us?

ANSWER 7: No. This is a new, standalone solicitation and previous experience with Knox County will not be considered.

QUESTION 8: In regards to samples, we were going to send one copy of each course student edition. Do you require digital access as well?

ANSWER 8: Digital access is not required, but acceptable.

QUESTION 9: Would the district consider an all-digital platform to fulfill this RFP's scope of work?

ANSWER 9: No. The County will not accept an all-digital platform.

QUESTION 10: Can the curriculum be supplemental to the courses or must it be core curriculum?

ANSWER 10: The curriculum can be supplemental.

End of addendum.

IB Program Description

The International Baccalaureate (IB) is a non-profit foundation headquartered in Geneva, Switzerland, that offers a continuum of four educational programs for students aged 3 to 19. With roots dating back to 1924 at the International School of Geneva, and subsequently founded as an independent non-profit in 1968, the IB's mission is to develop inquiring, knowledgeable, and caring young people who help create a better and more peaceful world through intercultural understanding and respect.

These programs encourage students worldwide to become active, compassionate, and lifelong learners who understand that people with their differences can also be right.

At the heart of all our programs is the IB Learner Profile, a long-term, holistic vision of education that underpins the IB continuum and puts the student at the center of everything we do. The Learner Profile is the IB mission statement in action, providing a set of learning behaviors that aims to inspire, motivate, and focus students, teachers, and the entire IB World School community, uniting them in a common purpose. To complement the Learner Profile are the Approaches to Learning – key skills such as Research, Communication, Self-Management, Social, and Thinking Skills – that serve as the foundation of all IB programming.

What Makes IB Programmes Unique?

Embracing Global Perspectives While Rooted in National Identities

Our commitment to international education begins with the belief that the only way to appreciate someone else's culture is to be confident in your own. This concept is rooted in what we call "international mindedness," a concept that encourages individuals to recognize their common humanity, shared stewardship of resources, and their responsibility to create a better and more peaceful world. International mindedness involves developing a deep understanding of different cultures, perspectives, and worldviews, while also appreciating and affirming one's own cultural heritage and identity.

The international mindedness that permeates our programs is more than simply learning an additional language, which is a key aspect of all our programs. For example, in biology, students might learn about typhoid bacteria but also their impact on life expectancy in a developing country. Students learning about the history of their town or region may examine the broader context of history and the effects of specific global events.

International mindedness is a multifaceted concept that captures a way of thinking, being, and acting characterized by an openness to the world and a recognition of our deep interconnectedness with others. To be open to the world, we need to understand it. IB programs, therefore, provide students with opportunities for sustained inquiry into a range of local and global issues and ideas. This willingness to see beyond immediate situations and boundaries is essential as the global economy and emerging technologies, such as artificial intelligence, continue to blur traditional distinctions between the local, national, and international levels. An IB education fosters international mindedness by helping students reflect on their own perspective, culture, and identities, as well as those of others. By engaging with diverse beliefs, values, and experiences, and by learning to think and collaborate across cultures and disciplines, IB learners gain the understanding necessary to make progress towards a more peaceful world.

The IB further enhances the development of international mindedness through multilingualism. All IB programs require students to study, or study in, more than one language. This is because we believe that communicating in more than one language helps students appreciate that their own language, culture, and worldview are just one of many. In this way, it provides excellent opportunities to develop intercultural understanding and respect. Additionally, decades of peer-reviewed research reinforce the benefits of bilingualism for students. Bilingual education offers cognitive benefits, such as enhanced problem-solving skills and greater cognitive flexibility, while also providing practical advantages, including improved career opportunities and heightened cultural awareness in an increasingly interconnected world.

IB Learning Across Programs

The IB integrates deep and rigorous learning across all its four programs, fostering communication, critical thinking, research, skill application to real-world problems, and intercultural understanding. Here's an overview of IB programmes alongside the language components offered with samples for each grade band.

Primary Years Programme (PYP): The International Baccalaureate (IB) PYP is an educational framework for students aged 3 to 12. Unlike the MYP or DP, it is not a program with set courses and external exams but a curriculum organizer and philosophy that guides the entire school's approach to learning.

Core Philosophy

The PYP is a transdisciplinary, inquiry-based, and student-centered approach. It focuses on the development of the "whole child" — intellectually, personally, emotionally, and socially. A central principle is student agency, where students are viewed as agents of their own learning, with a voice, a choice, and ownership over their education.

Key Components – Primary Years Programme (PYP)

- Transdisciplinary Themes: Learning is organized around six universal themes of global significance, which transcend traditional subject boundaries. These themes provide the framework for units of inquiry and include:
    - Who we are
    - Where we are in place and time
    - How we express ourselves
    - How the world works
    - How we organize ourselves
    - Sharing the planet
- Key Concepts: The program is driven by key concepts that give inquiries direction and meaning. These concepts, such as Form, Function, Causation, Change, Connection, Perspective, and Responsibility, help students develop a deeper, more transferable understanding of topics.
- Subject Areas: While the learning is transdisciplinary, it is supported by six traditional subject areas: Language, Social Studies, Mathematics, Science, Arts, and Personal, Social and Physical Education.
- The Learner Profile: A core set of 10 attributes that all IB programs aim to develop in students, including being an inquirer, a thinker, a communicator, and principled.
- Action: The PYP encourages students to take action as a result of their learning. This can be as simple as making a new choice or as complex as a community service project, demonstrating that learning is connected to life and social responsibility.

- The PYP Exhibition: In their final year of the PYP (usually Grade 5), students collaborate on a whole-class project. This culminating activity challenges them to apply their knowledge and skills to a real-world issue and present their findings and proposed solutions.

Language Learning in the PYP

- Focus: Developing early language skills and literacy through play-based activities and exploration across various languages.
- Sample: In a PYP unit on "Families," students might learn basic greetings in different languages, sing songs, and write simple stories about their families.

Middle Years Programme (MYP): The International Baccalaureate (IB) Middle Years Programme (MYP) is a curriculum framework designed for students aged 11 to 16. It serves as a bridge between the inquiry-based learning of the IB Primary Years Programme (PYP) and the academic rigor of the IB Diploma Programme (DP) and Career-related Programme (CP). The MYP is not a set of specific courses but rather a flexible framework that can be integrated with national or local curricula.

Key Components

The MYP is built on several core principles and components:

- Broad and Balanced Curriculum: Students are required to study a broad range of subjects across eight groups: Language and Literature, Language Acquisition, Individuals and Societies, Sciences, Mathematics, Arts, Physical and Health Education, and Design. Students must have at least 50 hours of instruction in each subject group per year.
- Interdisciplinary Learning: The program encourages students to make connections between their subjects and the real world. This is achieved through a focus on Global Contexts (such as "identities and relationships" and "globalization and sustainability") and through interdisciplinary units where teachers from different subjects collaborate.
- Approaches to Learning (ATL): A central tenet of the MYP is teaching students how to learn. The ATL skills, which include communication, research, thinking, social, and self-management skills, are explicitly taught and applied across all subject areas.
- Service as Action: Students are empowered to apply what they learn in the classroom to make a positive impact in their community. This component encourages students to become responsible and caring global citizens.
- Projects: Students engage in long-term, self-directed projects:
    - Community Project: Students in grades 8-9 (MYP Years 3-4) complete this project, which focuses on community service.
    - Personal Project: Students in the final year of the MYP (Year 5) undertake an independent, creative project on a topic of their choice. This project is a summative review of their learning and their ATL skills.
- Assessment: The MYP uses a criterion-based assessment model, meaning students are assessed on what they can do rather than being ranked against their peers. In the final year, students have the option to take external, on-screen e-assessments that can lead to an official IB MYP Certificate.

The MYP aims to prepare students for academic success, future careers, and a lifetime of learning by fostering intellectual curiosity, critical thinking, and a holistic approach to their personal and social development.

Language Learning in the MYP

- Focus: Expanded skills promoting intercultural understanding through subject-specific language learning, global contexts exploration, and interdisciplinary learning.
- Language A: Students study their first language (e.g., English, French) in depth, focusing on literature, communication skills, and cultural awareness.
- Language B: Students learn a second language, emphasizing communication in real-world situations and cultural understanding.
- Sample: In a MYP Language and Literature unit on "A Good Question," students might explore the ways in which we discover and express ideas through the exchange of communication. Students practice developing questions for thinking about what they will read. Students actively listen to other perspectives and ideas.

Diploma Programme (DP): The International Baccalaureate (IB) Diploma Programme (DP) is a rigorous, two-year educational framework for students aged 16 to 19. It is designed to prepare students for success at university and beyond by providing a broad, balanced, and academically challenging curriculum. The program aims to develop well-rounded individuals who are not only knowledgeable but also critical thinkers, globally-minded, and compassionate.

To earn the full diploma, students must successfully complete three core components in addition to their subject courses. These core elements are:

- Theory of Knowledge (TOK): A course that encourages students to reflect on the nature of knowledge, asking questions like "How do we know what we claim to know?"
- Creativity, Activity, Service (CAS): An experiential learning component that requires students to engage in projects and activities outside the classroom to foster personal growth, self-reflection, and community awareness.
- Extended Essay (EE): An independent, self-directed research project resulting in a 4,000-word academic paper. This component is designed to prepare students for the type of research they will be expected to do in a university setting.

The DP curriculum also requires students to choose six subjects from six different subject groups. Most subjects can be taken at either a Standard Level (SL) or a Higher Level (HL), with HL courses requiring a greater depth of study. This structure ensures that students gain both a breadth of knowledge across different disciplines and a deep understanding of subjects that align with their personal interests.

The DP is internationally recognized and is highly valued by universities for its emphasis on critical thinking, time management, and independent research skills. Research has shown that IB students often have higher college acceptance rates, are more likely to attend top universities, and have a higher persistence rate in their college studies compared to their peers.

Language Learning in the DP

- Focus: Deepening college preparedness, language proficiency and exploring literature in diverse contexts through two language courses:

- Language A: Literature: In-depth study of literature and literary analysis, focusing on a specific language and cultural context.
- Language A: Language and Literature: Balanced study of language acquisition and literary analysis, allowing flexibility in language choice.
- Literature and Performance: Exploration of literature through performance and creative expression, available in English, Spanish, and French.
- Language B: Continued development of communication skills and cultural understanding in a second language.
- Sample: In a DP Language A: Literature course, students might analyze Shakespearean plays, write creative responses, and participate in class discussions about historical and cultural contexts.

Career-related Programme (CP): The International Baccalaureate (IB) Career-related Programme (CP) is an educational framework designed for students aged 16 to 19 who wish to engage in career-related learning. It is specifically created to bridge the gap between academic rigor and practical, real-world relevance.

The CP is a three-part framework consisting of:

- A minimum of two IB Diploma Programme (DP) courses: Students choose these to provide the theoretical foundation and academic rigor for their chosen career path.
- Career-related study (CRS): This is a set of vocational or career-focused courses, often provided by a local college, technical school, or through an apprenticeship. This part of the program provides hands-on, practical learning and is chosen by the school to align with local industry needs.
- The CP Core: This is what makes the CP a truly unique and holistic program. The core helps students develop personal qualities and professional skills for lifelong learning. It is comprised of four components:
- Personal and Professional Skills (PPS): A course that helps students develop skills in communication, critical thinking, ethics, and collaboration.
- Reflective Project (RP): An in-depth research project on an ethical dilemma related to the student's career-related study.
- Language and Cultural Studies (LCS): Ensures students gain exposure to a second language and develop an understanding of different cultures.
- Community Engagement: Provides opportunities for students to apply their knowledge and skills to meet a community need through service learning.

Benefits

The CP is highly flexible and prepares students for a variety of post-secondary pathways, including:

- Direct employment or apprenticeships
- Further education
- Higher education (university)
- Universities worldwide recognize the CP as a valuable qualification that equips students with transferable skills in applied knowledge, critical thinking, and communication, making them well-rounded and resilient learners.

Language Learning in the CP

- Focus: Combining academic language learning with practical application in real-world career contexts.
- Language A: Similar to the DP options, emphasizing communication skills relevant to chosen career paths.
- Language B: Similar to the DP and MYP options, with additional emphasis on communication skills relevant to chosen career paths.
- Sample: In a CP Language A course for students interested in hospitality, students might write menus, conduct mock interviews, and role-play guest interactions in different languages.

Continuum of Learning: IB components build upon each other, creating a progression of skills and knowledge. Students move from basic literacy and communication in the PYP to deeper analysis and research in the MYP and DP/CP. This continuum prepares students for the rigors of college, language learning, effective communication in various contexts, and success in college, career, and a global world and economy.

Last, international mindedness is also encouraged through a focus on global engagement and service/service learning with the community. Through taking an active role in serving one's local community or choosing to engage in national or international service projects, civic engagement/service learning challenges students to critically consider their environment, privilege, and how to help others, and to recognize that we hold this planet, its people, and its resources in trust for future generations. Through service learning, we establish a pedagogical foundation in the IB – student agency. In all of our programs, student agency focuses on moving beyond awareness and understanding to authentic engagement and action in the world around us. Whether that be through our religious faiths, the problems students care about, or the issues that inspire them to learn, student agency and action through service is a key component of the IB.

Independent

The IB and its programs are unique in many ways. We are a not-for-profit organization, which means that there are no shareholders, and any surplus income is reinvested in our work. We are independent of political and commercial interests. We operate in 164 countries and frequently work alongside national educational systems. Most schools, for example, offer the Diploma Programme (DP) alongside other courses, whereas the Primary Years Programme (PYP) and Middle Years Programme (MYP) are flexible enough to incorporate national, state, and local curriculum requirements/standards.

Research-based

Like the world it seeks to improve through education, the IB never stands still. Our programs and curricula evolve and undergo regular review to ensure we deliver the best possible education for IB students. Our vision is continually refined through research, both our own and that of other respected academic bodies.

Innovative and creative educators from different cultural backgrounds play a crucial role in the development of each program. The programs represent good practices from around the world, and the curriculum review process involves practicing teachers, examiners, and education experts.

We are flexible enough to respond to new research and pedagogical studies and engage with expert analysis where appropriate. For example, the IB Career-related Program (CP), our newest qualification, is designed to provide a flexible learning framework that meets the needs of students, the local community, and the world beyond.

Widely recognized

Our programs are recognized globally. Both the DP and CP align with the Early Postsecondary Opportunities (EPSOs) directly, as both programs bring college credit, college readiness, and high college persistence outcomes. Universities and future employers recognize the depth and breadth of the rigorous work undertaken by IB students and often recruit them because of their academic expertise, as well as their broad exposure to studies and service. To complement this breadth, the depth of subject study is not sacrificed. In addition to the 2-year courses covering six subjects, universities welcome the creativity, activity, and service (CAS) requirement; the career-related study component of the CP; the 4,000-word extended essay component in the DP; the 3,000-word ethical analysis of the CP Reflective Project; and all of the other demands, research, analysis, and in-depth study to prepare students for work at university level.

Research by and with universities in Australia, Canada, the United Kingdom, and the United States has demonstrated that IB students are well-prepared for university.

Examples of Courses/Curricular Frameworks and Materials Used

Each of the four IB programs provides a detailed and developmentally appropriate curriculum or curriculum framework that is broad, balanced, conceptual, and connected.

IB programs offer students access to a broad and balanced range of academic studies and learning experiences. They promote conceptual learning, create frameworks within which knowledge can be acquired, and focus on powerful organizing ideas that are relevant across subject areas, helping to integrate learning and add coherence to the curriculum.

The programs emphasize the importance of making connections, exploring the relationships between academic disciplines, and learning about the world in ways that reach beyond the scope of individual subjects. They also focus on offering students authentic opportunities to connect their learning to the world around them.

The four programs are all underpinned by a shared focus on international-mindedness and the development of the attributes of the IB Learner Profile. Yet each program also has its own identity and developmentally appropriate elements, as shown in the following examples.

- In the PYP, learning aims to transcend traditional boundaries between subject areas. Students explore six transdisciplinary themes of global significance: who we are; where we are in place and time; how we express ourselves; how the world works; how we organize ourselves; and sharing the planet.
- In the MYP, students explore six global contexts that extend, the PYP transdisciplinary themes: identities and relationships; personal and cultural expression; orientation in space and time; scientific and technical innovation; fairness and development; globalization and sustainability.
- In the DP, the curriculum consists of six subject groups and the three elements of the DP core. As one of these core elements, the Theory of Knowledge (TOK) course encourages students to become more aware of their own perspectives and assumptions through an exploration of the fundamental question of how we know what we know.
- In the CP, students combine the study of DP courses with career-related studies and the four elements of the CP core. As one of these core elements, the Personal and Professional Skills course focuses on preparing students to effectively navigate a range of personal and professional situations that they may encounter in the workplace.

All four IB programs also require the completion of a culminating project: the Personal Project, the Community Project, the DP Extended Essay, and the Reflective Project. These projects offer students the opportunity to both deepen and showcase their knowledge, understanding, and skills, while celebrating their learning journeys.

Meaningful assessment supports curricular goals. In IB programs, assessment is therefore ongoing, varied, and integral to the curriculum. IB schools use a range of strategies and tools to assess student learning. Emphasis is placed on the importance of analyzing normative assessment data for learning and teaching, and on recognizing that students benefit by learning how to assess their work and the work of others.

The MYP, DP, and CP also offer a range of IB-validated assessments. These assessments strike a balance between validity and reliability, offering assessment tasks that, for example, require students to demonstrate higher-order thinking rather than simple, factual recall. These rigorous assessments help to maintain the IB's hard-earned reputation for high standards and challenging programs.

Assessment Descriptions

Each IB program has unique passing conditions.

PYP

The PYP does not offer a formal assessment. The prime objective of assessment in the PYP is to provide feedback on the learning process. Additionally, the PYP stresses the importance of both student and teacher self-assessment and reflection. Consequently, the PYP can align easily to local, state, or national assessments without adding additional assessment burdens on students.

MYP

The MYP is a five-year program, and schools are authorized to offer at least two years of the MYP. The curriculum framework consists of eight subject groups. The MYP requires at least 50 hours of teaching time for each subject group in each year of the program. All MYP students must also complete a long-term project: the MYP Personal Project. The MYP is similar to the PYP in that there are no mandated assessments conflicting with local or state assessments.

How MYP results are calculated

Candidates at the end of their year-five MYP studies enter the IB external assessment. The outcomes of these assessments are recorded in an MYP course results document. Candidates can choose to:

- do the personal project only, leading to a school certificate, or
- take additional assessments (ePortfolios or on-screen examinations), which can lead to the award of the MYP certificate.

Schools can also issue an MYP record of participation. This is for MYP students who study the program for at least two years and complete the requirements in year three or year four of the MYP. These students are not registered with the IB for any form of assessment. The school-based record of participation is a school-based document, not verified by the IB organization.

The MYP certificate

To achieve the MYP certificate, the student must have participated in the final year of the program, with a recommended period of participation of two years, and:

- Complete either an on-screen assessment or ePortfolio in six subjects consisting of language and literature, language acquisition (or a second language and literature), individuals and societies, mathematics, sciences, and one subject from either arts, physical and health education or design
- Achieve at least a grade of 3 in each of the six subjects
- Complete the on-screen examinations in interdisciplinary assessment and achieve at least a grade 3
- Complete the personal project with at least a grade 3
- Obtain a total of 28 points overall
- Meet the school's expectations for community service.

The optional eAssessment assesses students' knowledge in two different ways:

- ePortfolios of student work in arts, design, and physical and health education, which is then moderated to ensure a consistent global standard
- on-screen examinations (up to two hours in duration) for courses in language and literature, language acquisition, individuals and societies, sciences, mathematics, and interdisciplinary learning.

In addition, the Personal Project is submitted electronically to the IB and moderated.

DP

The diploma points are calculated by adding together the grades achieved from each of the six subjects and the core. Candidates receive a grade of 1-7 for each subject and up to three points for the core elements (EE and TOK). Standard Higher Level (SL) and Higher Level (HL) subjects are equally valued in determining a student's final points. To earn a diploma, students must accumulate at least 24 points and meet the conditions outlined below.

The highest score that a candidate can achieve is 45 points. The maximum points of 45 is obtained from 6 (subjects) times 7 (top grade) plus 3 points from the core.

For TOK and the EE, candidates receive a grade from A to E. The third element of the core, CAS, does not receive a grade. Completion is assessed by the school.

Candidates can earn between zero and three points towards the overall diploma points.

A candidate can only receive an IB Diploma if the following conditions are met:

- CAS requirements are met
- The candidate has achieved at least 24 total points
- A grade has been awarded in all subjects, TOK and the EE
- A grade of at least a 2 has been awarded in all subjects
- The candidate does not have a grade 2 awarded 3 or more times
- The candidate does not have a grade 3 awarded 4 or more times
- The candidate has at least 12 points on HL subjects. (For candidates who register for four HL subjects, the three highest grades count)
- Candidates have at least 9 points on SL subjects. (Candidates who register for two SL subjects must be awarded at least 5 points at SL)

CP

To achieve a CP certificate, a candidate must meet all the following requirements.

- The school has confirmed that the candidate has completed the specified career-related study/career and technical education (CTE) pathway
- The candidate has been awarded a grade of 3 or more in at least two of the DP courses (students can take up to 4 IB courses in the CP to maximize dual enrollment/college credit alongside their CTE)
- The candidate has been awarded at least a D grade for the reflective project
- The school has confirmed that all personal and professional skills, community engagement, and language and cultural studies requirements have been met
- The candidate has not received a penalty for academic misconduct from the Final Award Committee

The IB supports all approved US CTE pathways due to the rigorous state and district processes in place for career and technical education/career-related studies. As long as a district, as the governing authority, approves a CTE, and that CTE is concurrent over 2 years, the CTE meets the standards of the CP.

The IB employs a rigorous system of course audits and external assessments to validate student results, ensuring the fairness, reliability, and international comparability of its diplomas. Here's a breakdown of the key components:

Course Audits:
External moderators: Experienced and qualified IB educators, independent of the schools and students, review and verify all internally assessed coursework (internal assessments, teacher predictions, etc.).

Detailed audit criteria: Moderators assess against established criteria specific to each subject and level (Standard Level or Higher Level). This includes aspects such as content coverage, assessment task design, marking consistency, and the application of the IB Learner Profile.

Feedback and potential adjustments: Moderators provide feedback to schools, and in rare cases, may adjust internal assessment grades based on identified discrepancies. This ensures a standardized and fair evaluation across all IB schools globally.

External Examinations:
Standardized exams, developed and administered by the IB, assess students' knowledge and skills acquired throughout the program in a controlled environment.

Blind marking: Scripts are anonymized and sent to experienced examiners worldwide for independent marking, eliminating potential bias.

Rigorous marking schemes: Detailed mark schemes ensure consistent and objective assessment across all scripts.

Double marking: For most subjects, scripts are marked by two independent examiners, with discrepancies resolved by a senior examiner.

External moderation: Additional checks by experienced examiners ensure consistent application of marking schemes and address any potential concerns.

Validation of Results:
Combined score: Final grades are determined by combining the internally assessed coursework (usually 25-50%) and the external examination (usually 50-75%).

Awarding of diplomas: Students must achieve a minimum overall score and meet specific requirements across different subject groups to be awarded the IB Diploma.

Statistical analysis: The IB conducts regular statistical analyses of results to ensure consistency and identify potential areas for improvement.

Additional Features:
Random sampling: The IB reserves the right to randomly sample student work from any school for further scrutiny, ensuring continued compliance with assessment regulations.

Investigative procedures: Robust procedures exist to investigate allegations of malpractice or irregularities, safeguarding the integrity of the assessment process.

This multi-layered approach guarantees the accuracy, fairness, and global comparability of IB student results, making the IB Diploma a highly recognized and respected qualification worldwide.

Professional Learning & Training

The International Baccalaureate (IB) Professional Development (PD) approach applies questioning, reflection, and action to all professional learning experiences. Through open communication and action-oriented inquiry, IB PD builds on educators' knowledge and shares best practices across diverse experiences. Educators and administrators who complete IB professional development are even better prepared to apply their skills in any cultural or school context, weave significant issues into their work, and care for the whole student in a way that meets the unique needs of today's students while reflecting IB philosophy.

IB's practice-based lifelong learning enables educators to develop new insights into pedagogy and practices, hone skills in curriculum and unit planning, explore new ideas, experiences, and student-centered teaching approaches, apply inquiry-based concepts to real-world cultural contexts, and become reflective practitioners.

Every IB professional learning experience is grounded in the process of social constructivism and actualized through action-oriented inquiry, centered on the learning community and driven by a shared set of design values and principles. Relevant academic research provides a professional context for integrating and applying concepts and skills from other parts of an educator's learning experiences.

IB PD is flexible. Pre-scheduled or on-demand, individualized or peer-to-peer, educators and administrators can access learning experiences through a range of convenient delivery channels, maximizing the power of the IB global community for each educator.

Requested PD workshops: Schools can request a PD event to meet their professional learning needs. These events support schools in meeting authorization and evaluation requirements, providing a collaborative environment for teachers and staff while eliminating or significantly reducing participant travel costs.

- Single-school events are school-requested IB PD events consisting of one or more workshops organized to meet one school's professional development needs. These events can be delivered according to one of the four modes of delivery listed below.
- Multi-school events are school-requested IB PD events that consist of one or more workshops organized to meet the professional development needs of two or more schools located within proximity to one another. These events can be delivered according to one of the four modalities listed below.
- Modes of delivery:
    - Requested face-to-face workshops are delivered in person at a school location or an external venue chosen by the requesting school, subject to IB approval.
    - Requested virtual workshops allow schools to engage in synchronous learning through a dedicated online platform or 'virtual classroom', without the need to attend training at a school facility. Within the virtual classroom, participants engage with the same content and achieve the same learning outcomes as our face-to-face events, led by an approved IB Workshop Leader in a format optimized for virtual delivery.
    - Requested blended workshops combine face-to-face and remote learning approaches and minimize time away from school. This delivery option consists of three hours of asynchronous online learning alongside a two-day face-to-face event.

- Requested online workshops provide educators with an exclusive online workshop offering for their school. These workshops delivered to one school cohort allow closer interaction with online facilitators and therefore offer a more school-specific experience.

Scheduled PD Workshops: IB also sets a schedule of professional development offerings that are open to educators for registration and attendance. Scheduled events are delivered by the IB or one of our official providers.

- Scheduled face-to-face events are organized to meet the training needs of educators throughout the global IB community. They are open for mass participation and take place in a variety of locations according to market needs (including hotels, conference centers, universities, and schools).
- Scheduled online events provide educators with the opportunity to experience the same learning outcomes as face-to-face workshops, but with added flexibility where participants do not need to take time out of school. The workshop is an asynchronous online course with at least one opportunity for live (synchronous) engagement. Participants are a part of a global cohort for the workshop. One event is held monthly with a variety of workshop sessions scheduled.
- Scheduled virtual events allow educators to take part in the same scheduled training usually offered at our face-to-face IB regional events, without traveling or physically attending sessions at a designated venue. Workshops at virtual regional events will be delivered live within a dedicated virtual classroom.

Self-paced learning: Self-paced modules are fully online and asynchronous and can be completed at the educator's own pace.

- Self-paced modules allow educators to access professional development from wherever they want and at their own pace.
- Self-paced modules can be completed and revisited repeatedly. They are generally hyper-focused and cover topics not normally featured in typical IB professional development workshops and events allowing educators to dig deep into areas of their choice.

What is IB professional development?

IB professional development workshops and resources are essential tools to develop both educators and school programmes, however far along a school is on its authorization journey. With multiple modalities and offerings available, IB professional development offers flexibility, affordability, and opportunities for collaboration across school communities.

What are the options for professional development?

Scheduled PD

We set a schedule of professional development offerings that are open for educators to register and attend.

Regional events are scheduled face-to-face training events that are organized to meet the training needs of educators throughout the global IB community. They are open for mass participation and take place in a variety of locations according to market needs (including hotels, conference centres, universities, schools). Regional events are delivered by the IB or one of our official providers.

Online workshop events provide educators with the opportunity to experience the same learning outcomes as face-to-face workshops, but with added flexibility where participants do not need to take time out of school. The workshop is an asynchronous online course with at least one opportunity for live (synchronous) engagement. Participants are a part of a global cohort for the workshop. One event is held monthly with a variety of workshop sessions scheduled.

Regional Virtual events provide the opportunity for educators to take part in the same scheduled training usually on offer at our face-to-face IB regional events, without the need to travel or physically attend sessions at a designated venue. Workshops at virtual regional events will be delivered live within a dedicated virtual classroom. Regional virtual events are delivered by the IB or one of our official providers.

Requested PD

Schools can request an event to meet their professional learning needs. These events support schools in meeting authorization and evaluation requirements, and provide a collaborative environment for teachers and staff, while eliminating or greatly reducing participant travel costs.

Single-School events are school requested IB PD events that consist of one or more workshops organized to meet one school's professional development needs. These events can be delivered according to one of the four modes of delivery listed below.

© International Baccalaureate Organization 2021

Multi-school events are school requested IB PD events that consist of one or more workshops organized to meet the professional development needs of two or more schools located within close proximity to one another. These events can be delivered according to one of the four modalities listed below.

Modes of delivery:

Face to face workshops are delivered in person at a school location or at an external venue chosen by the requesting school, subject to IB approval.

Online workshops provide educators with an exclusive online workshop offering for their own school. These workshops delivered to one school cohort allow closer interaction with online facilitators and therefore offer a more school-specific experience. Online by request achieves the same learning outcomes as our scheduled online events, with workshops led by an approved Online Facilitator.

Virtual workshops allow schools to engage in synchronous learning through a dedicated online platform or 'virtual classroom', without the need to attend training at a school facility. Within the virtual classroom, participants engage with the same content and achieve the same learning outcomes as our face-to-face events, led by an approved IB Workshop Leader in a format optimised for virtual delivery.

Blended workshops combine face-to-face and remote learning approaches (currently available only in the Americas region) and minimize time away from school. This delivery option consists of three hours asynchronous online learning alongside a two-day face-to-face event.

DELIVERY OF SERVICES

The successful Proposer must offer a total program to achieve the objectives outlined in the Scope of Work in this Request for Proposal. The courses/curricular frameworks should encourage and support student content and skill development. Upon completion of the course, the program should provide the option of a rigorous assessment that, upon demonstrated mastery, would result in credit in colleges or universities.

The proposed program must also include professional learning to enhance our employees' skills and/or abilities in research-based instructional practices related to the varied courses/curricular frameworks. The program should support schools to provide equity and rigorous academic performance for all students, as detailed in this RFP.

Proposers must provide comprehensive narrative statements that outline their program's implementation and management plans. This information should fully illustrate how the program will serve to accomplish the work and furnish the deliverables described. Respondents do not need to submit a complete curriculum.

Courses/curricular frameworks for multiple content areas

The International Baccalaureate (IB) offers several programs designed to provide a high-quality, international education to students around the world.

Primary Years Program (PYP): The PYP is designed for students aged 3 to 12, focusing on the development of the whole child. It emphasizes inquiry-based learning, encouraging students to ask questions, explore concepts, and take action in their learning. The PYP framework is organized around six transdisciplinary themes that promote connections across subjects.

Middle Years Program (MYP): The MYP is designed for students aged 11 to 16, providing a framework that encourages students to make connections between their studies and the real world. It emphasizes interdisciplinary learning, critical thinking, and communication skills. The MYP curriculum is organized around eight subject groups and includes a personal project that allows students to explore their interests and develop skills beyond the classroom.

Diploma Programme (DP): The DP is a rigorous pre-university program designed for students aged 16 to 19. It offers a broad and balanced curriculum that includes six subject groups, along with the DP core components: Theory of Knowledge (TOK), Extended Essay (EE), and Creativity, Activity, Service (CAS). The DP aims to develop students who are knowledgeable, reflective, and principled, preparing them for success in higher education and beyond.

Career-related Programme (CP): The CP is designed for students aged 16 to 19 who wish to pursue a career-related education alongside academic studies. It combines academic courses with career-related study and the CP core components: Personal and Professional Skills (PPS), Community Engagement, Language and Cultural Studies, and Reflective Project. The CP aims to develop students who are well-rounded, culturally aware, and prepared for both further education and the workplace.

Each IB program shares a commitment to international-mindedness, inquiry-based learning, and the development of key skills and attributes such as critical thinking, communication, and intercultural understanding. The programs aim to foster lifelong learners who are equipped to contribute positively to their communities and the world.

Rigorous assessments that could culminate in postsecondary credit

Within the IB framework, rigorous assessments that could culminate in postsecondary credit include:

IB DP Exams: At the end of the IB DP, students take examinations in six subject areas. Depending on their scores and the policies of individual colleges and universities, students may receive college credit or advanced standing for their performance on these exams.

IB CP Assessments: The IB CP includes a range of assessments, including examinations, projects, and reflective statements. Depending on the subject areas and assessments completed, students may be eligible for recognition of their achievements by postsecondary institutions.

In both the IB DP and CP, the rigor of the assessments from IB courses is designed to prepare students for success in postsecondary education and beyond. IB assessments are internationally recognized and valued by colleges and universities around the world, although the policies for granting credit may vary among institutions.

Recognition of IB courses across the United States varies among colleges and universities. However, many institutions in the US recognize the rigor and academic quality of IB courses and offer various forms of recognition, including:

- College credit: Some colleges and universities grant college credit or advanced placement to students who have completed IB courses and achieved certain scores on IB exams. The specific score requirements and policies for awarding credit vary by institution and may differ for each IB subject area.
- Advanced standing: In addition to college credit, students who have completed IB courses and exams may receive advanced standing, which allows them to enroll in higher-level courses or skip introductory courses in their major field of study.
- Admissions consideration: Many colleges and universities consider IB coursework and exam results as part of the admissions process. Students who have pursued the full IB Diploma Programme or completed individual IB courses may receive favorable consideration during the admissions review.
- Course equivalencies: Some institutions have established course equivalencies for IB courses, meaning that completion of certain IB courses may fulfill specific college course requirements. These equivalencies are typically outlined in the university's course catalog or transfer credit policies.
- International perspective: Colleges and universities value the international perspective and interdisciplinary approach of the IB curriculum. Completion of IB coursework demonstrates a student's ability to engage in rigorous academic study and prepares them for success in higher education.

States like Florida, Texas, Colorado, and others mandate the acceptance of IB courses for college credit. The recognition of IB courses by universities in Tennessee, as well as in other states and countries, varies depending on the policies of individual institutions. However, many universities in Tennessee and across the United States recognize the rigor and academic quality of IB courses and may offer credit, advanced placement, or other benefits to students who have completed IB coursework or exams. The University of Tennessee accepts both Standard (SL) & Higher-Level (HL) Courses for college credit, as does the University of Memphis, Middle Tennessee State University, and Belmont University. Vanderbilt University accepts most IB HL courses for college credit.

Students need to research IB recognition policies of the colleges and universities they are interested in attending. Many institutions have dedicated admissions or registrar's office staff who can provide information about IB recognition and credit transfer policies. Additionally, students should consult with their high school counselors and college advisors to understand how IB coursework and exams may impact their college admissions and academic plans.

Professional learning for educators to deliver high-quality courses/curricular frameworks Highly experienced IB educators and leaders design, develop, and deliver professional learning experiences for their peers. These facilitators are members of the IB Educator Network (IBEN) and come from a worldwide professional learning community of internationally-minded educators, school leaders, and administrators. English, Spanish, and French are the core languages of IB instruction, with workshops and other learning experiences delivered in schools' languages of instruction, such as Mandarin, Arabic, Turkish, and Japanese.

IB educators and leaders participate in IB's practice-based lifelong learning for many reasons: to develop new insights into pedagogy and practices, to hone skills in curriculum and unit planning, to explore new ideas, experiences, and student-centered teaching, to apply inquiry-based approaches and concepts, to real-world cultural contexts, and to become reflective practitioners.

IB offers a robust selection of learning experiences and services for every point of the professional journey. Enhancing practical relevance, delivering a more integrative experience, and offering collaborative, team-based activities online and in person, IB develops educators who bridge the worlds of scholarship and practice.

Consistency of the professional learning experience is ensured through a global architecture and continuous improvement through a robust quality assurance framework. The IB is devoted to inclusivity and responds to the full diversity of participant needs. This includes language, culture, age, and geography, as well as learning styles, degrees of IB experience, and access to and fluency with technology.

IB ensures that training enables both teachers and leaders to examine teaching and learning through the lens of inclusive and equitable education. Training centers around helping educators develop a sense of belonging, participation, and engagement of all students by removing barriers to learning. All workshops build this into their core through IB values and principles and specialized workshops dig deeper into these areas.

When workshops conclude, surveys assess workshop facilitators' capabilities, content quality, and overall satisfaction with the learning experience. This evaluation system engages participants in observation, analysis, and reflection about the learning experience and helps IB ensure quality, consistency, and continuous improvement.

Training/professional learning about the services & supports included in the program

The IB offers a wide range of PD options for educators and leaders. Workshops are delivered through four different methods: face-to-face, online, virtual, and a 'blended' method combining remote and face-to-face learning to better accommodate the diverse needs of both educators and schools, for flexibility and broader access.

All workshops are facilitated by passionate and knowledgeable leaders with extensive experience in teaching IB programs. They serve as a powerful tool to ensure schools meet the professional development requirements that guarantee stronger program implementation and positive student outcomes.

IB PD workshops are organized in three different categories, each addressing specific professional development goals for educators and leaders worldwide.

- Category 1 workshops are focused on philosophy and implementation. These workshops are great for educators who are new to the IB, if you are familiar with the IB program structure but would like greater confidence before teaching a course, or if you've inherited a course and need to review the subject content to suit your style and expertise.
- Category 2 covers delivery of the four IB programs. These workshops are perfect for enhancing your understanding of assessment in IB programs, in making connections between program frameworks and classroom practice, and for the discussion and analysis of standards and practices.
- Category 3 builds on and enhances professional development portfolios, great for educators who would like to delve deeper into topic areas or master a particular subject. Category 3 workshops are suitable for all educators, regardless of whether or not they teach IB programs.

Making the PYP happen: Implementing agency

Version 1: January 2019

International Baccalaureate Baccalauréat International Bachillerato Internacional

Dear Workshop Leaders,

PYP professional development

The aim of PYP professional development is to create and support a culture of teacher quality and growth for all PYP educators and leaders. This workshop is based on the belief that all participants will bring a level of expertise. While this expertise is to be valued and utilized, the aim of this workshop is also to challenge the way content is viewed – its role and its position within learning and teaching. There is no need for the Workshop Leader to be the 'expert' on the topic, rather, the Workshop Leader is to act as the facilitator for everyone to grow in their own expertise. Throughout this workshop, participants will undertake a personal inquiry into philosophy and practices, critically engage with professional literature and support fellow workshop participants to reflect on and refine learning and teaching. The intention is for participants to co-construct and create understanding of the workshop.

The purpose of each workshop is aligned with the goals and objectives identified in the global architecture and linked to the quality assurance surveys completed by workshop participants to promote consistency in high-quality professional development offerings across all IB regions. (A copy of the participant survey is available on the WRC.)

Learners at the centre

Research into the IB teacher professional revealed that IB teachers believe being a learner themselves is as important as being knowledgeable about teaching, their content area and the world. Being a thinker, a problem solver, caring and being aware of diverse cultures and global issues motivates them to educate the whole child. They value flexibility to design effective instructional activities based on the needs of their students and the context of their school and the ability to use professional judgement to form their teaching practice.

To support and extend these attributes, perspectives and beliefs, this workshop is designed so you can help participants build teaching capabilities. This allows the workshop to be more personalised often offering context based self-directed learning, supporting teacher performance and accomplishment. You'll find that the capabilities, derived from the IB approaches to teaching, have related pedagogical content knowledge, understandings and skills in PYP: From principles into practice.

Materials

The session guidelines outline the key conceptual understandings that underpin this workshop. The sample workshop planner provides you with suggested ways to engage participants with these understandings.

Materials to support this workshop can be found in the resources on the WRC. A PowerPoint (PPT) has been created that includes graphics, digital objects, images, key messages and quotes for you to build and develop your own workshop and to meet the needs of your participants. A set of personas has been identified for this workshop. You may find these useful for introducing challenges in a different way, or to act as provocateurs for a new perspective.

We ask participants to engage with certain sections from the IB publication PYP: From principles into practice. As this is a digital resource, they will need to follow the pathway indicated in the instructions of the workshop.

Planning your workshop

As Workshop Leaders, you have flexibility to choose learning engagements that develop the workshop understandings taking consideration of the workshop cohort and context as well as making connections to the IB programme standards and practices and any new materials that are published by the IB. You are invited to revise the order of sessions or change learning engagements and supporting materials providing the workshop remains true to the session guidelines, and that any alternative third-party materials are cleared for copyright permissions.

Please consider how the learning engagements you select reflect the aspirational aims of PYP workshops, in particular how they:

- meet functional, emotional and social needs of participants
- support multiple ways to engage in learning
- promote professional capability development
- recognise the diversity and experience of its educators
- recognise and promote that everyone is an architect of his/ her own learning
- support collaboration through local and global learning networks
- focuses on praxis; providing practical application and an evidence base

Your feedback is always appreciated. Please send your comments, concerns or suggestions to Sue Richards at pyp.pd@ibo.org. Thank you for agreeing to offer a PYP workshop. I appreciate the care and diligence you put into planning and delivering workshops.

Kind regards

Sue Richards

IMPORTANT INFORMATION FOR WORKSHOP LEADER S

Workshop approach and main messaging

In this workshop, case studies, scenarios and problem-based learning using personas are put forward as approaches to engage participants. There are also elements of design thinking. As you determine the flow of the workshop and customize the design for the cohort you will be leading, please use, amend, add to or change the approach to best suit the setting you are going to facilitate.

Throughout the workshop, you will find persona challenges, most of which are optional. Please feel free to substitute these for more specific examples that relate directly to your participants' contexts. The personas are a tool at a Workshop Leader's disposal. They could be used:

- to add different perspectives in a homogenous participant group;
- to pose a case study or particular scenarios using the lens of one or more personas;
- to support differentiation in workshops. The pre-workshop survey may identify differing needs of participants that personas could support using more needs-focused engagements;
- as a reflective tool for the Workshop Leader to consider when assessing whether the content is addressing the needs of participants.

Throughout this workshop, participants will undertake a personal inquiry into their philosophy and practices, critically engage with professional literature and support fellow workshop participants to reflect on and refine their learning and teaching practices. The aim is for participants to co-construct and create understanding of PYP principles and practices.

Each session provides background information for Workshop Leaders, some possible options for learning engagements, possible supporting resources and key take-away messages. Workshop Leaders have the ability to develop their own learning engagements or use the suggestions provided.

Opportunities for reflection on participants' growth as PYP teachers should be built into the process. In the accompanying PowerPoints, a slide has been included to prompt reflection at the end of each session. In addition, at the end of each day of the workshop, there is a slide containing reflective threads that are common throughout all PYP workshops.

Pre-workshop assessment

The following prompts can be sent to individuals or groups as validation and self-assessment of the prior understandings and experiences they bring to this workshop. Please feel free to edit the questions below to ensure that the reflection is relevant to the workshop understandings and to particular groups of participants.

1. What are your key expectations for this workshop?
2. How familiar are you with the focus/understandings of this workshop?
3. How comfortable are you with contributing/participating/collaborating?
4. What's your level of proficiency in the language of instruction of the workshop?
   A) Basic B) Advanced C) Proficient

5. How would you describe yourself as a learner? What helps you to learn best?

Participants are asked to bring

- Their school's programme of inquiry for their year level
- Any other examples of practice that you as Workshop Leader deem appropriate.

Supporting materials

There is an accompanying PowerPoint and a number of proposed PDF resources to support the learning engagements proposed in this workshop plan. It is recommended that you tailor them to fit the workshop you are leading. Each learning engagement in the plan is referenced by numbers (LE 1.1). You can then cross check with the PowerPoint slides (see the notes section below each slide) to see whether there is a relevant slide to accompany particular engagements.

Referencing sections from PYP: From principles into practice

Please note, readings from the digital resource PYP: Principles into practice, are included for almost every session. There are no page numbers in the digital resource, so section headings have been referenced in the plan, for example: Refer to The learning community/A community of learners/A PYP learning community/A shared commitment). The underlined text indicates the final heading that you are looking for. It does look complicated, but in your workshop planning you can insert hyperlinks if you like (this was not possible at the time of developing this workshop planner). You will need to familiarize yourself with the various section headings and perhaps post links to these in your plan and PowerPoint for easy access.

In this category 1 workshop, it is likely that some participants will not have access to the digital resource if they are not in a candidate or authorized IB World School. In this instance, you may like to have available in your workshop space (for example, wiki, google site, electronic workbook) the text from these sections.

Abbreviations

Abbreviations used in this workshop planner are as follows:

ATL – Approaches to learning
LE – Learning Engagement
LT – Learning and Teaching
PDF – Portable Document Format (a file format that cannot be easily modified)
PRC – Primary Resource Centre
WRC – Workshop Resource Centre
PYP – Primary Years Programme
TSM – Teacher Support Material

How might this workshop look over ten sessions?

Workshop Leaders are encouraged to read through the workshop materials carefully and consider how they might organize the workshop for a PD event.

As a starting point, the original developers have proposed the following ten session overview/map for consideration. However, Workshop Leaders may organize it differently, depending on identified needs in each workshop context.

Learning engagements: Background context
Having made introductions and gone through the necessary scene setting for the workshop, the session will give participants the opportunity to explore the PYP framework, with its emphasis on the Learner, Learning and Teaching and the Learning Community. Through exploring the relevant elements in PYP: Principles into practice (also referred to throughout as the 'digital resource'), participants will gain an awareness and understanding of developing global citizens using the IB Learner profile as a guide. The section of the digital resource referred to in this session is the 'IB Learner profile'. The Workshop Leader may choose to use the persona challenges to address some aspects of learning, or you may decide to include your own choice of learning engagements.

Learning engagements	Facilitator notes/side coaching
LE 1.1 Inclusion activity Workshop Leader to host an introductory inclusion activity using a strategy such as 'Like Me' to find out about the group. Invite participants to place their chairs so they can stand up when required, then explain that you are going to make some statements. If the statement pertains to them, they stand up and say 'Just like me'. Have participants look around the room to see who stands up for each statement. You can use both professional and personal statements. LE 1.2 Overview of the workshop Present participants with an overview of the workshop, including the conceptual understandings and any other scheduling information. LE 1.3 The PYP Framework Introduce participants to the PYP: From principles into practices. Emphasize how the organisation of the digital publication reflects three aspects of a PYP school: • The Learner • Learning and Teaching • The Learning Community See graphic in PPT slides for session 1. Please note, the diagram is not representing the PYP framework, it is simply providing three distinct lenses for looking at and approaching the framework. Select a strategy of your choice to unpack the graphic. Connect-Extend-Challenge might work. Ask participants to discuss: • Which heading do you feel most strongly connected to, and why? • Which area do you feel you need to extend your understanding? • What challenges do you have in relating these three headings to your current context?	LE 1.1 Workshop Leader, you decide on an alternative choice of inclusion activity. LE 1.2 Please add your own workshop overview information to the PPT that you think important, for example, workshop description, areas of inquiry, approach, schedule for three days, etc. LE 1.3 Take this time to ensure that all participants have access to the digital resource.  This graphic presents an overview of the organizing structure of the digital resource. This learning engagement is a chance to consider why the PYP has chosen to organize information about the programme using the three headings. There is an introduction or overview to the PYP curriculum framework either within or beside the digital resource. Workshop Leaders may find this a useful resource to support this engagement.

LE 1.4 Setting workshop goals Participants complete circles individually, and then discuss in table groups and write down the commonalities. It is up to you as the Workshop Leader to decide how to make use of the personas throughout the workshop. Optional engagements for the personas are included but you may choose to use school-specific challenges.	LE 1.4 Using a printed hardcopy version of the donut diagram may help with more active sharing and discussions. Participants will return to this donut diagram at the end of the workshop. The Workshop Leader can find alternative activities to set the goals for the workshop and give agency to the participants.
LE 1.5 Introduction to Personas Briefly introduce the personas (see PPT slides) and explain that they will be used at different times throughout the workshop to pose challenges.	LE 1.5 It is up to you as the Workshop Leader to decide how to make use of the personas throughout the workshop. Optional engagements for the personas are included but you may choose to use school-specific challenges.
LE 1.6 Gauging experience with the Learner profile (OPTIONAL) Use the following statements and a Kahoot engagement to facilitate discussion amongst participants and to their levels of experience with the Learner profile. • I know how to embed the learner profile into early years learning and teaching • I am aware of the importance of international-mindedness in the PYP. • I understand how the PYP framework and key elements of the PYP are designed to promote and strengthen transdisciplinary learning and teaching. • I understand the role of role of key and related concepts to make meaning and connections to learning and teaching. • I know how the approaches to learning help students think, research, communicate, socialize and manage themselves effectively. • I promote agency by encouraging student voice, choice and ownership. • I encourage my students to take action in response to their learning. • I use inquiry as a pedagogical approach. • I can design inclusive learning environments that celebrate diversity.	LE 1.6 (OPTIONAL) Alternatives to Kahoot include Quizalize, Socrative, Quizizz
LE 1.7 The learning community (OPTIONAL) Together the learning community: ● lives peacefully ● prioritizes people and their relationships ● assumes shared responsibility for learning, health and well-being.	LE 1.7 (OPTIONAL) The focus in this activity is on understanding that the PYP is implemented in an inclusive way that impacts on and involves all members of the learning community.

Give participants some time to engage with PYP: From principles into practice/Learning community/A community of learners/A PYP learning community, and to make connections to their current understandings of the PYP and the Learner profile. For example, table groups could read the text under the following headings and come up with a quick visual that represents the ideas expressed: • A shared commitment • Living peacefully together • Prioritizing people and their relationships LE 1.8 Exploring the IB Learner profile Propose a challenge related to the IB Learner profile in the school to promote understanding of the Learner profile attributes. You may choose to use the 'Optional' version below in LE 1.9. Alternatively, use cards with LP descriptors and engage participants in a matching activity, in groups. They might add to the visual created in the previous learning engagement to make connections between the Learner profile and to the impact and involvement of the learning community in the PYP. LE 1.9 Learner profile challenge (OPTIONAL) Instead of, or in addition to LE 1.8, you may choose to use this 'Optional' engagement using the Persona challenges in the slide deck and PDF resources. In table groups – choose either Toni or Hussain or a scenario set by the Workshop Leader to discuss with the group (5 minutes to discuss and 5 minutes for whole group feedback). Synthesize the key messages into a communication to share with the participants' school communities (for example, tri-fold leaflet, a post on the school website, an email, communication to parents, a slideshow presentation etc.).	LE 1.8 If choosing the alternative suggestion, prepare cards with IB Learner profile descriptors for matching activity. Identify how they relate to each attribute, perhaps using four corners, or diamond ranking activity.

Learning engagements: Background context
Session 2 takes us into embedding international mindedness into learning and teaching. We also explore language as a vehicle to identify human commonalities. The session is an opportunity to consider how developing language is core to the need to communicate. To support the suggested learning experiences, there is a range of material from PYP: Principles into practice to be explored (refer to Learning community/International-mindedness): ● Developing international-mindedness; ● Fostering the development of international mindedness; ● Providing professional development; ● Making provisions for language learning; ● Infusing international mindedness within the PYP framework; ● Expanding cultural understanding to extra-curricular activities;

- Celebrating diversity;
- Engaging with and building relationships in the school community.

We have suggested grouping participants to share the reading load, with readings dependent on the learning experiences that have been suggested. Please base the readings around how you decide to structure the learning engagements.

Learning engagements	Facilitation notes/side coaching
LE 2.1 What is international-mindedness? See PPT for IB mission statement. Give participants a couple of minutes to read through. If time allows, you could try 1 word, 1 phrase, 1 sentence to share immediate thoughts on the IB mission statement. Invite participants to engage in table discussion around their current understanding of what international-mindedness looks like (and doesn't look like) in their schools. LE 2.2 Mission Statements Participants consider the similarities and differences between the mission statements of their school and that of the IB. Discuss the similarities and differences in their table group. LE 2.3 Readings Allocate groups to read the following sections from the digital resource (refer to Learning community/International-mindedness) Group 1 ● Developing international-mindedness ● Fostering the development of international mindedness Group 2 ● Providing professional development ● Making provisions for language learning ● Infusing international mindedness within the PYP framework ● Expanding cultural understanding to extra-curricular activities Group 3 ● Celebrating diversity ● Engaging with and building relationships in the school community	LE 2.2 Some schools may have something other than a mission statement, e.g. motto, values, vision statement. LE 2.3 Groups to 'jigsaw' reading sections from PYP: Principles into practice. Workshop Leader could choose an alternative strategy to promote discussion. Signs for 'Compass Points' will need to be prepared if you are using the suggestion to use this particular thinking routine.

Using the Compass Points thinking routine, each group reports back. LE 2.4 Planning for international-mindedness (OPTIONAL) EITHER: Discuss and respond to one of the persona challenges OR: Develop a plan of things participants could implement in their classroom or school to embed international-mindedness. • Can you make this change alone? • Who might you need to collaborate with? • Is this a short-term strategy or a long-term strategy? • How will you know it is working? LE 2.5 Language in the PYP In PYP: Principles into Practice, engage participants with Language (in Learning and teaching/Language) to explore the question, how does language support transdisciplinary learning? Either individually Use the Connect-Extend-Challenge Chart to consider and give feedback on the following, noting the ideas participants connect with their setting: ● How is your thinking extended by the reading? ● What challenges are provoked through the reading? Participants discuss thoughts with their table group. Or as a group As an alternative to the Connect-Extend-Challenge, use the Circle of View Points routine to incorporate the learner, learning and teaching and the learning community perspectives. Circle could be made up of student, teacher and parent viewpoints. LE 2.6 The role of language (OPTIONAL) Participants think about how children's literature can be used to support language acquisition and consider the support that parents can offer for children to develop their language skills. How could children's literature be used to promote language acquisition? What role do parents play at home?	LE 2.4 Participants have the choice to respond to a persona or think about how they might make a plan for their own setting. The questions are there as a prompt. LE 2.5 The graphic in the PPT might provide a jumping off point for the readings about language and the role it plays in a concept-driven, transdisciplinary programme. There are other graphics and information in the digital resource that might also be useful provocations, including an image of Multimodality in the technology section of the digital resource (refer to Learning community/Technology in the PYP/Technology in learning and teaching/ and the TSM "Translanguaging". Use either Connect-Extend-Challenge or Circle of Viewpoints thinking routines to explore how developing language is core to the need to communicate. LE 2.6 Depending on your audience, Workshop Leaders might like to introduce some children's literature to this session as a way to make connections between the role language plays in developing international-mindedness and development of literacy.

Design a flyer that can be shared with parents about the importance of encouraging a love of language and reading. LE 2.7 (OPTIONAL) Workshop leaders might like to use the three circle graphic of international-mindedness (see PPT slides) to support reflection point for this session.

Transdisciplinary learning in the PYP conveys learning that has relevance between, across and beyond subjects and transcends borders that confine them to connect to what is real in the world. (PYP: From principles into practice) We now move into transdisciplinary themes and learning in a transdisciplinary framework. Transdisciplinary learning is core to the PYP philosophy. In this session, we shall reflect on what transdisciplinary learning can look like in the participants' settings. The readings to focus on are: PYP: From principles into practice Learning and teaching/A transdisciplinary programme of inquiry/Developing a transdisciplinary programme

Learning and teaching/Transdisciplinary learning/Overview/Characteristics of the PYP framework.

This session is focused on collaborative learning. We have suggested a Pair-Square strategy to work collaboratively. Workshop Leader, please go ahead and base the groupings around your chosen grouping/collaborative strategies.

Learning engagements	Facilitation notes/side coaching
LE 3.1 Transdisciplinary themes: Matching activity Have some participants take the transdisciplinary theme title and others the descriptor of the transdisciplinary theme. They undertake a walkabout to match the title with the descriptor.	LE 3.1 Make transdisciplinary titles and the descriptors.
LE 3.2 Reflect on transdisciplinary learning in your context Use sentence strips for participants to individually write their own definitions of what transdisciplinary learning is. Then repeat in Pair (first in twos) and then repeat in Square (move into groups of four). Compare definitions and discuss the following: ● What does transdisciplinary learning look like in your classroom currently? ● How do you know that transdisciplinary learning is taking place? ● How do you think you assess transdisciplinary learning? ● What needs to change as you develop an upcoming unit of inquiry? ● How will you implement the changes in collaboration with your team? Collate sentence strips into one composite, share, and talk about how thinking has changed.	LE 3.2 Use the regrouping strategy of your choice if you prefer.
LE 3.3 Readings Using the digital resource, participants work with their final four square group from LE 3.2. and dip into the following from the digital resource:	LE 3.3 Direct participants to digital resource for these readings. Use Jigsaw strategy for the readings.

In session 4, we shall be thinking about concept-driven learning. This is a time for participants to consider what they know and what conceptual learning looks like in their setting. There will be the opportunity to think about key and related concepts. Please refer participants to *PYP: Principles into practice/*Learning and teaching/Concepts. Using the information shared, including a Powtoon, participants can engage with developing conceptually based central ideas.

LE 4.1 What does concept-driven learning look like? As a table group, participants write down your ideas of what concept-driven learning looks like. In groups of 4, they read selected parts of the Concepts section in the digital resource: • A concept-driven curriculum • Concepts • Key concepts • Related concepts • From concepts to conceptual understandings. LE 4.2 Key and related concepts Allocate a transdisciplinary theme to each group (6 groups). Participants then look at the table for Seven key concepts in *PYP: Principles into practice (*refer to Concepts/Concepts and conceptual understanding/A concept-driven curriculum/Key concepts) and allocate the most relevant concepts for their theme. Using each of the seven key concepts as a starting point, participants then determine the possible related concepts that would fit under the transdisciplinary theme. Refer to the digital resource and the scope and sequence documentation for examples of related concepts. LE 4.3 Concept or fact sorting activity (OPTIONAL) Refer to Session 4 Slides for the sorting activity involving these concepts: Conflict, family, culture, minibeasts, change, fitness, human rights, China, persuasion, power, revolution, model, dinosaurs, cooperation, presidential elections, extinction, World War II, transportation, area and perimeter, evolution, the human body, verb conjugation, fractions, the rainforest, earthquakes, identity, water, citizenship, simple machines, laws and rules, probability.	LE 4.1 • PYP: Principles into practice – 7 Key Concepts (Figure CO01) printed for participants' reference. LE 4.2 Have the Transdisciplinary theme descriptors printed and available for the groups. Post up the sheets. There are suggested home readings in PYP: Principles into practice in preparation for tomorrow's sessions both of which sit under The learner section of the digital resource. ● Learner agency ● Action	LE 4.4 Have Powtoon available to be viewed. LE 4.5 Use Bus Stop or another similar approach to share/view all the transdisciplinary themes. With participants, walk around the room of posted themes and add comments and suggestions to the other groups on how they might strengthen their central idea.

Learning engagements: Background context
The foci for this session are the approaches to learning and approaches to teaching that are crucial for exploring subject knowledge in context with the transdisciplinary themes. There is the opportunity to consider the five categories of skills and the associated sub-skills. A Sharing PYP blog post and a PYP TSM are included in this session to help inform understanding about the approaches to learning and how they are realized in schools. Participants gain some insight into how one educator encourages critical thinking and problem solving. There is also the opportunity for participants to consider the categories of skills and sub-skills that are included in their setting. Using the thinking routine, Think-Puzzle-Explore, participants can delve in a bit further into ATL.

There is an option to either use the challenges posed by the personas or to set up your preferred challenge/inquiry for the participants to follow.

Learning engagements	Facilitation notes/side coaching
LE 5.1 Looking into the ATL Explore the ATL categories and various sub-skills available for groups to sort: ● Divide up the cohort into 5 groups (each representing a category) ● Have the statements for each category available for the category group to identify and place against their category. Groups to read 'Sharing the PYP blog post: Developing approaches to learning'. Participants to view the TSM, 'Explicitly teaching thinking skills'. Although this is about one category, it could still provide a starting point for talking about how to promote other categories in learning and teaching. Participants explore and respond to the question: How would you promote the sub-skills for your category in any unit of inquiry? LE 5.2 (OPTIONAL) You could choose to do this as Think-Puzzle-Explore: 1. What do you think you know about this topic? 2. What questions or puzzles do you have? 3. How can you explore this topic? LE 5.3 Persona Challenges In table groups, participants think about the challenges (outlined in the slides), faced by Mario, Andrea, Toni and Hussain. Identify one of the personas they would like to respond to, based on some of the challenges that align with their own context. From their teaching experience, participants come up with ideas to support the development of the ATL through inquiry. ● Reflecting on your experience, provide responses to the challenges faced by your chosen persona.	LE 5.1 Draw participants attention to the ATL sections in the digital resource - • PYP: From principles into practice/The learner/The early learner/Approaches to learning in the early years (for EY educators) • PYP: From principles into practice/Learning and teaching/Approaches to learning (for all educators) Have the ATL categories printed and the various sub-skills cut up and available for the ATL groups to sort. Note, the subskills of ATL for EY differ slightly. Workshop Leader might use: Sharing PYP blog post 'Developing approaches to learning' (http://blogs.ibo.org/sharingpyp/2017/10/10/developing-approaches-to-learning-atl)

● Add notes which represent the current situation your persona is facing (use the box at the lower section of the ladder). ● Brainstorm ideas which represent a desired situation or 'the bigger picture' he or she would like to see happening (use the box at the upper section of the ladder). ● Identify forces that could help the growth of the ATL and place these outside the upper left side of the ladder. ● In the lower right section outside the ladder, identify and list the forces which may inhibit the resolution of the challenges faced by your chosen persona. ● Select and highlight the top one or two issues that will need to be worked on if the desired state is to be achieved.	LE 5.3 Workshop Leader to either use the persona challenges for participants to explore the ATLs, or devise another learning experience, for example, set up your own challenge/inquiry for participants to follow that will give them a deeper insight into the ATL in action in a transdisciplinary setting. Have the Ladder diagram printed and available for participants or leave image in PowerPoint visible.

Learning engagements: Background context
During this session, inquiry as the main vehicle for learning and teaching will be the focus. As educators, we want to understand the depth and breadth of learning that inquiry facilitates. Keep in mind that inquiry can be perceived and organized in many, many different ways. It is really important that the learning environment reflects strongly a culture of inquiry. There is no one set process or model or cycle that the PYP prefers. This session has been organized around the personas, with each persona laying out their challenge involving an aspect of inquiry processes in their setting. Toni has a query about differentiation being reinforced through inquiry, to stimulate a range of learners. Andrea wants to convey the richness of inquiry learning through the inquiry to parents of students in the early years of learning (3-6 years). In response to the challenges set by the personas, it is proposed that participants write a blog or develop another communication for an online platform of choice. If you set up an online environment or platform for your workshop, encourage postings to be made here. If preferred, the Workshop Leader may choose to set up different non-persona learning engagements that suit the workshop participants and that dig deeper into how inquiry learning supports learning in the PYP.

Learning engagements	Facilitation notes/side coaching

LE 6.2 Read and explore PYP: Principles into practice • Learning and teaching/Inquiry/Inquiry in the PYP • Learning and teaching/Assessment	LE 6.1 and LE 6.2 Access to the reading is required to respond to the persona challenge. The indicated readings support participants to respond to one of the personas.
LE 6.3 Respond to the persona challenge Having read Toni and Andrea's dilemmas, participants, in pairs choose one of the personas to address their concerns. They are to use the digital resource section on Inquiry, along with their own experience, to suggest a sustainable resolution for them. Participants think about how they might convey information to develop awareness, understanding and appreciation of the powerful impact of inquiry learning. They then compose a blog post that disseminates relevant information to open up either parent or teacher thinking. The blog is to describe, from their perspective, how conceptual understanding through inquiry can be monitored, documented and assessed. Participants add blog posts to the shared workshop space. Participants to read the blog posts of other participants and see what ideas could apply in their own school context to enable students to have more agency in the inquiry process. LE 6.4 Stir the Classroom (OPTIONAL) 1. Each pair is assigned either number 1 or number 2. 2. Groups of two pairs to be made. with a number 1 and a number 2. Each group of 4 stands together to form a circle of groups around the room. 3. They debrief to each other about the ideas from the responses to Toni and Andrea that could be applied in their school setting. 4. Then move the number 1s on to the next group. 5. They de-brief to the number 2s they join. 6. Then move the number 2s on to the next group.	LE 6.3 The Workshop Leader to decide what tool would be most appropriate to use. If the Workshop Leader has already set up a blog or another kind of workshop platform/space, it is a simple matter to have participants post onto the existing blog or space. The tool may need to be different, depending on your workshop platform/space.

7. They debrief to the number 1s they join. 8. When all pairs have debriefed to other pairs, the engagement is complete.

Learning engagements: Background context

Our inquiry moves to student agency and action. We explore how to share the responsibility for learning, health and well-being. Agency is the power to take meaningful and intentional action, and acknowledges the rights and responsibilities of the individual. Agency supports voice, choice and ownership for everyone in the learning community. Students with agency have voice, choice and ownership; and a propensity to take action.

This session begins with an exploration of *PYP: Principles into practice/*The learner
- Learner Agency
- Action

The focus is again around persona challenges and offers the option to explore what is happening in participants' settings. Participants are encouraged to work in pairs to either address persona concerns or inquire into their own concerns. If you have another way to engage with this line of inquiry, please adjust the learning engagements to reflect your context.

LE 7.1 Readings Participants read and explore PYP: Principles Into practice: • The learner/Learner agency • The learner/Action • Learning and teaching/Assessment - already read as part of session 5. LE 7.2 Persona challenge • Participants individually review Mario and Hussain's comments. • Participants pair up with a like-minded person – come up with suggestions, strategies or ideas for how to address their concerns. Discuss how the readings from LE 7.1 might support a response to the challenge posed by the persona selected. • Participants create a poster or some other visual representation to share the suggestions for their setting that would help the learning community comprehend agency. They consider the questions below in formulating a poster. o What short-term or long-term goals might you have for developing student agency? o How will you assess success in this area? o Which strategies might you consider for supporting students to take action? o Who from your learning community can support you? • Participants undertake a gallery/virtual walk to read through the comments of others and consider how the suggestions, strategies, and ideas shared might be useful in their school.	LE 7.1 If this was done for home reading at the end of Day 1, you might consider a brief reflection activity or routine to help summarise the readings, for example, collaborative PMI, popcorn sharing. LE 7.2 Pair up participants through your choice of method. If participants use an online tool for creating posters (Canva, Poster. My Wall), they could post a link to this in a virtual space such as Padlet.

Learning engagements: Background context
Collaboration is a central tenet of the PYP. A collaborative approach involves sustained dialogue and reflection among and between all members of the learning community. This approach helps all members of the learning community to grow as learners and as professionals to improve student outcomes, health and well-being. (PYP: From principles into practice) PYP: Principles into practice supports the learning in this module through the sections on: • Learning and teaching/A transdisciplinary programme of inquiry/Developing a transdisciplinary programme/Collaboratively designing a programme of inquiry/Collaboratively developing units of inquiry and The PYP planning process and planners.

As part of the learning in this session, we will look into the concept of central ideas and determine their global significance. Working in groups, participants can analyse from a given selection of central ideas.

There is the chance to look at the IB developed planners, whilst remembering that schools are free to develop their own planners so long as they reflect the PYP planning process outlined in the digital resource. Please note, at the time this workshop plan was being developed, the final unit of inquiry planning templates were still in development by the IB. It will be important that you become familiar with the resulting templates and build their use into this learning engagement.

LE 8.1 Readings Participants explore *PYP: Principles into practice/*Learning and teaching/A transdisciplinary programme of inquiry/Developing a transdisciplinary programme/Collaboratively designing a programme of inquiry/Collaboratively developing units of inquiry and The PYP planning process and planners Central ideas are to be globally significant. They are written to invite and provoke student inquiry. A selection of central ideas is provided (see PDF resources and slide deck). LE 8.2 Central ideas Participants to: • Analyse the sample central ideas to determine if they are globally significant and invite student inquiry. • If they do not provoke enduring understanding, re-work the central ideas to get them to fit the criteria of a good central idea • Choose two key concepts and develop the related concepts and the lines of inquiry • Explore the rest of the planner and zoom in on the assessments • In groups, devise the relevant assessments and note into the planner • Discuss different ways of monitoring and supporting student learning through assessment.	LE 8.1 Workshop Leader to choose the method/strategy to unpack the readings. LE 8.2 Central ideas: We often hear the terms – broad, timeless, universal, abstract – when talking about central ideas. Workshop Leader, please make sure these terms are unpacked/understood rather than leaving them standing on their own. Central ideas are globally significant and invite student inquiry. In developing or revising a central idea, consider the following questions: • Does it offer students opportunities to explore the commonalities of the human experience? • Does it promote the associated conceptual understanding? • Is it broad enough to offer multiple lines of inquiry? • Is it underpinned by concepts (for example, key and related concepts)?

LE 8.3 Reflecting on collaboration Participants to take a moment to think about how they collaborated with others throughout the day. • What did you find easy? • What did you find more challenging? • What understanding of collaboration will you take back to apply in your own setting? OVERNIGHT HOME LEARNING - OPTIONAL Read through the What is an IB education, IB0, 2017.	• Is it relevant to students in all cultures and contexts? • Will it engage students in thinking critically and creatively? • Does it present an opportunity for students to co-construct meaning of the conceptual understandings being explored? • Is it open to a range of student responses? • Is it written in a neutral voice? The sample central ideas are in the PDF resources and in the slide deck. Divide participants into groups for this work.

Learning engagements: Background context
It is time for the focus to shift to learning environments and spaces. Begin by unpacking the PYP 'Connecting pedagogy and design' graphic in the Learning community section of PYP: Principles into practice. The approach chosen to unpack the graphic will be determined by the Workshop Leader. We will then move to the challenges posed by our personas, or to participants' own challenges around learning environment and spaces There are readings and a blog to support this session: • PYP: Principles into practice –The learning community/Learning environments • Sharing PYP blog post http://blogs.ibo.org/blog/2015/12/19/a-room-with-a-view-to-learning

LE 9.1 Connecting pedagogy and design Use the strategy 'I used to think, now I think' with participants to engage with matters of learning environments and spaces. For 'I used to think…', participants view the diagram in The Learning community section of the digital resource. From this diagram, discuss: What key messages come through to you? How would explain this diagram to someone else? What questions does it raise? For 'Now I think', participants add their thoughts after engaging with the following readings. Note, if working in groups, assign different sections to be read by different group members. Readings • PYP: Principles into practice - The learning community/Learning environments • Sharing PYP blog post http://blogs.ibo.org/blog/2015/12/19/a-room-with-a-view-to-learning	LE 9.1 The graphic is to be unpacked (see session 9 slides for graphic). The 'I used to think/now I think' strategy is suggested, but the Workshop Leader can use a strategy more appropriate to the context. Participants can work individually or in table groups to complete the LE. Responses/ thinking can be recorded either on chart paper for groups, or in own spaces for individual.
LE 9.2 Persona Challenge Time now to have a look at the queries posed by our personas. Either explore these concerns, or participants to think about the learning environment and spaces in their settings. Think about how best to co-construct: • Learning spaces in which the children may interact with ease • A learning environment that offers favourable situations for purposeful play • The chances to provoke and stimulate independence and responsibility • Spaces to provide for agentic learning. EITHER Form groups of 3–4 people for each of the personas. Participants choose which group they wish to work with. Create a drawing of a design for a new learning space for either Mario, Hussain or Andrea.	LE 9.2 Workshop Leader can decide on groupings. EITHER use persona challenges OR have participants bring their own concerns to the group for discussion and redesign. Participants might like to suggest Google Drawing or Gliffy as a tool to design the plans, or to draw them on a piece of paper.

OR Participants can bring their own challenges and work on them individually or in groups. LE 9.3 Elevator Pitch Once participants have designed their new learning environment, as a group create an elevator pitch to present to a Board of Governors to request funding and development for the new space.	LE 9.3 Present pitches - either as individuals or a collective.

Learning engagements: Background context
In this final session we will look at the IB Approaches to teaching. Learning and teaching are finely balanced to ensure an inquiry-based approach. The approaches to teaching have been designed to give flexibility to educators as they devise and choose the teaching strategies that are suitable for their settings. There is an opportunity in this session for participants to have a look at the kind of capabilities and practices required of a PYP teacher and to identify with them. We will bring together the learning in the workshop by designing a visual metaphor that encapsulates the PYP learning experience. Finally, we revisit the Donut diagram from Session 1 to close the workshop. Note that a padlet, or other collaborative space, is required for this session.

Learning engagements	Facilitation notes/side coaching
LE 10.1 Approaches to teaching Use Think - Pair - Share or another way of having participants discuss approaches to teaching identified by the IB (see more in What is an IB education, 2017). Based on prior knowledge and this workshop, what do they understand is meant by: • Based on inquiry • Focused on conceptual understanding • Developed in local and global contexts • Focused on effective teamwork and collaboration • Designed to remove barriers to learning • Informed by assessment?	LE 10.1 Think-Pair-Share, Concentric circles, or another discussion strategy can be used to have participants share what they understand of the approaches to teaching and how they connect to the prior learning in this workshop and to their experience in the classroom.
LE 10.2 Teacher capabilities Participants to select two teacher capabilities (see session 10 slides), based on the IB approaches to teaching that they would like to focus on developing in their classroom or school at the conclusion of this workshop. Ask participants to: 1. Consider what success in these areas might look like and what approaches you could use to continue learning post workshop. 2. Consider what evidence would demonstrate your growth as a PYP teacher. 3. Find a partner and exchange email addresses. Plan on a date for emailing or Skyping to check in on progress.	LE 10.2 Refer to the slides and choose capabilities as per the LE instructions. Participants pair up and make a plan for contact beyond the workshop to update the other person on the progress they have made on the capabilities.
LE 10.3 A visual metaphor (OPTIONAL) Participants to: 1. Review the graphic that shows the three components of the PYP - the Learner, Learning and Teaching and the Learning Community. 2. Individually, consider the elements that have been explored throughout this workshop and how they could fit together into a visual metaphor. 3. Construct their own visual representation (for example, a collage of images, a diagram or a mindmap) of how they see the PYP as a holistic, transdisciplinary and coherent learning experience.	LE 10.3 (OPTIONAL) Workshop padlet or collaborative sharing space needed for this learning engagement.

4. Post their 'map' into the workshop padlet. They then have a bank of thoughts for future consideration.

LE 10.4 Workshop expectations – 'gots' and 'wants'

Revisit the donut diagram from Day 1 to reflect on how workshop expectations were met.

Individually (on post-its), participants identify up to 3 'gots' and 3 'wants' with regard to the workshop outcomes. Discuss as a table group. Choose the commonalities and post these onto the Got/Want section of the workshop blog.

At the end of the workshop, as part of the wrap up, you might like to use this video from the IB about agentic learners in the PYP: https://vimeo.com/150154406

LE 10.4

END OF DAY 3

Supports for student content and skill development

The International Baccalaureate Primary Years Programme (IB PYP) is designed for students aged 3 to 12 and focuses on the development of the whole child. The PYP can either be a stand-alone early childhood center offering pre-K, an early childhood program connected to a PYP, or a typical elementary school that starts with kindergarten. Here's an overview of how the IB PYP works, including the role of language:

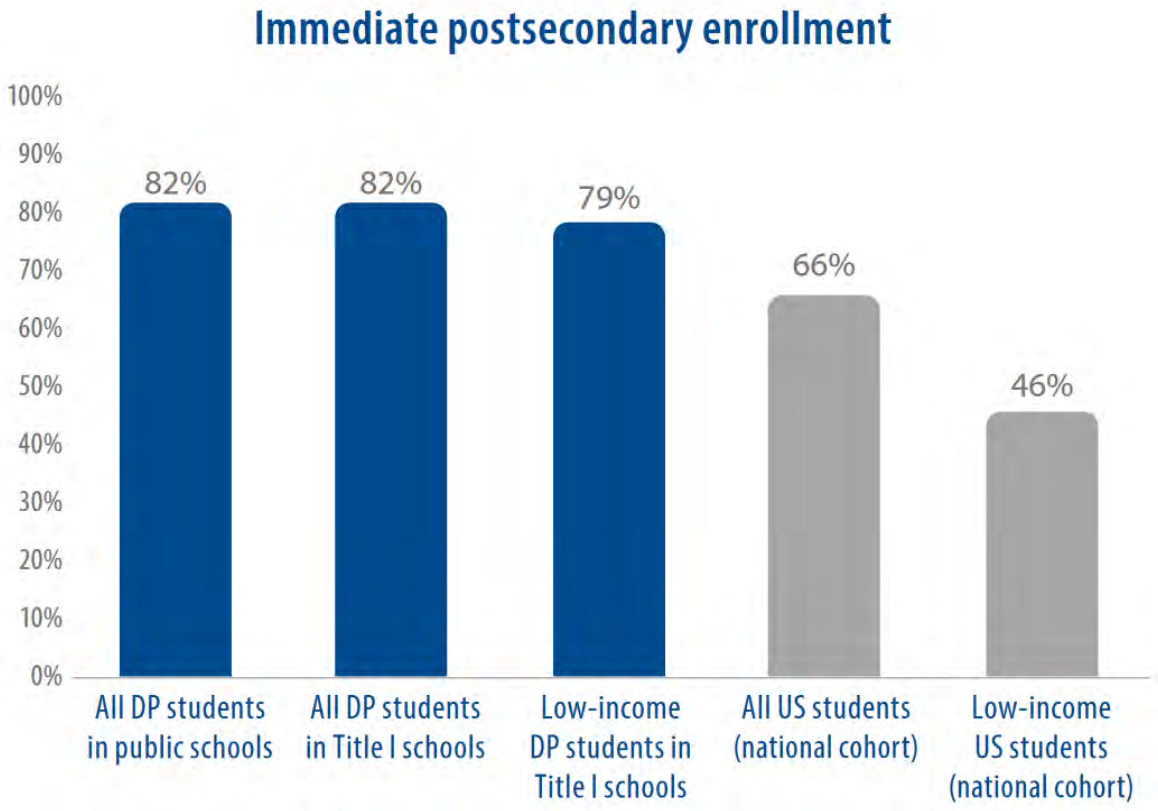
- Transdisciplinary Framework: The IB PYP is organized around six transdisciplinary themes that provide a framework for inquiry-based learning. These themes are globally significant and encourage students to make connections across different subject areas. The six transdisciplinary themes are: Who we are, Where we are in place and time, How we express ourselves, How the world works, How we organize ourselves, and Sharing the planet.
- Inquiry-Based Learning: Inquiry is at the heart of the IB PYP. Students are encouraged to ask questions, explore concepts, and investigate real-world issues. Teachers facilitate inquiry-based learning experiences that promote curiosity, critical thinking, and problem-solving skills.
- Conceptual Understanding: The IB PYP emphasizes the development of conceptual understanding across subject areas. Concepts such as form, function, causation, change, and connection are explored in depth, helping students develop a deeper understanding of key ideas and themes.
- Learner Profile: The IB PYP promotes the development of the IB Learner Profile attributes, which include being principled, open-minded, reflective, and caring, among others. These attributes guide students in becoming responsible global citizens who demonstrate empathy, respect, and a commitment to making a positive difference in the world.
- Language Development: Language is a fundamental aspect of the IB PYP and is integrated throughout the curriculum. Language development occurs in multiple ways, including listening, speaking, reading, writing, and viewing. Students engage with language in various contexts, including during inquiry-based activities, collaborative projects, and reflection exercises. Many PYPs offer instruction in bilingual and/or trilingual settings.
- Language of Instruction: The language of instruction in the IB PYP may vary depending on the linguistic and cultural context of the school. In multilingual schools, students may have the opportunity to learn and use more than one language, fostering linguistic diversity and intercultural understanding.
- Transdisciplinary Approach: Language learning is integrated into the transdisciplinary themes and inquiry-based learning experiences in the IB PYP. Students use language to inquire, communicate, and express their ideas and perspectives across different subject areas and contexts.

Overall, language development is a central component of the IB PYP, supporting students in becoming effective communicators, critical thinkers, and lifelong learners who can engage with the world in meaningful ways.

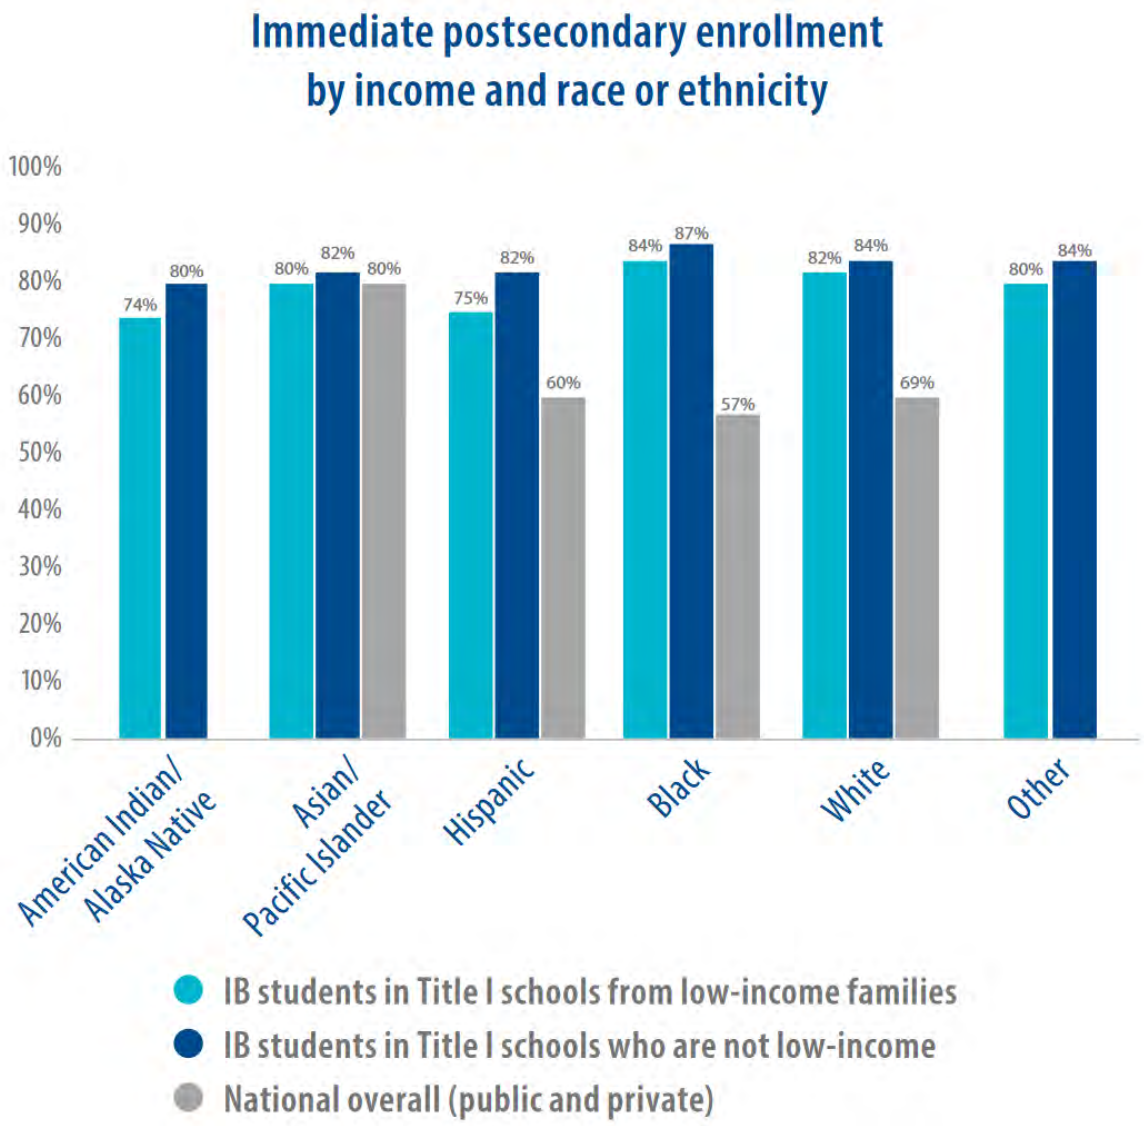
EXPERIENCE AND REFERENCES

Organization Background

Proposers must state the organization's number of years in business and provide a description of the organization to include office location(s).



The International Baccalaureate has its roots in 1924 with the founding of the International School of Geneva, and formalized as an education non-profit in 1968, offering the first internationally recognized diploma in the world. Since that time, the IB now operates in over 160 countries and supports over 6,000 schools globally. The first IB school in the United States was authorized in 1971. Since then, IB has grown to 1,924 authorized schools; 2,461 programs; and 161 programs in Candidacy. Ninety-one percent of IB schools in the US are public schools, and this market share has been consistent for more than a decade. Between 60% and 73% of IB public schools in the US qualify for US federal title funds and leverage title funds to administer IB programs. On the other hand, 9% of IB schools in the US are independent, including some of the most recognized and prestigious schools in the US, including the United Nations International School (the first US IB school), the Dwight School, and Washington International School. Consequently, the IB sustains and enhances a vast spectrum of US schools overall, from prestigious independent schools, to public and charter schools, to schools receiving federal funds based on poverty metrics. Currently, the IB has regional offices in Washington, D.C.; Singapore; and Cardiff, Wales; with headquarters in Geneva Switzerland (Legal Office) and The Hague, Netherlands.



Experiences with Similar Projects: Promoting Academic Rigor & Postsecondary Credit In High-Need Schools

The IB works with schools, governments, and international organizations to develop challenging programs of international education and rigorous assessment. These programs aim to create lifelong learners who are inquirers, knowledgeable, thinkers, communicators, principled, open-minded, caring, risk-takers, balanced, and reflective. These dispositions are cultivated through the IB courses in both the CP and DP, which are rigorous two-year programs for students aged 16 to 19, offering a comprehensive and rigorous course of study designed to prepare students for success in postsecondary institutions and careers.

The IB supports high schools in major school districts across the country, including Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Denver, Houston, Indianapolis, Los Angeles, Miami-Dade, Nashville, New York, Philadelphia, Seattle, and Washington, DC (among others). Research has demonstrated that IB students are more likely to enroll in more selective colleges and to have higher persistence rates than peers from similar backgrounds, including students from Title I schools. Of note, close to 90% of IB schools in the US, over 2,500 nationally offering more than 2,800 programmes, are public, and between 60% and 73% receive Title funds.

A study from the University of Chicago found that, when compared to a matched comparison group, students in the IB DP are 40% more likely to attend four-year colleges and 50% more likely to attend more selective colleges. In addition, these students are significantly more likely to persist in four-year colleges for two years. When in college, IB DP students report feeling prepared to succeed and indeed excel in their coursework, often stating explicitly that their experiences in the IB DP taught the specific skills and behaviors demanded of them in college.

Each year, over 5,000 universities in more than 100 countries/territories receive IB students' admission applications and transcripts. In most countries, the IB serves as a qualification for admission. In the US, IB credits are awarded at the discretion of the colleges and therefore occur after students have applied and been accepted to a college. Over 1,000 U.S. colleges have recognition policies for the Diploma and Career-related Programmes.

Anticipated Outcomes & Theory of Change

Describe the anticipated outcomes of the services offered. Describe how the services will impact student learning outcomes. Outline the theory of change relating to the program and how it is monitored to evaluate program implementation and impact.

IB outcomes research studies investigate the impact of IB programs on teachers, schools, and students. You can read all completed studies on all four programs on the IB website.

The following is an overview of how the IB structures its research to inform the educational field while providing evidence of the impact of IB programs or areas of programmatic improvement. All IB studies aim to improve education but are specific to the pedagogies found within the IB. By examining the qualities and characteristics of schools, students, and teachers, program impact research helps both the IB and external organizations better understand the value of an IB education.

What do the studies achieve?

Program impact research generally falls into one of three categories, which examine different aspects of an IB education. These examine questions such as:

Student, school, and systemic outcomes

- What is the academic experience and performance of IB students?
- How do the academic experience and achievement of IB students compare to their non-IB peers?
- Are IB students academically engaged and challenged?
- How well does an IB education prepare students for future success?
- To what extent do students exhibit characteristics described in the learner profile?
- To what extent do a school's philosophy, structures and systems enable students to develop into the learners described in the profile?

Program implementation

- What is the impact of the implementation of an IB program on schools, teachers, and students?
- How does the school change as a result of the implementation of an IB program?
- What are successful strategies and challenges in the implementation of IB programs?

Program standards and alignment

- How do IB standards compare with educational standards of various global, national, and state systems?
- How do IB standards compare with well-established, strong academic standards for what students should know and learn?

PYP outcomes

A mixed methods study examined the PYP's impact on school climate within public elementary schools in the United States. The study found numerous improvements to school climate that most participants attributed to the PYP. Participants at every school reported increased attention to student well-being and the whole child, as well as greater use of transdisciplinary instruction and teacher collaboration due to the PYP. Additionally, the quantitative data showed statistically significant improvements post-authorization on six school climate outcomes: perceived safety, caring relationships, fairness, parent involvement, bullying, and victimization.

A study was conducted across five countries (China, Kenya, Mexico, Russia, and the United Kingdom) to understand the impacts of the PYP Exhibition Project, a culminating project in which students investigate and present their learnings on a chosen topic. The study found overwhelming support from parents, students, and teachers for the exhibition as an activity, and a deep conviction that this was not only a good use of curriculum time, but also the pinnacle of PYP achievement. Study participants believed that the exhibition helped to develop students' critical thinking, international-mindedness, and learner profile attributes.

In terms of literacy and numeracy in the PYP, a study in Australia explored the impacts of PYP implementation as well as student outcomes on a national assessment for reading and numeracy. PYP students performed at higher levels in both reading and numeracy when compared to non-IB schools. Additionally, school staff believed the PYP contributed to student learning, academic achievement, development of learner profile attributes, and motivation.

MYP outcomes

In China, Hong Kong, India, Indonesia, and Japan, researchers compared the DP outcomes achieved by students who completed their middle years' studies in the MYP, a state or national curriculum, or another international program. Former MYP students performed significantly better than non-MYP students in the total DP points earned as well as in subject exams in language and literature, language acquisition, individuals and societies, and mathematics. MYP students also reported using higher-order thinking skills, such as critical thinking and analytical skills, more frequently than non-MYP students.

Researchers in Spain compared the Spanish curriculum, Educación Secundaria Obligatoria (ESO), and the MYP. The study indicated that introducing the MYP's concept-based learning approach, the learner profile, and a more comprehensive assessment system substantially enhanced the ESO. The study also explored the impact of the MYP in eight Spanish private schools. Overall, students, teachers, and administrators reported that the MYP supported a range of positive outcomes in their schools, including the development of student competencies such as research and critical thinking skills, and encouraging school-wide improvements to teaching and learning.

A study in a large school district in the United States investigated the impact of MYP participation on high school course enrollment and achievement. A statistical technique called propensity score matching was used to compare the high school outcomes of former MYP students with demographically similar non-MYP students. Former MYP students were 34% more likely than non-MYP students to take at least one advanced placement or Diploma Programme exam in high school. Additionally, MYP enrollment significantly increased the likelihood of earning at least one "college-ready" score on a college preparatory exam (by 39%).

DP outcomes

A series of studies have been conducted on the academic outcomes of DP students in the US. Most notably, one DP study draws on multiple datasets to examine the postsecondary outcomes of IB DP students (N = 37,348). Results show that 82% of US DP graduates enrolled in college immediately after graduating from high school, as compared to 66% of all US high school graduates. Of the DP graduates who enrolled in college immediately after high school, 88% returned to the same institution the following year, compared to 80% of all US students. Three years later, 62% of DP graduates earned a four-year college degree, as compared to 41% of all US students. For course students, the number of assessments and average assessment scores were associated with greater postsecondary success. Similarly, DP candidates with strong IB performance had higher predicted odds for college enrollment, persistence, and graduation than their lower-performing peers.

A separate study examined the high school and post-secondary experiences of IB DP students in public schools serving students from predominantly low-income households. The findings from the study indicate that DP students experience more rigorous classes, are more motivated, and are more engaged than their non-IB peers. Data showed positive and significant effects of IB participation on college retention rates and five- and six-year graduation rates. Lastly, DP alumni reported that the DP helped prepare them for the challenge of college coursework, particularly in the areas of writing, critical thinking, study skills, and time management.

CP outcomes

Studies examining the effectiveness of career and technical education (CTE) in secondary school often reach inconclusive findings on the question of whether CTE promotes career-oriented skills without any detriment to students' academic achievement. Launched in 2012, the IB Career-related Programme (CP) has been uniquely designed to do just that: it combines the rigor of IB courses with the practical learning of CTE to promote both college and career readiness equally. One study examined the patterns of higher education enrollment, destinations, and persistence of all CP graduates from secondary schools in the US between 2013 and 2015. Immediate enrollment, persistence, and preference for four-year over two-year colleges were all higher for CP graduates than for all US graduates nationally. In addition, CP graduates attended selective higher education institutions. Of the CP graduates who chose four-year institutions, more than half (55%) enrolled at a university ranked by Barron's Selectivity Index as "very competitive" or better.

Theory of change

Through its centering on the mission statement and learner profile, the IB seeks to integrate inquiry-based teaching and learning (ITL) across all programs and subjects. A study concerning the IB's Theory of Change examined the meanings and practices of ITL in a sample of IB World Schools (IBWSs), describing the IB approach to, and implementation of, ITL. The study involved students, educators, and schools engaged in the PYP, MYP, and/or DP.

The researchers propose an organizational theory of change for how the IB supports IBWSs in implementing ITL. This theory of change articulates two organizational strategies: 1) provide resources to clarify and support key principles of the organization, and 2) build a mutually supportive ecosystem by engaging educators who enact and share practices of ITL. The two strategies are shown in parallel to each other, as they appear to be equally important and also mutually reinforce one another. In other words, the resources support the participants in the ecosystem, such as teachers and school leaders, and the actions of educators in the ecosystem produce new resources.

These two strategies lead to a series of interim outcomes.

- Providing resources enables the organization to articulate what is fixed and flexible, focus deliberately on what it stands for, help schools and educators to build upon their successes, and support schools and educators in addressing their contexts while engaging in continuous improvement processes.
- The mutually supportive ecosystem refers to educators and schools supporting one another to learn about a range of promising practices, create a collaborative culture where schools learn from each other, support educators and schools in enacting principled adaptation of ITL within their contexts, create learning environments that align with research-based knowledge about how people learn and encourage teachers to pursue their inquiries to innovate and continuously improve.

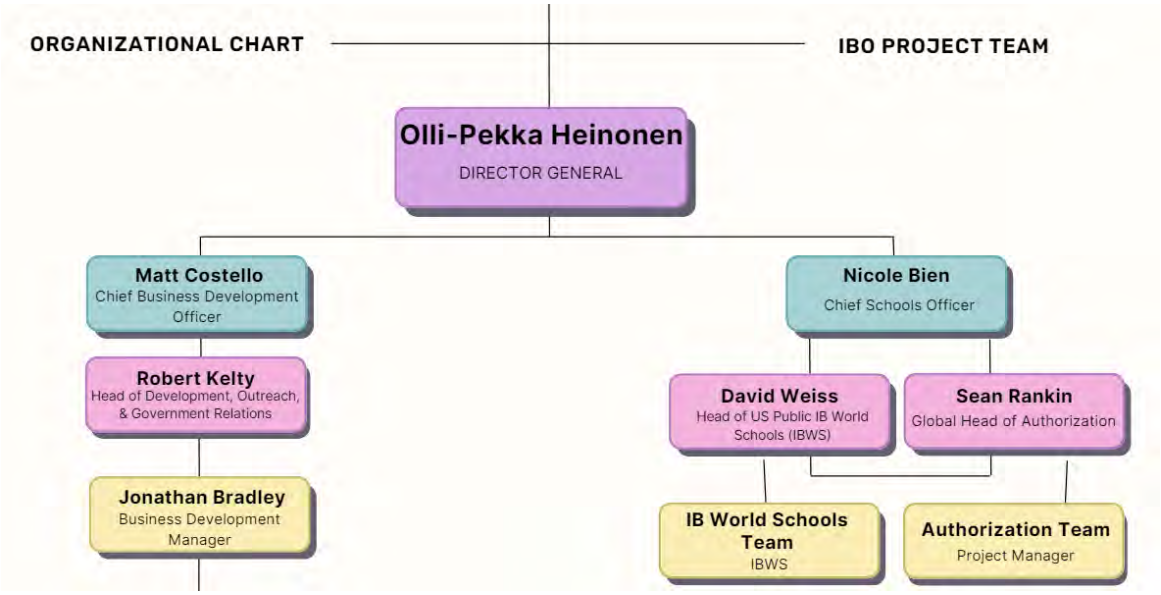
The hypothesis is that if the organizational theory of change operates successfully, then teachers should be able to facilitate and students should be able to participate in well-designed inquiry-based instruction.

Instructional theory of change

Both teacher and student actions have an impact on creating a productive learning community. Relationships between teachers and students are important, and many of their respective actions have reciprocal relations. For example, teachers listen deeply to students' questions and curiosities and then pose questions, interact with students in ongoing dialogue, and provide feedback on possible directions for student inquiry. Importantly, teachers provide strategic support for students to develop understanding, learn to collaborate, and create products. Teachers can also help by fostering an open classroom environment and demonstrating care for students. In inquiry-based classrooms, students' questions and curiosities drive classroom activity and provide purpose for their work daily and across time. Teachers challenge students to learn to work independently, as well as collaboratively during their inquiries. Students collaborate on separate and shared inquiries through talk, interaction, and discussion, and spend time creating products or performances, sharing them with various audiences. Inquiry also allows students to take action to contribute meaningfully to their communities.

Further, along the way and/or afterward, students have opportunities to reflect, which drives both their learning and overall development. According to the proposed instructional theory of change, these actions and conditions enable students to participate in well-designed and well-facilitated disciplinary and transdisciplinary inquiry-based learning, resulting in several interim outcomes:



- Students are engaged and interested in their learning,
- students exercise agency through voice, choice, and ownership,
- students take risks and cope with uncertainty and frustration,
- students deeply learn concepts and practices across the disciplines, and
- students feel satisfaction about what they have learned and accomplished, and see it as meaningfully connected to their lives outside school, their community, and the world.

By pursuing their questions and curiosities, supported by their teachers and fellow students, students are engaged and interested in their day-to-day work. Students can exercise agency, rather than being passive recipients of transmitted knowledge—they have opportunities to exercise agency by expressing their voices, making meaningful choices, and owning their learning. These are also major motivational benefits, which encourage students to take risks, overcome uncertainties, frustrations, or obstacles they face along the way, and explore alternative approaches during their inquiries. Well-designed and well-facilitated inquiry classrooms enable students to deeply learn concepts and practices. The productive, action-oriented work they do in this environment can result in students feeling satisfaction about what they learn and accomplish because it is connected to their own lives, the lives of others in their communities, and the world outside school.

QUALIFICATIONS SUMMARY

Accomplished education and government relations professional with a proven track record in strategic leadership, impact, and advocacy. Seeking a position to leverage my expertise in government relations, education policy, and organizational development to address systemic education reform for the United States and at scale. Former Arizona Teacher of the Year, Head of School, District Superintendent, County Superintendent of Schools, Elected Official, Senior Manager for Teach For America, and currently the Head of Development, Outreach, and Government Relations for the International Baccalaureate (IB), North America.

RELEVENT WORK EXPERIENCE

Government Relations 2020 - Current

International Baccalaureate, United States and Canada

Created the first government relations strategy for the IB North America, with a focus on advancing the IB's footprint in priority and developing markets in the U.S. and Canada. Legislative priorities included the promotion of advanced programs, dual enrollment, conceptual mathematics, early childhood education, graduation equivalency, university recognition, college readiness, and others. In the strategy's first year, we were successful in OH, UT, VA, NM, OR, MS, and FL while defeating legislation in TX. Federal strategy slated for FY2024. Fluent in Fiscal Note/legislative analysis software and how to leverage grassroots networks for state issues and legislative priorities.

Government Relations 2010 - 2020

Coconino County & City of Flagstaff, Arizona

As an elected official in the position of the Coconino County Superintendent of Schools, I created a legislative branch in the Coconino County Superintendent of Schools Office to promote legislative priorities in the Arizona legislature, led federal lobbying for key legislative priorities such as the Secure Rural Schools Act, and worked with 6 American Indian tribal nations on various education equity initiatives. After leaving the County and going to Teach For America, I led a successful city-wide effort at universal preschool for children in the City of Flagstaff as Chair of LAUNCH Flagstaff, a cooperative of elected officials, business leaders, and non-profits focused on education improvement. All of the above was informed by my dissertation studies, which focused on the machinations of state policy clearinghouses and how to move public opinion on key legislative issues.

Equal Employment Opportunity

During the performance of this contract, the contractor agrees as follows:

(1) The contractor will not discriminate against any employee or applicant for employment because of race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, or national origin. The contractor will take affirmative action to ensure that applicants are employed, and that employees are treated during employment without regard to their race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, or national origin. Such action shall include, but not be limited to the following:

Employment, upgrading, demotion, or transfer; recruitment or recruitment advertising; layoff or termination; rates of pay or other forms of compensation; and selection for training, including apprenticeship. The contractor agrees to post in conspicuous places, available to employees and applicants for employment, notices to be provided setting forth the provisions of this nondiscrimination clause.

(2) The contractor will, in all solicitations or advertisements for employees placed by or on behalf of the contractor, state that all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, or national origin.

(3) The contractor will not discharge or in any other manner discriminate against any employee or applicant for employment because such employee or applicant has inquired about, discussed, or disclosed the compensation of the employee or applicant or another employee or applicant. This provision shall not apply to instances in which an employee who has access to the compensation information of other employees or applicants as a part of such employee's essential job functions discloses the compensation of such other employees or applicants to individuals who do not otherwise have access to such information, unless such disclosure is in response to a formal complaint or charge, in furtherance of an investigation, proceeding, hearing, or action, including an investigation conducted by the employer, or is consistent with the contractor's legal duty to furnish information.

(4) The contractor will send to each labor union or representative of workers with which he has a collective bargaining agreement or other contract or understanding, a notice to be provided advising the said labor union or workers' representatives of the contractor's commitments under this section, and shall post copies of the notice in conspicuous places available to employees and applicants for employment.

(5) The contractor will comply with all provisions of Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965, and of the rules, regulations, and relevant orders of the Secretary of Labor.

(6) The contractor will furnish all information and reports required by Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965, and by rules, regulations, and orders of the Secretary of Labor, or pursuant thereto, and will permit access to his books, records, and accounts by the administering agency and the Secretary of Labor for purposes of investigation to ascertain compliance with such rules, regulations, and orders.

(7) In the event of the contractor's noncompliance with the nondiscrimination clauses of this contract or with any of the said rules, regulations, or orders, this contract may be canceled, terminated, or suspended in whole or in part and the contractor may be declared ineligible for further Government contracts or federally assisted construction contracts in accordance with procedures authorized in Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965, and such other sanctions may be imposed and remedies invoked as provided in Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965, or by rule, regulation, or order of the Secretary of Labor, or as otherwise provided by law.

(8) The contractor will include the portion of the sentence immediately preceding paragraph (1) and the provisions of paragraphs (1) through (8) in every subcontract or purchase order unless exempted by rules, regulations, or orders of the Secretary of Labor issued pursuant to section 204 of Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965, so that such provisions will be binding upon each subcontractor or vendor. The contractor will take such action with respect to any subcontract or purchase order as the administering agency may direct as a means of enforcing such provisions, including sanctions for noncompliance:

Provided, however, that in the event a contractor becomes involved in, or is threatened with, litigation with a subcontractor or vendor as a result of such direction by the administering agency, the contractor may request the United States to enter into such litigation to protect the interests of the United States.

Clean Air Act and Federal Water Pollution Control Act

During the performance of this contract, the contractor agrees as follows:

(1) The contractor will not discriminate against any employee or applicant for employment because of race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, or national origin. The contractor will take affirmative action to ensure that applicants are employed, and that employees are treated during employment without regard to their race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, or national origin. Such action shall include, but not be limited to the following:

Employment, upgrading, demotion, or transfer; recruitment or recruitment advertising; layoff or termination; rates of pay or other forms of compensation; and selection for training, including apprenticeship. The contractor agrees to post in conspicuous places, available to employees and applicants for employment, notices to be provided setting forth the provisions of this nondiscrimination clause.

(2) The contractor will, in all solicitations or advertisements for employees placed by or on behalf of the contractor, state that all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, or national origin.

(3) The contractor will not discharge or in any other manner discriminate against any employee or applicant for employment because such employee or applicant has inquired about, discussed, or disclosed the compensation of the employee or applicant or another employee or applicant. This provision shall not apply to instances in which an employee who has access to the compensation information of other employees or applicants as a part of such employee's essential job functions discloses the compensation of such other employees or applicants to individuals who do not otherwise have access to such information, unless such disclosure is in response to a formal complaint or charge, in furtherance of an investigation, proceeding, hearing, or action, including an investigation conducted by the employer, or is consistent with the contractor's legal duty to furnish information.

(4) The contractor will send to each labor union or representative of workers with which he has a collective bargaining agreement or other contract or understanding, a notice to be provided advising the said labor union or workers' representatives of the contractor's commitments under this section, and shall post copies of the notice in conspicuous places available to employees and applicants for employment.

(5) The contractor will comply with all provisions of Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965, and of the rules, regulations, and relevant orders of the Secretary of Labor.

(6) The contractor will furnish all information and reports required by Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965, and by rules, regulations, and orders of the Secretary of Labor, or pursuant thereto, and will permit access to his books, records, and accounts by the administering agency and the Secretary of Labor for purposes of investigation to ascertain compliance with such rules, regulations, and orders.

(7) In the event of the contractor's noncompliance with the nondiscrimination clauses of this contract or with any of the said rules, regulations, or orders, this contract may be canceled, terminated, or suspended in whole or in part and the contractor may be declared ineligible for further Government contracts or federally assisted construction contracts in accordance with procedures authorized in Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965, and such other sanctions may be imposed and remedies invoked as provided in Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965, or by rule, regulation, or order of the Secretary of Labor, or as otherwise provided by law.

(8) The contractor will include the portion of the sentence immediately preceding paragraph (1) and the provisions of paragraphs (1) through (8) in every subcontract or purchase order unless exempted by rules, regulations, or orders of the Secretary of Labor issued pursuant to section 204 of Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965, so that such provisions will be binding upon each subcontractor or vendor. The contractor will take such action with respect to any subcontract or purchase order as the administering agency may direct as a means of enforcing such provisions, including sanctions for noncompliance:

Provided, however, that in the event a contractor becomes involved in, or is threatened with, litigation with a subcontractor or vendor as a result of such direction by the administering agency, the contractor may request the United States to enter into such litigation to protect the interests of the United States.

ADVANCED ACADEMIC PROGRAMS

ADDENDUM DATE: September 30, 2025

BUYER: Jay Garrison, CPPO, CPPB

THE FOLLOWING IS TO BE AMENDED:

ATTACHMENT A, COST, WILL BE DELETED AND REPLACED WITH A NEW COST SHEET. SEE ATTACHED. FAILURE TO PROVIDE THE REVISED COST SHEET AND ALL REQUIRED ITEMS WILL BE JUST CAUSE TO DEEM YOUR SUBMITTAL AS NONRESPONSIVE.

SECTION 3.4 SHALL BE AMENDED TO THE FOLLOWING:

AWARD LENGTH: Knox County intends to issue a one (1) year award with an option to renew upon consent of both Knox County and the awarded Contractor. This term bid agreement may be renewed for an additional four (4) years, one (1) year at a time for a possible total of five (5) years. Knox County reserves the right to revoke the award if a pattern of unavailability arises with the successful proposer(s).

SECTION 3.29 SHALL BE AMENDED TO THE FOLLOWING:

PRICING: The proposer(s) warrants that the unit price stated shall remain firm for a period of twelve (12) months from the first day of the Contract period. If the Contractor's price is increased after the first contract period, Knox County must be given a written notice to consider. Such a request shall include as a minimum, (1) the cause for the adjustment; (2) the amount of the change requested with documentation to support the requested adjustment. Price increases will only be considered at the renewal period(s). If the price increase is rejected the contractor may:

- Continue with the existing prices;
- Request a lower price increase;
- Not accept the renewal offer.

If a price increase is approved by Knox County, the approval notification will be done in writing and the Contractor will be notified of the new price schedule and effective date of increase. This documentation will become part of the proposal file. No approvals will be authorized verbally.

THE FOLLOWING IS FOR CLARIFICATION:

QUESTION 1: Could you please clarify whether the accrediting organization that issues any certifications to students must be Tennessee-based, or if national accreditation is acceptable?

ANSWER 1: National accreditation is acceptable.

QUESTION 2: We understand that Knox County intends to draft the contract. As a global provider of specialist exam services, we typically begin with a bespoke contract template that includes essential terms specific to our services—such as exam security protocols—which may not be covered in a standard agreement. This template has been successfully used as a starting point with many U.S. districts. For efficiency during the contracting phase, would Knox County be amenable to reviewing and potentially using our template as the basis for the agreement?

ANSWER 2: The County's Contract will take precedence over all other Contract documents. Proposers may submit a separate document with other terms and conditions, however, conflicting terms and conditions between the County's Contract and any other agreement will be governed by the County's Contract.

QUESTION 3: The RFP references Exhibit B as a sample contract, but it appears to be missing from the document. Could you kindly provide a copy?

ANSWER 3: See attached.

QUESTION 4: The RFP requests fixed pricing for the initial 36-month term. We typically offer fixed pricing with an annual inflationary adjustment. Could you advise on how Knox County would prefer suppliers to address inflationary increases in their proposals?

ANSWER 4: Knox County is amending this requirement to require fixed pricing for a period of 12 months from the date of contract commencement. No cost increases will be granted during any term of the contract.

QUESTION 5: Could you please clarify what is meant by "unit price" in this context? Is it intended to refer to pricing per student, per exam, per school, or another metric?

ANSWER 5: This requirement has been amended per the revised Cost sheet. See attached.

QUESTION 6: We have reviewed the Appendix C insurance requirements. Because we are an entity headquartered in the UK, we may not be able to comply with all of these requirements. Where we may need derogations e.g. it may not be possible to name you as an additional insured, how should we indicate this?

ANSWER 6: This requirement cannot be waived. The County must be named additionally insured on the policy. Upon a notice of award to a proposer(s), the successful proposer(s) will be required to submit a current Certificate of Insurance along with all endorsement pages naming Knox County as additionally insured.

QUESTION 7: Do you want us to list all the AP courses that Knox has currently bought from us?

ANSWER 7: No. This is a new, standalone solicitation and previous experience with Knox County will not be considered.

QUESTION 8: In regards to samples, we were going to send one copy of each course student edition. Do you require digital access as well?

ANSWER 8: Digital access is not required, but acceptable.

QUESTION 9: Would the district consider an all-digital platform to fulfill this RFP's scope of work?

ANSWER 9: No. The County will not accept an all-digital platform.

QUESTION 10: Can the curriculum be supplemental to the courses or must it be core curriculum?

ANSWER 10: The curriculum can be supplemental.

End of addendum.

[1] Dual enrollment credit provided by a Top 50 global school (currently the University of Pittsburgh).

Outlier by Savvas

Outlier by Savvas features online dual-enrollment courses that allow students to earn both high school and a college credit recommendation from American Council on Education.

With the Outlier mastery-based approach, students earn college credit recommendations based on overall course performance. Courses feature cinematically produced lectures by leading instructors and professors from renowned institutions, including NYU, Duke, and NASA. Asynchronous access enables students to easily fit Outlier courses into their daily schedule.

Helping High School Students Become College Ready

With Outlier, high school students can earn dual credit at a pace that enables them to become college ready. Both Intro to Financial Accounting and Intro to Statistics are recommended for three Lower Division, Baccalaureate credits by American Council on Education (ACE) and cover the duration of the academic year. We recommend courses be scheduled during a student's academic day. Students can access course material through an internet connection with minimal technology requirements.

Outlier courses combine cinematic video and charismatic professors with modern, evidence-based teaching. Its diverse catalog of award-winning courses in math, science, social science, and business are taught by hand-picked instructors from top institutions. Instruction is delivered through our intuitive, user-friendly platform that makes it easy for students to focus on learning.

Outlier offers the following additional customer benefits:

- Completion and pass rates similar to on-campus national averages
- Flexible staffing and scheduling with asynchronous, year-long cohorts and no minimum or maximum enrollment
- Award-winning, cinematically produced lectures with instructors from renowned institutions, including NYU, Duke, and NASA
- Real-time visibility into student progress data
- Comprehensive student support

Outlier by Savvas Courses

Outlier offers 9 online, asynchronous, credit-worthy college courses enabling students to earn a college credit recommendation of three discipline-specific, Lower Division Baccalaureate credits. Courses span across the science, technology, engineering, and math (STEM); humanities/social sciences; and business/economics academic disciplines.

Outlier by Savvas includes the following course offerings:

- Calculus I
- College Algebra*
- Computer Science I
- Introduction to Astronomy
- Introduction to Business
- Introduction to Financial Accounting
- Introduction to Macroeconomics
- Introduction to Statistics
- Precalculus

 While all other courses are recommended for 3 credits, College Algebra is recommended for 2 credits.*

We recommend courses be scheduled during students' academic day; however, course material can be accessed at any time (via the customer learning management system) through internet connection and minimal technology requirements. Outlier courses are not designed to prepare students for standardized testing.

Mastery-Based Learning

Outlier courses are grounded in mastery-based learning, a pedagogical approach that emphasizes student engagement and interaction during the learning process. Mastery-based learning shifts students from the traditional role of passive recipients of information to active participants who are striving to develop their own knowledge through meaningful activities.

Outlier courses, lectures, and our learning management system are designed to promote student engagement by encouraging the active application of critical thinking and problem-solving. Our methodology prioritizes the needs and interests of students, allowing them to take ownership of their learning and make meaningful connections with course content. In addition, the Outlier approach encourages students to analyze and synthesize—rather than simply absorb or memorize—the material.

Students are advised to engage in reflective practices throughout their coursework: assessing their own learning progress, identifying areas for improvement, and making connections between new and prior knowledge. The mastery-based learning methodology emphasizes the importance of applying knowledge to real-world contexts to further students' understanding of the relevance and practical implications of the subject matter. Our pedagogy recognizes that students have diverse learning styles and preferences, so we provide a variety of learning tools in every course.

Courses are designed to develop students' higher-order cognitive skills, improve knowledge retention and subject matter mastery, and promote academic and skill development for employment. Continuous feedback and assessment are integral to our approach.

Digital Learning for Dual Credit

Outlier courses are 100 percent online, require an average of an hour of work per day, and can fit any school schedule. Courses were developed in-house with oversight by, and in accordance with, the academic standards and policies of the University of Pittsburgh.

Upon login to the Outlier learning management system (LMS), students have everything they need to earn their final grade. The platform includes pre-recorded cinematic lectures; extensive learning activities to support content mastery; assessments, quizzes, and homework assignments; and student support, including access to subject-matter experts.

The Outlier LMS was created by game designers in partnership with experts in pedagogy. Courses feature Hollywood-quality lecture videos and learning tools that reward engagement and immerse students in subject matter. The seamless, dark mode feel of the Outlier LMS allows students to think deeply and test new ideas on their way to mastering concepts.

Digital support for students includes the following features embedded in each course:

- A Course Toolkit includes all major course reference materials, including syllabus and grading formula.
- An on-demand student orientation video is embedded in the first chapter.
- An online Student Self-Service Help Center includes frequently asked questions and detailed information about how to take Outlier courses and how to use the Outlier LMS.
- Proactive, personalized email reminders tell students how they are doing and remind them of what is most important, right now, for their courses.
- Academic support includes access to subject matter experts through the Outlier LMS.

Learning support also includes the following pacing and time management tools:

- Students receive reminders of their next modules.
- Students can set study blocks and receive reminders via email and text marking logins during study blocks and tracking streaks.
- An automated checklist monitors course activity and progress according to the syllabus suggested pace, with alerts if students are falling behind and links to resources for getting back on track.

Additionally, every student is enrolled in a College Success course with modules on time management, why college can be beneficial, and how to think about the financial return on investment of college.

The all-encompassing digital format of Outlier courses provides school leaders with exceptional flexibility for scheduling and multiple course offerings. Each course is 39 weeks long and includes 35 weeks of instruction with four weeks of break time. Students should expect to spend approximately one hour on their Outlier course each school day, but approximately five hours of work per week can be completed at any time during the week. The structure of chapters and sections varies by course, and students have hard deadlines for assignments and exams.

Educators are provided with the tools they need to help students succeed. School leaders using Outlier programs have access to a dashboard with detailed student data, enabling them to monitor student activity, progress, and performance in real-time—and develop customized intervention strategies to support students to strong outcomes.

Outlier Lecturers and Tools

Lectures feature full playback functionality (pause, rewind, and replay), closed captioning, and adjustable playback so students can speed up or slow down lectures to suit their own pace. Searchable, downloadable transcripts allow students to easily review material. Additionally, students can use online or printed fill-in-the-blank lecture notes to follow along with the lecture.

Every lecturer was chosen because of their ability to bring concepts to life on-campus and on-screen, as well as their academic reputation and that of the institutions with which they are associated. The cinematic quality of Outlier lectures—including custom sets, warm lighting and jewel tones to draw attention to lecturers, and camera work and editing to create a seamless experience—help engage students and foster learning.

Learning Tools to Help Students Succeed

The pre-recorded lectures in Outlier courses are designed so that students feel like they are in a small class taught by a global expert. Within each lesson, students can explore content in the best sequence for them, making it easy for students to develop their own learning style or find additional opportunities to reinforce concepts they find more difficult.

Each chapter includes the following components to enhance student learning:

- Guesswork. Every chapter begins with low-stakes questions about the content, a practice known to help students learn upcoming material.

- Active Learning Cards. At any time, students can access multi-modal exercises tailored to the learning objectives. In addition to reinforcing learning objectives, active learning cards enable students to identify concepts where additional practice or lecture review would help them build mastery.
- Practice Terms and Problem Sets. Students use digital flashcards and practice problem sets to work on a given topic or concept as much as they need to on the path to mastery. Practice problem sets are structured so that students continue to practice early concepts in later chapters.

Educator Role and Experience

Throughout an Outlier course, each school site provides two main roles:

- Leadership Administrators are decision-makers supervising program implementation who ensure schools have the required infrastructure and resourcing to run Outlier programs.
- Educators are school staff who are in the room with students while they take their Outlier courses. Persons in this role provide direct, day-to-day student support and coaching, ideally including 1-1 weekly conversations with each student.

Educators assume the role of coach and guide, regardless of their disciplinary background, to help high school students develop college-level study skills within the familiarity of a high school setting.

We recommend that Educators review each student's real-time progress and performance with them on a weekly basis to reinforce good habits, help students identify their specific areas for improvement, and build the study skills they need to succeed at the college level.

A typical 1-1 student coaching session might include the following activities:

- Reflect on the student's experience of the course. Remind them that they are learning how to do something that is new and challenging.
- Review the student's platform activity to ensure that students are navigating to and taking advantage of all instructional resources on the platform (guesswork, lectures, active learning exercises, practice terms and problem sets, and quizzes).
- Identify activities where each student feels comfortable versus challenged, and compare each student's narrative to their trending progress and performance. Review quiz and assignment grades to identify study skills or habits that are driving positive or unstable outcomes.
- Check student progress versus recommended course pacing and identify approaches to stay on track or catch up.

The Outlier Difference

To further explain the Educator experience and role in an Outlier program, it is important to note two main ways in which Outlier differs from most online dual enrollment programs and from digital curricular resources, as described below.

First, Outlier does not provide—or require high school customers to provide—specific instructional personnel. Instead, instruction is available on-platform, on-demand, and programming can be managed by anyone who is licensed to serve as a state-compliant teacher of record. This individual does not need to have subject matter area expertise in the course of study in which students are participating. Outlier provides grading and academic support from subject matter experts through the LMS.

Second, the in-classroom Educator is not responsible for platform or academic support. Outlier provides support service personnel for all courses from 8:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. central time Monday through Friday via the student-facing platform. All support staff and contractors must comply with key regulations, including the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA).

Award-Winning Outlier

Outlier has been recognized with the following industry awards:

- Time 100 Best Inventions, 2020
- ASU-GSV EdTech 150, 2022 and 2023
- Time World's Top EdTech Companies, 2024
- Tech & Learning's Best Tools for Back to School, 2024

- Engaging Lesson Videos. Each lesson begins with an instructional video from an expert educator designed to engage students in the learning objectives.
- Interactive Reading. The lesson video is followed by an interactive reading where students explore new material with embedded interactives like hot spots, flip cards, slides, videos, and more.
- Integrated Activities. Between lessons, purposefully embedded activities incorporate a variety of interactive tools for students to practice what they have learned.
- Project-Based Learning. End-of-module projects provide opportunities for students to apply what they have learned to real-world scenarios.
- Real-World Preparation. Students become career ready when they go beyond learning concepts to applying them in real life. Through practical activities, students gain the skills they need for in-demand careers.

Topics, Learning Objectives, and Concepts

Course modules include the following learning components:

- Introduction Video and Description. Each module begins with an introductory video where the instructor introduces the topics and learning objectives. The video is followed by a short description of module content.
- Learning Objectives. Each module introduction includes learning objectives for students to review prior to beginning instruction.
- Polling Question. Students engage with an interactive poll related to the upcoming module content. After completing the poll, students can see how their peers responded with a percentage breakdown of the results.
- New Vocabulary. The module introduction concludes with an interactive vocabulary matching activity, designed to familiarize students with important words and concepts they will learn.

Course Timing and Pacing

Savvas CTE courses are full-credit options that can be used to support a semester- or year-long option. On average, instruction requires 80 hours, or three to four lessons per week. Teachers can customize course components to meet specific student learning needs.

Student-Centered Design for Learning

The research-based instruction in Savvas CTE courses is designed to maximize student achievement, help students to discover their interests, and enhance their job-ready skills. Understanding by Design, growth mindset, video-based learning, problem-based learning, and project-based learning are combined to prepare students for career success.

Delivered on our award-winning Savvas Realize platform, the course engages students with relevant content, interactive exercises, readings, projects, and more. Students become career ready as they go beyond understanding concepts to applying them in real life through practical activities.

Lesson Activities, Short Answer, and Reflection

Each lesson provides learning opportunities such as engaging readings, interactive exercises, instructional videos, visuals and graphics, and animated GIFs where appropriate. Lessons are designed to provide students with a wide range of methods for learning the content. Students progress through the material at their own pace.

A variety of learning activities help students check their own understanding of the content and enable them to demonstrate mastery of specified learning objectives. Activities include multiple choice, matching, short response, and reflection exercises.

Project-Based Learning

Through project-based learning opportunities, students apply what they have learned in each module. Projects provide a variety of formats for students to demonstrate mastery of the learning objectives, including presentations, interviews, infographics, and images.

Quizzes, Midterm, and Final Exam

Modules conclude with a comprehensive quiz covering the specific learning objectives for that module. Quizzes are multiple choice and automatically graded. Using the self-assessing concept checks embedded throughout each learning module, students can check their own understanding of the content and get real-time feedback.

Through summative midterm exams, teachers can evaluate student understanding of the content covered up until that point. The midterm is intended to gauge student progress and identify areas where improvement is needed. Real-time feedback shows students how well they understand the course content.

A comprehensive final exam at the end of each course covers all the learning objectives presented in each module.

The module level quizzes, midterm exam, and final exam offer test banks with randomized question selection to ensure academic integrity.

Differentiation for Diverse Learning Needs

Designed for virtual or blended classrooms, Savvas CTE courses provide for flexibility in learning environments to accommodate different student preferences and needs. Interactive learning elements such as videos, readings, and projects engage students at different levels of understanding.

Additionally, the courses emphasize practical application through assignments such as creating infographics and written reflection, allowing students to express their knowledge in a creative manner.

Language Support and Accessibility

Savvas CTE courses include the following features for language support and student accessibility:

- Language Translation. Students can translate course text, including video transcripts, into more than 100 languages. Savvas CTE courses feature Speechstream, a third-party language translation tool.

Preparing Students for Success. Savvas PathMaker gives students a head start on their postsecondary goals. Students graduate equipped with college course experience, credit recommendations, industry certification, and transferable skills needed to thrive in the modern workforce.

Requirement

Proposers must demonstrate an understanding of Knox County's needs and fully explain their overall approach to meet the County's requirements. This must thoroughly describe how the proposed services will meet the requirements outlined in Section 4.4. Proposer must clearly address the following:

- Describe how the program aligns with Early Postsecondary Opportunities (EPSO).

Response

Savvas PathMaker, which combines Outlier by Savvas dual-enrollment courses and Savvas Career and Technical Education (CTE) courses, provides students with a head start on post-high school success by equipping them with college course experience and credit recommendations, industry certification, and transferable skills while still in high school.

The alignment between Savvas PathMaker and the goals of EPSO is demonstrated in the following ways:

- Earn Postsecondary Credit and Decrease Time/Cost

A central function of EPSO is allowing students to earn postsecondary credits while in high school, thus decreasing the time and cost of completing a typical certificate or degree. Savvas PathMaker plans align with this EPSO goal in the following ways:

  - College Credit: Outlier dual-enrollment courses enable students to earn both high school and a college credit recommendation. Students who earn a score of 70% or higher qualify for a Lower Division Baccalaureate credit recommendation by American Council on Education (ACE).
  - Postsecondary Alignment: The Outlier courses are actual college courses. They were developed to the academic standards of the University of Pittsburgh, a top 50 institution, which ensures that students who successfully complete Outlier courses have a rigorous foundation in the subject(s) they study.
  - Industry Certification: Many of the courses included in PathMaker's Savvas CTE component prepare students for industry-recognized certification exams. After successful completion of these certification prep courses, students have the opportunity to graduate from high school having already earned valuable professional credentials, enhancing opportunities to pursue rewarding careers.

- Prepare for Postsecondary Rigor and Success

EPSOs ensure students are ready to succeed in education and training after high school, helping them become familiar with postsecondary rigor and expectations as well as helping them develop the confidence and skills needed after high school. Savvas PathMaker plans align with this EPSO goal in the following ways:

  - College-Level Instruction and Expectations: Outlier courses are designed for students (generally grades 11 and 12) seeking additional challenge beyond high school graduation requirements. The instruction is delivered via cinematically produced lectures by leading instructors and professors from renowned institutions, including NYU, Duke, and NASA.

- Mastery-Based Learning: Outlier courses utilize a mastery-based learning approach, which is a pedagogical method that emphasizes student engagement, interaction, and the active application of critical thinking and problem-solving. This methodology shifts students from passive recipients to active participants who take ownership of their learning.
- Skill Development and Support: As college courses, the Outlier courses are designed to develop students' higher-order cognitive skills, improve knowledge retention, and promote academic and skill development for employment. Furthermore, every student is enrolled in a College Success course with modules focused on time management and thinking about the financial return on investment of college.

  Savvas CTE courses also develop career awareness as well as industry-specific and transferable skills for students, helping them become confident in their post-secondary plans.
- Coaching Role: School staff serving as Educators in the Outlier program assume the role of coach and guide to help high school students develop college-level study skills within the familiar high school setting.

- Making Informed Career Decisions

EPSOs allow students to make informed postsecondary and career decisions.

- Career Exploration and Pathways: Savvas PathMaker offers a comprehensive catalog of Savvas CTE courses spanning 11 career clusters and 63 courses (such as health science, IT, and business). These courses help students explore career opportunities and build essential skills for today's high-demand fields.
- Customized Experiences: Educators can mix and match the Outlier dual enrollment and CTE options to create customized student learning experiences that meet the unique labor market needs of their communities and the career plans of the students. One example of a Savvas PathMaker career pathway is Computer Science, Data Analytics, Small Business Management, and Digital Marketing, each combining CTE certification courses with Outlier dual-enrollment college courses.

By offering both college credit opportunities through dual enrollment and professional credentials through industry certification preparation, Savvas PathMaker acts as an all-in-one digital solution that directly supports the research-backed finding that students who participate in early postsecondary courses are more likely to enroll and persist in postsecondary environments.

Requirement

- Describe how the program provides opportunities for students to demonstrate career readiness and the potential to earn postsecondary credit.

Outlier: Discipline-Specific Skills

Outlier courses are grounded in mastery-based learning, a pedagogical approach that emphasizes student engagement and interaction during the learning process. Mastery-based learning shifts students from the traditional role of passive recipients of information to active participants who are striving to develop their own knowledge through meaningful activities.

Projects and assignments are tailored to specific course content. Mathematics courses and Intro to Astronomy include practice problems focused on modeling real-world phenomena, social sciences courses include case studies, Intro to Business has a capstone business plan project, and Computer Science I has a capstone programming project.

Outlier courses, lectures, and our learning management system are designed to promote student engagement by encouraging the active application of critical thinking, inquiry, reasoning, and problem-solving. Our methodology prioritizes the needs and interests of students, allowing them to take ownership of their learning and make meaningful connections with course content. In addition, the Outlier approach encourages students to analyze and synthesize—rather than simply absorb or memorize—the material.

Students are advised to engage in reflective practices throughout their coursework: assessing their own learning progress, identifying areas for improvement, and making connections between new and prior knowledge. The mastery-based learning methodology emphasizes the importance of applying knowledge to real-world contexts to further students' understanding of the relevance and practical implications of the subject matter. Our pedagogy recognizes that students have diverse learning styles and preferences, so we provide a variety of learning tools in every course.

Courses are designed to develop students' communication and higher-order cognitive skills, improve knowledge retention and subject matter mastery, and promote academic and skill development for employment. Continuous feedback and assessment are integral to our approach.

- Assignments. Depending on the course, graded assignments include problem sets, projects, or written assignments. The Outlier platform provides scoring and grading for all required assignments.
- Quizzes. Students can take quizzes multiple times and only the highest score is recorded. This makes quizzes the heart of mastery-based learning on Outlier. Students can use quizzes to assess their mastery of a segment of the course, identify topics for further study, review and practice those topics, then quiz again to demonstrate mastery or improve their grades.
- Exams. Most courses have six exams. The last two are taken together and the final exam is cumulative. Exams typically cover one to four chapters of material and are auto graded on the Outlier platform.
- Study Guides. Prior to taking exams, students can access a study guide that outlines the exam length and format as well as concepts and key terms that will be tested. Study tips, additional practice problems, and study prompts are provided for some courses.

Students who score a 70% (C-) or higher in their Outlier course qualify for a credit recommendation from American Council on Education. Full details on credit recommendations by course are available via links to the Outlier by Savvas Listings in the ACE National Guide in the attached course catalog.

Students who wish to pursue transfer credit are encouraged to review course learning outcomes and detailed topics of study with an advisor at the institution to which they hope to transfer credit. Upon completion of the course, students can apply for Lower Division Baccalaureate transfer credit by sharing their score in the course, along with their course syllabus and the ACE National Guide listing for that course with an advisor at their college or university. Any questions about credit review and recommendation processes can be directed to the ACE National Guide Help Center: https://acenationalguide.zendesk.com/hc/en-us.

Clarifications and Exceptions

Savvas Learning Company LLC (Savvas) submits the following clarifications and/or exceptions to the Knox County Schools (TN) (District) Request for Proposal #3688 for Advanced Academics Program (RFP). Savvas is happy to discuss these items, as well as any other potential agreement terms, in connection with any proposed award of a contract to Savvas pursuant to the RFP.

General clarifications and exceptions

Savvas' response is subject to these clarifications and exceptions, any terms applicable to the offered products, and any variations from RFP specifications in its response.

Specific clarifications and exceptions

Section I - Proposal Preparation and Submission

Page 3, Section 1.22, Signing of Proposals: Savvas has signed the proposal document and is amenable to that serving as acceptance of the terms and conditions included in the RFP, subject to these clarifications and exceptions, applicable product terms, and RFP specification variations. Savvas will work with the District in good faith to develop a mutually agreeable contract.

Page 3, Section 1.27, Vendor Default: Savvas will look to correct any defective or nonconforming work as quickly as practicable and would anticipate a 30-day cure period. Savvas will not be responsible for the purchase of substitute products or services.

Section II - Obligations, Rights and Remedies

Page 4, Section 2.3, Assignment: Savvas reserves the right to assign any resulting contract in connection with a merger, acquisition, or sale of all or substantially all of Savvas' assets. As such transactions are inherently confidential, Savvas would be unable to notify the District in advance. Should such an event occur during the life of any resulting agreement, Savvas will notify the District as soon as reasonably practicable and will ensure that the terms of any agreement are binding on any successor.

Page 4, Section 2.8, Default: Savvas does not object to the District having a right to terminate the contract for default, provided, however, that such right should also be available to Savvas, and that each party should be afforded a 30-day cure period.

Page 4, Section 2.10, Incorporation; also, Page 5, Section 2.18, Order of Precedence: As stated above, Savvas is willing to negotiate a mutually acceptable contract, including documents to be incorporated and the priority of such documents. If the final contract includes multiple documents or attachments, the order of precedence will be determined by the mutual agreement of the parties as part of final contract negotiations. Savvas objects to the District's RFP governing Savvas' response as that might lead to confusion regarding provisions in the RFP to which Savvas objected or indicated that it would not meet.

Page 4, Section 2.11, Indemnification-Hold Harmless: Savvas accepts this indemnification provision subject to receiving prompt, written notice of any claim and being afforded the opportunity to defend such claim at its own expense.

Page 5, Section 2.15, Limitations of Liability: Savvas requests that any limitation of liability provision be made mutual, and suggests that, except for liability resulting from the indemnification obligation or an infringement by the District of Savvas' intellectual property rights, either party's maximum aggregate liability for direct and proven damages shall not exceed the fees received under a resulting contract in the twelve-month period preceding the date of the claim and that neither party be liable for any indirect and/or consequential damages. Savvas is happy to discuss further in the event of an award.

Page 5, Section 2.19, Remedies: District remedies are limited to actual documented damages and are subject to the limitation of liability set forth in Savvas' response above to Section 2.15.

Page 6, Section 2.23, Termination: Savvas agrees that the District may terminate any resulting contract for breach but requests a 30-day cure period.

Page 6, Section 2.24, Warranty: Savvas warrants that the services provided shall be performed by qualified personnel in a good and skillful manner consistent with industry standards and disclaims all other warranties.

Section III - Special Terms and Conditions

Page 8, Section 3.18, Insurance: Savvas maintains a comprehensive insurance program and can generally meet the listed requirements; however, there may be certain technical aspects of the insurance clause that require discussion in the event of an award. See further responses to Attachment B, Insurance Checklist, below.

Page 9, Section 3.29, Price: Savvas will guarantee pricing for the first three years. Pricing may be modified after the three-year guarantee for subsequent renewals. Savvas will not commit to seeking approval or providing documentation regarding the rationale for any price increases.

Attachment C (Insurance Checklist)

#22: Savvas' policies provide for automatic blanket additional insured endorsement where required by contract but do not specifically name third parties; therefore, a separate endorsement will not be provided.

Additionally, in the interest of time and expense, Savvas has not submitted Attachment C to its insurer for signature; however, Savvas' authorized signatory has completed the form and confirms that Savvas' insurance program meets the District's needs with the above exceptions.

GENERAL FEDERAL FUNDING REQUIREMENTS
KNOX COUNTY PROCUREMENT DIVISION

Equal Employment Opportunity

Savvas acknowledges and agrees to these requirements.

During the performance of this contract, the contractor agrees as follows:
(1) The contractor will not discriminate against any employee or applicant for employment because of race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, or national origin. The contractor will take affirmative action to ensure that applicants are employed, and that employees are treated during employment without regard to their race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, or national origin. Such action shall include, but not be limited to the following:
Employment, upgrading, demotion, or transfer; recruitment or recruitment advertising; layoff or termination; rates of pay or other forms of compensation; and selection for training, including apprenticeship. The contractor agrees to post in conspicuous places, available to employees and applicants for employment, notices to be provided setting forth the provisions of this nondiscrimination clause.

(2) The contractor will, in all solicitations or advertisements for employees placed by or on behalf of the contractor, state that all qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, or national origin.

(3) The contractor will not discharge or in any other manner discriminate against any employee or applicant for employment because such employee or applicant has inquired about, discussed, or disclosed the compensation of the employee or applicant or another employee or applicant. This provision shall not apply to instances in which an employee who has access to the compensation information of other employees or applicants as a part of such employee's essential job functions discloses the compensation of such other employees or applicants to individuals who do not otherwise have access to such information, unless such disclosure is in response to a formal complaint or charge, in furtherance of an investigation, proceeding, hearing, or action, including an investigation conducted by the employer, or is consistent with the contractor's legal duty to furnish information.

(4) The contractor will send to each labor union or representative of workers with which he has a collective bargaining agreement or other contract or understanding, a notice to be provided advising the said labor union or workers' representatives of the contractor's commitments under this section, and shall post copies of the notice in conspicuous places available to employees and applicants for employment.

(5) The contractor will comply with all provisions of Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965, and of the rules, regulations, and relevant orders of the Secretary of Labor.

(6) The contractor will furnish all information and reports required by Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965, and by rules, regulations, and orders of the Secretary of Labor, or pursuant thereto, and will permit access to his books, records, and accounts by the administering agency and the Secretary of Labor for purposes of investigation to ascertain compliance with such rules, regulations, and orders.

(7) In the event of the contractor's noncompliance with the nondiscrimination clauses of this contract or with any of the said rules, regulations, or orders, this contract may be canceled, terminated, or suspended in whole or in part and the contractor may be declared ineligible for further Government contracts or federally assisted construction contracts in accordance with procedures authorized in Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965, and such other sanctions may be imposed and remedies invoked as provided in Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965, or by rule, regulation, or order of the Secretary of Labor, or as otherwise provided by law.

(8) The contractor will include the portion of the sentence immediately preceding paragraph (1) and the provisions of paragraphs (1) through (8) in every subcontract or purchase order unless exempted by rules, regulations, or orders of the Secretary of Labor issued pursuant to section 204 of Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965, so that such provisions will be binding upon each subcontractor or vendor. The contractor will take such action with respect to any subcontract or purchase order as the administering agency may direct as a means of enforcing such provisions, including sanctions for noncompliance:

Provided, however, that in the event a contractor becomes involved in, or is threatened with, litigation with a subcontractor or vendor as a result of such direction by the administering agency, the contractor may request the United States to enter into such litigation to protect the interests of the United States.

Clean Air Act and Federal Water Pollution Control Act

Contractors and subcontractors will comply with all applicable standards, orders or regulations issued pursuant to the Clean Air Act (42 U.S.C. 7401-7671q) and the Federal Water Pollution Control Act as amended (33 U.S.C. 1251-1387). Violations will be reported to the U.S. Department of Education (DOE) and the Regional office of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

Debarment and Suspension
A contract award will not be made to a party listed on the governmentwide exclusions in the System for Award Management (SAM).

Lobbying
The Contractor certifies, to the best of its knowledge and belief, that:

a. No federally appropriated funds have been paid or will be paid, by or on behalf of the Contractor, to any person for influencing or attempting to influence an officer or employee of an agency, a member of Congress, an officer or employee of Congress, or an employee of a member of Congress in connection with the awarding of any federal contract, the making of any federal grant, the making of any federal loan, the entering into of any cooperative agreement, and the extension, continuation, renewal, amendment, or modification of any federal contract, grant, loan, or cooperative agreement.

b. If any funds other than federally appropriated funds have been paid or will be paid to any person for influencing or attempting to influence an officer or employee of any agency, a member of Congress, an officer or employee of Congress, or an employee of a member of Congress in connection with any contract, grant, loan, or cooperative agreement, the Contractor shall complete and submit Standard Form-LLL, “Disclosure Form to Report Lobbying,'' in accordance with its instructions.

c. The Contractor shall require that the language of this certification be included in the award documents for all contractors and that all subcontractors shall certify and disclose accordingly.
This certification is a material representation of fact upon which reliance was placed when this transaction was made or entered into and is a prerequisite for making or entering into this transaction imposed by 31 U.S.C. § 1352.

Procurement of recovered materials.
Contractors must comply with section 6002 of the Solid Waste Disposal Act, as amended by the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act. The requirements of Section 6002 include procuring only items designated in guidelines of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) at 40 CFR part 247 that contain the highest percentage of recovered materials practicable, consistent with maintaining a satisfactory level of competition, where the purchase price of the item exceeds $10,000 or the value of the quantity acquired during the preceding fiscal year exceeded $10,000; procuring solid waste management services in a manner that maximizes energy and resource recovery; and establishing an affirmative procurement program for procurement of recovered materials identified in the EPA guidelines.

Preferences for Products Produced or Manufactured in the U.S.
(a) This contract award prefers the purchase, acquisition, or use of goods, products, or materials produced in the United States (including but not limited to iron, aluminum, steel, cement, and other manufactured products).

(b) For purposes of this section:

(1) “Produced in the United States” means, for iron and steel products, that all manufacturing processes, from the initial melting stage through the application of coatings, occurred in the United States.

(2) “Manufactured products” means items and construction materials composed in whole or in part of non-ferrous metals such as aluminum; plastics and polymer-based products such as polyvinyl chloride pipe; aggregates such as concrete; glass, including optical fiber; and lumber.

Good morning, I am back!

After checking with legal and finance, Savvas withdraws our exceptions with the comment below about the limitation of liability language:

Regarding Savvas' exception to Section II, (sub)Section 2.15, Limitations of Liability (page 5), Savvas will withdraw the overall exception; however, we request that consequential damages be removed from the list of liability exclusions since damages due to IP infringement could be argued to be consequential damages. Savvas is happy to discuss further if the District does not agree.

Thanks very much, Rachel.

Please let me know if you have questions or need anything further.

(3) The contractor will not discharge or in any other manner discriminate against any employee or applicant for employment because such employee or applicant has inquired about, discussed, or disclosed the compensation of the employee or applicant or another employee or applicant. This provision shall not apply to instances in which an employee who has access to the compensation information of other employees or applicants as a part of such employee's essential job functions discloses the compensation of such other employees or applicants to individuals who do not otherwise have access to such information, unless such disclosure is in response to a formal complaint or charge, in furtherance of an investigation, proceeding, hearing, or action, including an investigation conducted by the employer, or is consistent with the contractor's legal duty to furnish information.

(4) The contractor will send to each labor union or representative of workers with which he has a collective bargaining agreement or other contract or understanding, a notice to be provided advising the said labor union or workers' representatives of the contractor's commitments under this section, and shall post copies of the notice in conspicuous places available to employees and applicants for employment.

If the Contractor's price is increased after the first contract period, Knox County must be given a written notice to consider. Such a request shall include as a minimum, (1) the cause for the adjustment; (2) the amount of the change requested with documentation to support the requested adjustment. Price increases will only be considered at the renewal period(s). If the price increase is rejected the contractor may:

- Continue with the existing prices;
- Request a lower price increase;
- Not accept the renewal offer.

If a price increase is approved by Knox County, the approval notification will be done in writing and the Contractor will be notified of the new price schedule and effective date of increase. This documentation will become part of the proposal file. No approvals will be authorized verbally.

THE FOLLOWING IS FOR CLARIFICATION:

QUESTION 1: Could you please clarify whether the accrediting organization that issues any certifications to students must be Tennessee-based, or if national accreditation is acceptable?

ANSWER 1: National accreditation is acceptable.

QUESTION 2: We understand that Knox County intends to draft the contract. As a global provider of specialist exam services, we typically begin with a bespoke contract template that includes essential terms specific to our services—such as exam security protocols—which may not be covered in a standard agreement. This template has been successfully used as a starting point with many U.S. districts. For efficiency during the contracting phase, would Knox County be amenable to reviewing and potentially using our template as the basis for the agreement?

ANSWER 2: The County's Contract will take precedence over all other Contract documents. Proposers may submit a separate document with other terms and conditions, however, conflicting terms and conditions between the County's Contract and any other agreement will be governed by the County's Contract.

QUESTION 3: The RFP references Exhibit B as a sample contract, but it appears to be missing from the document. Could you kindly provide a copy?

ANSWER 3: See attached.

QUESTION 4: The RFP requests fixed pricing for the initial 36-month term. We typically offer fixed pricing with an annual inflationary adjustment. Could you advise on how Knox County would prefer suppliers to address inflationary increases in their proposals?

ANSWER 4: Knox County is amending this requirement to require fixed pricing for a period of 12 months from the date of contract commencement. No cost increases will be granted during any term of the contract.

QUESTION 5: Could you please clarify what is meant by "unit price" in this context? Is it intended to refer to pricing per student, per exam, per school, or another metric?

ANSWER 5: This requirement has been amended per the revised Cost sheet. See attached.

QUESTION 6: We have reviewed the Appendix C insurance requirements. Because we are an entity headquartered in the UK, we may not be able to comply with all of these requirements. Where we may need derogations e.g. it may not be possible to name you as an additional insured, how should we indicate this?

ANSWER 6: This requirement cannot be waived. The County must be named additionally insured on the policy. Upon a notice of award to a proposer(s), the successful proposer(s) will be required to submit a current Certificate of Insurance along with all endorsement pages naming Knox County as additionally insured.

QUESTION 7: Do you want us to list all the AP courses that Knox has currently bought from us?

ANSWER 7: No. This is a new, standalone solicitation and previous experience with Knox County will not be considered.

QUESTION 8: In regards to samples, we were going to send one copy of each course student edition. Do you require digital access as well?

ANSWER 8: Digital access is not required, but acceptable.

QUESTION 9: Would the district consider an all-digital platform to fulfill this RFP's scope of work?

ANSWER 9: No. The County will not accept an all-digital platform.

QUESTION 10: Can the curriculum be supplemental to the courses or must it be core curriculum?

ANSWER 10: The curriculum can be supplemental.

End of addendum.

23.6 These obligations shall not apply to any information which (a) is already in the public domain through no breach of this Agreement, including but not limited to information available through schools' web site(s); (b) was lawfully in Independent Contractor's Vendor's possession prior to receipt from an District school, its faculty staff or students; or (c) is received by Independent Contractor Vendor independently from a person or entity free to lawfully disclose such information other than an District school, its faculty, staff, or students.

23.7 Contractor warrants and represents that it shall, at all times, comply with the terms of this Agreement and with FERPA, COPPA, and all applicable laws of the state of Tennessee and further agrees not to disclose or re-disclose to any person or entity for any purpose whatsoever any personally identifiable student information as that term is defined by this agreement, FERPA, COPPA, or applicable laws of the state of Tennessee.

23.8 Contractor agrees that District or its designee may, upon request, audit Contractor to verify compliance with the applicable requirements of law.

24. Contract documents. It is mutually agreed by both parties that the following documents are made part of this Contract and are incorporated herein by reference:

A. Request for Proposal #3688, for Advanced Academic Programs and Addendum I
B. Contractor's Response to Request for Proposal #3688, to include any supplemental agreements, Terms and Conditions, etc., for Advanced Academic Programs and Addendum I

Introduction

Cambridge International Education is fully prepared to meet the program content and methodology requirements outlined by Knox County Schools. Our comprehensive academic program for grades 9–12 is designed to promote academic excellence and equity, align with Tennessee's Early Postsecondary Opportunities (EPSO), and prepare students for success in college, career, and life. Through rigorous coursework, validated assessments, and robust educator support, we offer a flexible and inclusive framework that meets the needs of diverse learners and supports the district's goals for readiness and achievement.

Cambridge International Education is the awarding body of the International Education group at Cambridge University Press & Assessment, part of the University of Cambridge. Our International Education group collaborates with schools worldwide to build an education that shapes knowledge, understanding, and skills. Together, we give learners the confidence they need to thrive and make a positive impact in a changing world.

We offer a globally trusted and flexible framework for education from age 3 to 19 (the Cambridge Pathway), informed by research, experience, and listening to educators. With recognized qualifications (such as Cambridge IGCSE and AS & A Level), high-quality resources, comprehensive support, and valuable insights, we help schools prepare every student for the opportunities and challenges ahead. Together, we help Cambridge learners be ready for the world.

Knox County Schools (KCS) serves 58,838 students across 94 schools, with 47 percent performing at or above grade level. The district includes 20 high schools, with a four-year graduation rate of 91.9 percent. Of those graduates, 61.9 percent complete a Career and Technical Education (CTE) concentration, and 67.5 percent enroll in postsecondary education the fall following graduation. KCS is committed to increasing student achievement and already offers rigorous academic programs such as Advanced Placement (AP) and International Baccalaureate (IB). In June 2025, KCS registered Powell High School as its first Cambridge school, expanding access to globally benchmarked academic pathways.

Cambridge believes all students have potential. Its programs are intentionally inclusive, designed to support academically advanced learners as well as those who may be underrepresented in traditional advanced coursework. The curriculum and assessments are adaptable, ensuring students at varying performance levels are both challenged and supported. This approach aligns with KCS's commitment to equity and access, providing rigorous academic experiences that prepare students for college, career, and lifelong learning.

Our comprehensive education program supports students in grades Pre-K through 12. This includes detailed syllabi for grades 9–12, curricular frameworks (schemes of work), validated assessments, scoring rubrics, professional development for educators, and ongoing implementation support. These resources are designed to enhance both teaching and learning, ensuring educators are equipped to deliver high-quality instruction and students are supported in achieving academic success.

Higher order thinking skills are a fundamental part of the Cambridge program, intentionally integrated throughout all aspects of design, pedagogy, assessment, and outcomes. Cambridge doesn't just acknowledge their essential contribution to students' academic and career achievement; we tell students how they can practice them, and we show educators how to teach them. Cambridge fully supports educators and learners by providing all resources necessary to successfully teach or complete each course. Cambridge assessments require demonstrations of the interaction between subject knowledge and higher order thinking skills. To effectively do this, assessments include multiple opportunities for students to demonstrate what they know and can do and require them to do so in multiple different ways (e.g., exams, essays, experiments, team or individual research projects, oral defenses).

Cambridge International Education is uniquely positioned to support Knox County Schools in its mission to cultivate lifelong learners who contribute meaningfully to their communities. Through rigorous, inclusive, and globally recognized educational experiences, Cambridge empowers students to reach their full potential and equips educators with the tools they need to foster excellence in the classroom. In the sections that follow, this proposal will demonstrate how Cambridge's experience, resources, and approach align with and support the specific needs and goals outlined in the RFP.

While teacher support and course materials are described later in this section, knowing where to find examples to refer to as you progress through the text may be helpful. We have included entire sets of course materials for three courses in Tab VII to illustrate our approach for supporting learning and instruction (described in Table 1). These courses are Pre-Advanced (IGCSE) English – First Language, Advanced (AS/A Level) English Language, and Advanced (AS/A Level), Global Perspectives and Research. Materials from other courses may be referenced in certain sections if they better demonstrate specific resources or philosophy.

The Cambridge Pathway

We offer a coherent curriculum for students aged 3 to 19 with clear progression at each stage. The Cambridge Pathway provides students with a deep content knowledge, conceptual understanding and higher order thinking skill development beginning as early as pre-K. Each program level focuses on developing the knowledge and skills necessary for success in the following program level. See Figure 1 for a summary and 'An International Education from Cambridge in Tab VII for a more detailed description of the program.

Our Cambridge pathway has a clearly articulated framework for progression from one stage to the next, thereby ensuring a student's success as they progress throughout pre-K-12 and into post-secondary education.

Below we have provided a high-level overview of each of our program offerings should KCS wish to explore the benefits of a comprehensive adoption of the Cambridge Pathway, and further information can be provided, but the majority of this proposal will focus on the high school stages.

- Cambridge Early Years is a play-based program for 3 – 6-year-olds that focuses on key areas of early childhood development: physical development; language and communication development; cognitive development; and social and emotional development. There are six curriculum areas to guide and support progress across all areas of development: communication and literacy; creative expression; mathematics; physical development; personal and social development; and understanding the world.
- Cambridge Primary is for students in grades K – 5 (ages 5-11) and provides a strong foundation in the core content areas of English, mathematics, and science. Cambridge Primary also includes global perspectives, digital literacy, modern foreign language, music, and wellbeing. Baseline assessment through Cambridge Insight provides data to understand potential.
- Cambridge Lower Secondary is for middle school students in grades 6 through 8 (ages 11-14) offering the same subjects as Cambridge Primary. Lower Secondary subjects prepare students for the next step in their educational pathway, and some subjects, such as digital literacy and computing, can be paired as a half-year elective.

- Cambridge Pre-Advanced (IGCSE) is the world's most popular international curriculum for students aged 14 to 16 years (generally 9th and 10th graders in the U.S.) with over 70 subjects. Some U.S. schools consider the IGCSE program to fulfill high school graduation requirements for honors courses. It is recognized by universities and employers around the world as evidence of academic achievement. These courses are excellent preparation for advanced academics and provides the foundation students need to excel.
- Cambridge Advanced includes AS Levels, which are one-year courses, equivalent to a first semester college course, typically receiving 3-4 college credits. A Levels are two-year courses, equivalent to the first and second semesters of a college course, receiving 6-8 credits. Cambridge Advanced has over 50 subjects and can culminate in the AICE (Advanced International Certificate of Education) Diploma.

Alignment with Early Postsecondary Opportunities (EPSO)

To support KCS' immediate objectives, we propose initial implementation of two program levels, the IGCSE Upper Secondary and Cambridge Advanced AS and A Levels. We recommend that high schools offer IGCSEs to support students in preparation for the AS and A Level courses. Students who participate in an IGCSE course become accustomed to both the rigor and assessment practices of Cambridge and are better prepared for success at the AS and A Level. The high school stages of the Cambridge Pathway can explicitly support Tennessee's EPSO and Ready Graduate goals.

Cambridge International AS & A Level courses are officially recognized by the Tennessee Department of Education as approved Early Postsecondary Opportunities (EPSOs). This designation means that Cambridge courses directly contribute to a student's ability to meet the Ready Graduate criteria, which includes completing EPSO requirements.

Students can fulfill the Ready Graduate indicator by:

- Successfully completing four EPSOs, which may include multiple Cambridge AS and A Level exams.
- Completing two Cambridge EPSOs in combination with an approved industry certification.

Cambridge assessments serve as valid evidence of EPSO completion and are aligned with the Tennessee Ready Graduate framework.

College and Career Readiness (CCR) Impact

Cambridge's EPSO-recognized courses directly support KCS's Ready Graduate indicators and Career Empowerment priority. Cambridge programs are designed to prepare students for postsecondary success through:

- Rigorous academic coursework benchmarked to international standards.
- Skill development in critical thinking, communication, collaboration, digital literacy, and global awareness.
- Real-world applications such as independent research, portfolio development, and interdisciplinary projects.

Students who pass Cambridge AS or A Level exams may earn college credit or advanced standing at institutions across Tennessee, the U.S., and the globe, accelerating college pathways and reducing postsecondary costs. (More on college credit below.) This supports:

- Early graduation opportunities
- Access to scholarships
- Financial savings for families

Cambridge's emphasis on applying knowledge in unfamiliar contexts ensures students are not only academically prepared but also career-ready, aligning with Tennessee's CCR goals.

Career Readiness and Postsecondary Credit Potential

Cambridge International AS & A Levels are considered college-level courses of study. Consulting teachers and college faculty help define educator and student needs and contribute to syllabi, course assessments, and supporting material content. Consulting universities review and confirm that syllabi cover the concepts and skills necessary for university success. To ensure the program continues to align with the skills necessary to succeed at university, instruction and learning objectives are developed in consultation with faculty at leading universities (including Harvard University, Stanford University, and the University of Cambridge) and ongoing feedback is sought from the U.S. Higher Education Advisory Council. More than 30 AS & A Level exams are recommended for college credit for a grade of E or higher by the American Council on Education, with several exams receiving credit recommendations for both lower and upper division courses. The recommendations can be viewed through the ACE National Guide.

Over 1000 universities in the U.S. accept Cambridge International AS & A Levels for credit and/or placement, including all Ivy League colleges and the entire Tennessee University system and the University of North Carolina system. Tab VII includes documentation of university acceptance of Cambridge International qualifications, including Recognition Worldwide, Global Recognition Factsheet, AS A Level Guide for Universities, and IGCSE Guide for Universities.

Our recognitions database describes college credit policies for our qualifications at competitive colleges worldwide: http://recognition.cambridgeinternational.org/.

Development of Critical Thinking, Inquiry, Reasoning, and Communication Skills

Cognitive skills are those that require conscious intellectual effort, such as thinking, reasoning, or remembering. Noncognitive skills include motivation, attitudes, autonomy, and goal setting. Learning skills include time management, note-taking, and communicating arguments and explanations clearly and logically. These skills last a lifetime and prepare students for their future lives. They also make learning enjoyable and rewarding. Educators often say this is what they should be teaching, but many do not know how. We acknowledge the essential nature of these skills and help educators teach them.

Teaching students to be effective, adaptive learners prepares them for university and careers. Students who demonstrate these effective learning strategies habitually approach academic tasks with a mindset of confidence, self-responsibility, reflectiveness, innovativeness and engagement. They employ a broad range of cognitive strategies and socio-emotional skills (including personal qualities such as resilience, self-motivation and self-regulation) to manage their performance effectively.

We design courses so that instructional tasks develop these skills and then design assessments to measure application of these skills. Researchers and scientists at Cambridge often conduct and publish research to better understand these skills and we disseminate findings about how best to teach and demonstrate them. Two features of the Cambridge program specifically target development of higher order thinking skills: The Cambridge Learner Attributes and the Global Perspectives and Research course.

The Cambridge Learner Attributes and Global Perspectives and Research

At the foundation of Cambridge programming are the Cambridge Learner Attributes, which support the development of learners who are confident, responsible, reflective, innovative, and engaged.

In 2006, University of Cambridge began a research program on critical thinking, creating a working definition to be applied to Cambridge program development and instruction, while identifying the challenges to teaching critical thinking, and documenting the benefits of critical thinking. As a result, in 2011, we developed a set of learner attributes describing the learning habits associated with success in school, college, the workplace, and life in general.

These attributes are explicitly developed in all subjects, activities, and assessments across the entire Cambridge Pathway. Cambridge syllabi and support material emphasize the learner attributes in subject-specific ways that complement their more general use across the curriculum. The attributes encompass what others have called competencies or 21st Century Skills and include problem-solving, critical thinking, and metacognition. They support the development of learning habits that will inspire students to become lifelong learners capable of leading economically productive, fulfilling lives. Students embodying the Cambridge learner attributes are:

- Confident in working with information and ideas – their own and those of others.
- Responsible for themselves, responsive to and respectful of others.
- Reflective as learners, developing their ability to learn.
- Innovative and equipped for new and future challenges.
- Engaged intellectually and socially, ready to make a difference.

We provide educators with training and guidance to develop these attributes in students. Developing the Cambridge Learner Attributes, describes how effective teaching practice using reflection and creativity nurtures student engagement, well-being, and learning to learn. The guide provides resources, co-curricular programs, and activities for teachers to use to teach these skills to their students. Cambridge Educational Briefs and Fact Sheets, such as Active Learning, Meta-cognition, and Assessment for Learning provide additional guidance for developing the learner attributes. All are provided in the electronic version of Tab VII; Fact Sheets samples in the print version.

Below in Course Offerings and Diploma Options, we go into detail to explain our Global Perspectives and Research (GP & R) course which was designed to ensure students are college-ready and supported in developing their thinking and learning skills. One of Cambridge's key goals is to teach students how to learn. We developed the Global Perspectives & Research (GP&R) course in response to concerns from universities over the college-readiness of students. Please reference this section including Table 4 for further detail.

Cross-Disciplinary Content Coverage

Like Knox County Schools, Cambridge is focused on developing "future-ready learners" who possess crucial life skills like critical thinking, communication, and adaptability, not just academic knowledge. Cambridge is also integrating AI tools and digital assessments to support educators and students in preparing for a rapidly changing world. Cambridge also supports Knox County Schools' mission to provide rigorous, relevant, and equitable learning experiences across all major content areas and disciplines, ensuring students are prepared for postsecondary success and career readiness.

Art and Creative Expression

Cambridge Art & Design encourages students to explore visual communication through a variety of media and techniques. The curriculum emphasizes creative inquiry, conceptual development, and reflective practice. Students analyze artistic traditions, develop portfolios, and present original work, building skills in visual literacy, design thinking, and creative problem-solving. Cambridge Digital Media & Design allows students to explore a range of processes and techniques in digital media through flexible course design covering digital photography, moving image, games design, and mobile and multimedia applications. Cambridge Drama encourages learners to develop their skills in performing, devising and researching a wide range of theatrical styles and genres.

Career and Technical Education (CTE)

Cambridge supports career readiness through Pre-Advanced and Advanced subjects aligned to the National Career Clusters Framework, including, but not limited to, Business, Computer Science, Travel & Tourism, Information & Communication Technology (ICT), Digital Media & Design, and Design & Technology. These courses integrate technical skills with entrepreneurial thinking, digital literacy, and project-based learning and can serve as introductory, intermediate, or capstone courses within a career pathway. Students gain exposure to industry-relevant tools and practices, preparing them for CTE pathways and industry certifications while also offering opportunities for college credit. Many of the associated certifications are categorized as Tier 2 or 3 on TN's Credentials of Value.

Language and Literacy (English and World Languages)

Cambridge English Language and Literature programs develop advanced reading, writing, speaking, and listening skills. Students engage with diverse texts, analyze language and structure, and produce coherent arguments and narratives. World Language offerings (e.g., Spanish, French, Mandarin) emphasize cultural competence, conversational fluency, and grammatical accuracy, preparing students for global communication and multilingual environments.

Mathematics

Cambridge Mathematics programs—from foundational levels to advanced coursework—emphasize logical reasoning, abstract thinking, and real-world application. Students develop fluency in algebra, geometry, statistics, and calculus, supported by inquiry-based instruction and performance tasks. The curriculum prepares students for STEM pathways and postsecondary coursework through rigorous content and problem-solving strategies.

Social Sciences

Cambridge Social Studies subjects—including Economics, European, International, and US History, Geography, Sociology, and Global Perspectives—promote analytical reasoning, source evaluation, and civic understanding. Students investigate historical events, interpret data, and engage in debates on contemporary issues. The Global Perspectives course fosters interdisciplinary inquiry and collaborative problem-solving on global challenges, aligning with Knox County's emphasis on civic literacy and global awareness.

Sciences

Cambridge Science programs including Biology, Chemistry, Physics, and Environmental Management emphasize scientific inquiry, experimental design, and data analysis. Students conduct hands-on investigations, interpret results, and apply scientific principles to real-world contexts. The curriculum supports STEM readiness and aligns with Tennessee science standards through rigorous content and lab-based learning.

Course Offerings and Diploma Options

Cambridge Pre-Advanced (IGCSE)

The Cambridge Pre-Advanced IGCSE curriculum includes over 70 subjects that may be offered and taken in any combination. Typically provided to students in their first two years of high school, IGCSE courses may be taken at two levels, Core and Extended (both requiring 130 guided learning hours). This allows teachers to adapt the course to students of a range of ability and include those whose first language is not English.

Cambridge IGCSE courses develop learners' knowledge, understanding, and skills in:

- Subject content
- Applying knowledge and understanding to new as well as unfamiliar situations
- Intellectual enquiry
- Flexibility and responsiveness to change
- Influencing outcomes
- Cultural awareness and communication.

Table 2 lists courses available at the IGCSE level by subject area. In addition to the core subjects of math, science, English, and social sciences, options include world languages, the creative arts, technology applications, and career & technical interests. The full IGCSE course list and associated course documents are at: Cambridge IGCSE subjects.

Table 2. EXAMPLE IGCSE COURSES BY SUBJECT

Subject	Example Courses
Mathematics	Mathematics, Mathematics – Additional, Mathematics International
Science	Agriculture, Biology, Chemistry, Environmental Management, Marine Science, Physics, Science - Combined
English Language and Literature	English – Literature, English – First Language, World Literature, English as a Second Language
Languages	Spanish, Dutch, French, German, Arabic, Hindi, Chinese, Korean, Russian, Thai, Italian, Portuguese, Afrikaans
Humanities and Social Sciences	Developmental Studies, Economics, Geography, Global Perspectives, History, History – American, Sociology
The Arts	Art & Design, Drama, Music
Career & Technical Education	Accounting, Business, Computer Science, Design & Technology, Digital Literacy, Enterprise, Food & Nutrition, Information and Communication Technology, Physical Education, Travel & Tourism
The full IGCSE course list and associated course documents are at: Cambridge IGCSE subjects

Some of the IGCSE courses provide transition guides to assist teachers in supporting students as they move from one level of Cambridge programming to the next.

Cambridge Advanced (AS and A Level)

Cambridge offers over 50 courses at the AS and A Level; AS Level is typically taught as a one-year course (180 guided learning hours) and A Level is typically a two-year course (360 guided learning hours). Students participating in Advanced Level courses can earn college credit if awarded a qualifying grade on the associated Cambridge assessments (see College Credit section for details). At this level, courses develop learners' knowledge, understanding and skills in:

- In-depth subject content
- Independent thinking
- Applying knowledge and understanding to new as well as familiar situations
- Handling and evaluating different types of information source
- Thinking logically and presenting ordered and coherent arguments
- Making judgements, recommendations and decisions
- Presenting reasoned explanations, understanding implications, and communicating them logically and clearly
- Working and communicating in English.

A Level courses are the most rigorous high school courses available in the U.S. and are designed to demonstrate sustained study in a subject. They may build upon material previously taught in AS coursework, however, the material taught within the A Level is new content with increased rigor and cognitive demand. Courses emphasize practical application of knowledge and skills. For example, the biology course requires that students in the course spend 20 percent of their time doing individual or small group practical work (not including observing practical demonstrations).

Table 3 lists courses available at the AS & A level by subject area. In addition to the core subjects of math, science, English language arts, and social sciences, options include multiple world languages, the arts, technology, career & technical interests. Career-focused students often take courses in design in the arts, travel and tourism, accounting, physical education, business, or environmental management.

Table 3. Example AS/A Level Courses by Subject

Cambridge AICE Diploma

For students seeking a comprehensive academic experience, Cambridge offers the Advanced International Certificate of Education (AICE) Diploma, a full diploma pathway recognized by colleges and universities worldwide. The AICE Diploma requires students to complete a balanced program of study across three curriculum groups:

1. Group 1: Mathematics and Sciences
2. Group 2: Languages (English and World Languages)
3. Group 3: Arts and Humanities
4. Optional Group 4: Interdisciplinary and Skills-Based Subjects (e.g., Global Perspectives)

To receive an AICE Diploma, students must earn 7 credits. This can be achieved by passing 4-7 exams of any combination of AS (1 credit) and A Level (2 credits) to meet the total. Global Perspectives AS (1 credit) is required, and one exam must be from each of the three main subject groups: Math and Science, Languages, and Arts and Humanities. All other subjects are the student's choice. This structure ensures:

- Breadth and depth of academic knowledge
- Development of critical thinking and research skills
- Preparation for postsecondary education and global citizenship.

The AICE Diploma is eligible for college credit and advanced standing at many U.S. institutions, including those in Tennessee, and may qualify students for state-specific scholarship programs. This resource provides further information regarding the AICE diploma: https://www.cambridgeinternational.org/programmes-and-qualifications/cambridge-advanced/cambridge-aice-diploma/

Cambridge Global Perspectives & Research Course

One of Cambridge's key goals is to teach students how to learn. We developed the Global Perspectives & Research (GP&R) course in response to concerns from universities over the college-readiness of students. The entire course is devoted to developing thinking and learning skills, including analysis and research, and the AS Level is foundational to earning the AICE diploma. GP&R does not address a body of knowledge but focuses on skill development while allowing teachers and students to practice these skills in individual areas of interest. Students practice skills by researching global issues (e.g., genetic engineering, climate change, standard of living, or urbanization) through multiple themes (e.g., ethics, technology, culture, politics, or the environment).

The course equips students with a firm grasp of core research, collaboration, presentation and higher-order thinking skills – skills students need to be successful at school, university and in their future careers (see Table 4.)

TABLE 4. ASSESSMENT OBJECTIVES: GLOBAL PERSPECTIVES AND RESEARCH

AO1: Research, analysis and evaluation
• analyze arguments to understand how they are structured and on what they are based • analyze perspectives and understand the different claims, reasons, arguments, views and evidence they contain • synthesize relevant and credible research in support of judgments about arguments and perspectives • critically evaluate the strengths, weaknesses and implications of reasoning in arguments and overall perspectives • critically evaluate the nature of different arguments and perspectives • use research to support judgements about arguments and perspectives • design and manage own research project using appropriate research methods and methodology (A) • select and analyze appropriate concepts, arguments, perspectives and evidence from a range of source material and use these in own research report (A) • evaluate specific research methods and methodology as used in own research report (A).
AO2: Reflection
• research and consider alternative perspectives objectively and with empathy • consider the ways in which personal standpoints may have been affected by the research process • evaluate the impact of alternative perspectives and conclusions on personal standpoint • identify the need for further research in light of the research findings • reflect on the scope, nature and limitations of own research report (A).
AO3: Communication and collaboration
• work effectively in a group to identify an appropriate local problem with global relevance and consider a range of possible solutions (AS) • select and present relevant information in an engaging, coherent and well-structured way to a non-specialist audience (AS) • present complex global concepts, perspectives and arguments effectively using multimedia (audio and/or visual) appropriate to the presentation (AS) • use appropriate technical terms and cited references effectively • provide an oral explanation and justification of own report findings, choice and use of research methods and methodology (A).
Note. (AS) identifies objectives for AS Level (one-year) courses only; (A) identifies objectives for A Level (two-year) courses only.

Tab VII includes the GP&R AS/A level course syllabus, Learner Guide, and a past exam paper and mark scheme from 2018. We provide additional course documents for GP&R on the course website at: https://www.cambridgeinternational.org/programmes-and-qualifications/cambridge-international-as-and-a-level-global-perspectives-and-research-9239/.

Assessment Model

Cambridge course assessments are designed to assess students' ability to demonstrate understanding as well as manipulate and apply the content and skills that are taught in the course rather than solely assess a comprehensive set of content-specific facts, vocabularies, and processes. They are designed to measure the higher order skills required to engage and interact with the content, and not just the content itself. Assessments incorporate multiple measures, and several different types of measures, each of which is appropriate to eliciting different cognitive processes. They are 80-90 percent constructed response (100 percent in the humanities) and require students to integrate critical thinking skills with knowledge to solve new problems.

Course performance is based upon an aggregate score from multiple assessments of different types, called assessment components or test papers. Each component measures one or more assessment objectives, which specify the interactions between content and skill required of students after completing the course. Test papers consist of related sets of multiple item types, including objective-response, multiple choice, short-answer, extended response or practical works such as projects, journals, labs, portfolios, experiments, or presentations.

Objective-response items require a highly defined response, such as adding a line to a diagram, completing a number sequence, or completing a statement. Multiple-choice items require selection of the best of a set of given alternatives to complete a statement or answer a question. Short-answer items require succinct responses to specific questions, where the marking scheme allows some variation in those responses. Extended-response items require multiple steps and the creation of written text and/or task completion and allow candidates to organize their responses and present material in an original way.

Every course is assessed by multiple test papers containing multiple types of items that require different kinds of responses because mastery cannot be measured by a single timed examination alone.

Components may be of two types: moderated or examined. Moderated coursework consists of student work like essays, projects, presentations and language speaking tests that are scored at their school and then moderated by Cambridge. Examined coursework is not scored at the school, just externally scored by experienced Cambridge remote examiners.

Student Identification and Equity in Advanced Coursework

Knox County Schools is committed to preparing every student for life through a high-quality education that is accessible, meaningful, and future-focused. The district's 2030 Strategic Plan emphasizes Excellence in Foundational Skills, Success for Every Student, and Career Empowerment and Preparation – all of which align seamlessly with the Cambridge program's early identification and access strategies.

The Cambridge program supports these goals by identifying student potential early – well before high school – and providing actionable insights that help educators personalize instruction and expand opportunity. This is especially critical in KCS, where the district is working to strengthen academic interventions, streamline whole child support, and ensure equitable access to advanced learning pathways.

Program Flexibility and Accessibility

This flexibility supports KCS's Success for Every Student priority by ensuring advanced academic opportunities are accessible to all learners, including ELLs and students with disabilities. Within each stage of the Pathway, we help schools develop a curriculum that suits their context, culture, and ethos. Schools can tailor to their students' needs. Teachers are provided a clear structure, standards, resources, and training, but given the flexibility to be creative professionals; effective learning and teaching can encompass a variety of approaches and should recognize cultural and community influences. This flexibility gives our program the ability to reach students from a variety of backgrounds across a range of ability levels. For high-achieving students, it can challenge them by offering some of the most rigorous college-level coursework available in the U.S. and for those that need more scaffolding, including English Language Learners, it can provide the needed foundation to succeed.

While each program level focuses on developing the knowledge and skills necessary for success in the following program level, any level can be implemented within a school. The Cambridge program can be taken as individual courses, like AP, or as an integrated advanced diploma program, like IB. This flexibility makes the Cambridge Pathway accessible to more students and schools than similar programs. It can also be offered alongside other programs in the same school to provide opportunities to more students.

Because the Cambridge assessment model allows multiple opportunities for students to demonstrate knowledge and skills, with different assessment components tested across different days, underserved students often find more success. In addition to multiple choice, short answer, and extended essay question types, many courses require students to demonstrate knowledge and skills through projects, practicals, demonstrations, or coursework. Students who may struggle with more traditional test types given in a single high-pressure sitting can show what they know with active, hands-on learning.

The skills taught in the Cambridge Pathway are equally relevant to students regardless of postsecondary aspiration. The Learner Attributes and skills taught in each course are associated with not only academic achievement, but also with career success. Employers value these skills in their employees as much as college faculty value them in their students. This may be a unique benefit of the Cambridge program to KCS, where although 93 percent of KCS students graduate in four years and 69.4 percent enroll in postsecondary institutions the fall after graduation, the postsecondary enrollment rates are lower for Black, Hispanic, Native American, and economically disadvantaged students, as well as English Learners, and students with disabilities. Cambridge can provide increased access for students who do not usually have access to advanced curriculum and can help KCS teachers engage and prepare these students.

Cambridge Insight Baseline Assessments

Cambridge Insights are curriculum-independent assessments built on data from over 650,000 learners annually. These tools help KCS educators:

- Identify student potential and learning needs
- Predict future academic performance
- Provide actionable insights for personalized instruction

Equitable Access and Strategic Impact

Cambridge's approach aligns with KCS's commitment to Success for Every Student by:

- Providing a holistic view of learners: Uncovering hidden potential beyond traditional academic metrics
- Enabling early intervention: Identifying learning gaps at the start of each stage
- Driving data-informed equity: Using disaggregated data to adjust instruction and resources
- Reducing pressure: Offering low-stakes, formative assessments that inform teaching without labeling students prematurely

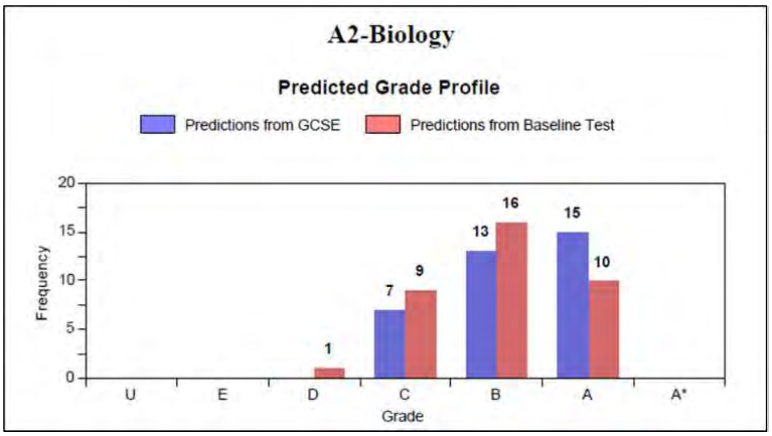
Empower Strategic Decision-Making

Cambridge Insight assessments generate high-quality data and predictive analytics that empower educators to:

- Make informed decisions about curriculum and instruction
- Target interventions effectively
- Monitor progress toward district goals, including third grade reading and eighth grade math proficiency

By integrating these digital assessments at key transition points – such as the start or end of elementary and middle school and the start of high school KCS can proactively support students and ensure readiness for advanced coursework, including Cambridge IGCSE and A level programs.

Specific Tools for Early Identification



- Cambridge Early Years Check Together: Assesses developmental progress and readiness
- Cambridge Primary Insight (ages 5-11): Measures reading, math, spelling, and developed ability
- Cambridge MidYIS Insight (ages 11-14): Identifies current skills, potential, and learning needs of Lower Secondary students. Predicts IGCSE potential exam performance.
- Cambridge Yellis Insight (ages 14-16): Identifies current skills, potential, and learning needs of Pre-Advanced students. Predicts IGCSE potential exam performance.
- Cambridge Advanced Insight (ages 16+): Identifies current skills, potential, and learning needs of Lower Secondary students. Predicts AS/A potential exam performance.

These tools complement KCS's efforts to define the unique role of each grade band in preparing students for life after graduation and to strengthen academic interventions across the district.

With KCS's interest in early identification of student potential, the Cambridge Yellis (14-16) could be administered at the end of 8th grade or start of 9th grade to predict future performance on individual IGCSE subjects, with detailed analysis of individual strengths and weaknesses to help structure a course of action. Cambridge ALIS (16-19) could be similarly used at the conclusion of 9th grade to identify students likely to succeed in Advanced Level subjects. Teachers can access both cohort-level and individual student predictions.

With ALIS, there is an additional "Chances" report that shows either the cohort's or student's likelihood of achieving a particular grade, which can be used to determine the level of support needed for the class as a whole or the individual student.

More information about these diagnostic assessments can be found at Insight assessments

Cambridge Checkpoint Assessments

Schools can utilize Cambridge's Lower Secondary Checkpoint test, which can provide a benchmark of learner performance and provide diagnostic feedback. It assesses skills, knowledge, and understanding at the end of the 8th grade and may identify gaps in knowledge or opportunity for some students (additional information can be found at https://www.cambridgeinternational.org/programmes-and-qualifications/cambridge-lower-secondary/assessment/cambridge-checkpoint/.)

Professional Development and Staff Support

Cambridge's PD offerings align with KCS's commitment to Great Educators in Every School, providing scalable, research-based training for teachers and leaders. Cambridge provides a comprehensive and sustainable professional development model that supports school and district staff at every stage of implementation. Our training offerings include in-person workshops, virtual sessions, and on-demand video resources. These are complemented by robust teacher support materials—including syllabi, teaching guides, lesson plans, and assessment tools—that ensure educators are fully equipped to deliver rigorous instruction. Administrators, teachers, and exam officers all receive targeted support, and new schools benefit from structured onboarding resources and implementation guidance. The following section outlines the specific tools and services available to Knox County Schools.

Professional Development Offerings

Understanding that teacher support is crucial to student success, Cambridge has a wide variety of wraparound services to ensure administrators, staff, teachers, and students are fully supported in their implementation and navigation of any aspect of The Cambridge Pathway. Table 5 describes how Cambridge supports schools, teachers and students.

Implementing the curriculum with Cambridge: A Guide for School Leaders provides practical advice on designing, developing, implementing and evaluating effective curriculum.

Developing your school with Cambridge: A Guide for School Leaders focuses on classroom-level development, policy, and activity; providing guidance on improving the quality of teaching and learning in a school.

Developing the Cambridge learner attributes describes the learning habits empirically associated with success in school, career, and life, and provides practical guidance on nurturing and developing these attributes in students.

Education briefs provide a close look at important themes in education, including active learning, bilingual education and assessment for learning.

Getting started with... guides build on our education briefs to introduce and develop areas of teaching and learning practice and provide new ideas and approaches that link theoretical understanding with practical classroom application.

All resources are available from (https://www.cambridgeinternational.org/support-and-training-for-schools/support-for-new-schools/) and are included in Tab VII (please note we are providing samples for the committee's reference and further resources are available upon request). This webpage also provides links to information on each stage of the Cambridge Pathway, the Global Perspectives course, learner and teacher attributes, teacher support and professional development, other webpages containing support materials for teachers, leaders, or exams officers, employer and university recognition, and links to online teaching and learning communities.

New schools also find our Communications Toolkit resources helpful (see Figure 2 and Communications toolkit for approved Cambridge schools)

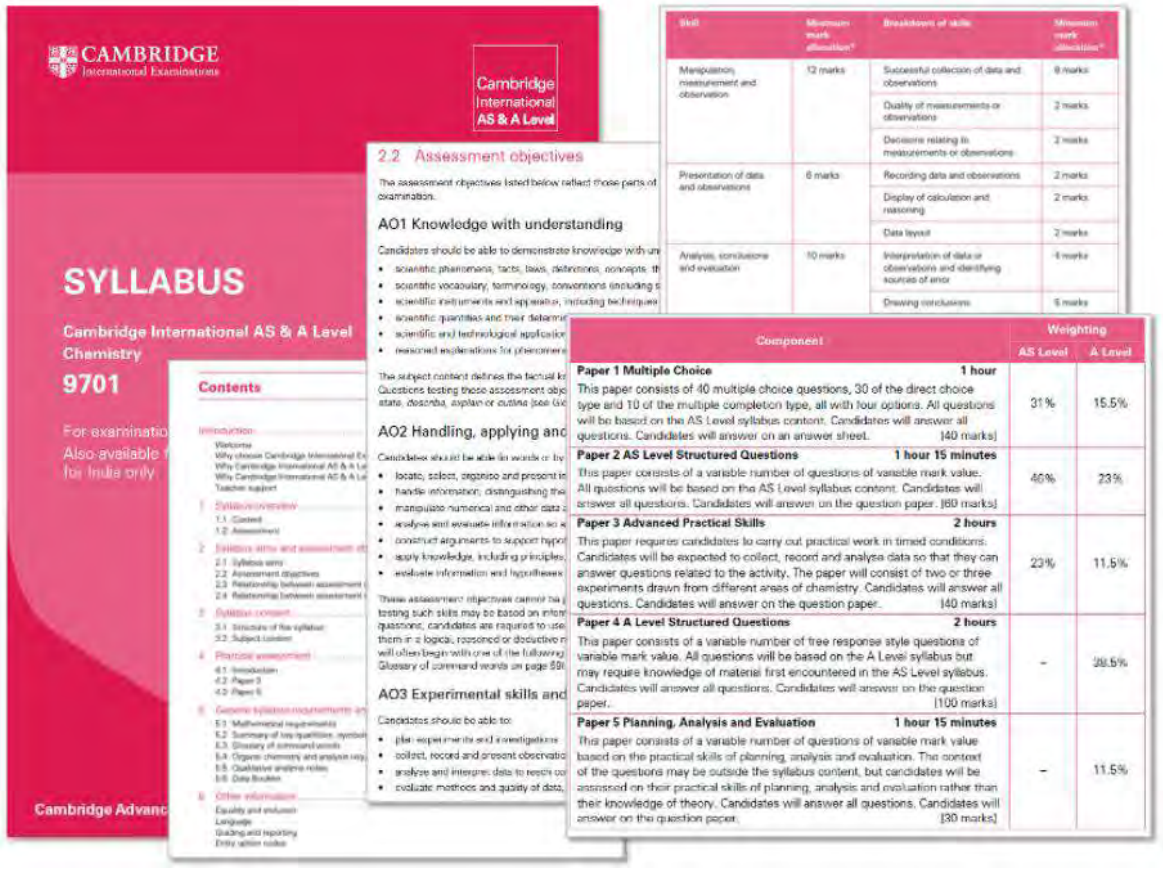
The Toolkit is a resource for schools to help stakeholders understand the Cambridge program; it includes Factsheets and Parent Guides (in eight different languages), presentations for parents and students, posters and banners, logos, videos that can be shown to parent or community groups, and press release templates.



The parent guides included in Tab VII are from the toolkit, as is an example presentation for parents: Cambridge Advanced – an Introduction for Parents.

Teacher Support is Essential

We provide substantial support for schools and teachers during implementation and instruction; schools and teachers don't have to look for, develop, or purchase additional materials in order to confidently implement Cambridge courses. Key curriculum course, and instructional resources are available, including course syllabi, teaching guides, student guides, past exam papers and scoring rubrics (referred to as "mark schemes" in the U.K.), specimen papers and scoring rubrics, and lesson plans (often referred to as a "scheme of work").

The Syllabus is the core document for every Cambridge course. Quite detailed, they generally run over 100 pages in length and describe the content and skills taught in each course, the assessment objectives and scheme of assessment, the exams and coursework components, the mark schemes and grading expectations, and provide related information such as formula sheets and command words. See Figure 3 for sample elements of a Cambridge course syllabus.

In addition to the syllabus, each course page provides other materials that teachers and students need for the course, including updates to course content or assessments, student Learner Guides, past exam papers with mark schemes and student exemplars, guides to teaching practical assessment components, examiner reports for past assessments, and links to additional endorsed resources that may be purchased but are not necessary for successfully taking or teaching the course. While textbooks are available to support delivery of each Cambridge subject, no additional materials must be purchased by educators or students.

Proposed Approach and Instructional Materials

KCS employs over 4,300 highly qualified teachers, commendably retaining 92% from year-to-year.[3] This proposal directly supports KCS's Strategic Plan 2030, particularly its goals for foundational skill development, equitable access, and career readiness. An overwhelming body of research supports this by finding that the most important factor in improving student outcomes is good teaching. An important part of our mission, therefore, is to support teaching.

Our support extends well beyond implementing, administering, and expanding our program. We offer a variety of materials to guide Knox County educators as they explore different aspects of teaching practice, from curriculum design to improving classroom activities. Many of these were described previously and are listed in Table 5, and we expand on a couple below.

Cambridge Teacher Attributes

Teachers themselves need to exemplify the attributes in everything they do; teachers are learners, which is why the Cambridge Learner Attributes are the same for teachers and learners. Because teachers who develop the Cambridge attributes in themselves may best be able to nurture them in students, our frameworks, practices, support materials, and professional development all support confidence, responsibility, reflection, innovation and engagement.

Developing Cambridge Learner Attributes describes how educators can improve their teaching practice through development of the attributes.

The Cambridge Teacher Standards and the Cambridge School Leader Standards.

Understanding what 'good teaching' and 'good leadership' look like in practice and how practitioners can improve are central to the ongoing improvement of all Cambridge learners. We reviewed and compiled international research on effective teaching and school leadership and identified a set of core practices that are common to the best teachers and school leaders around the world. The Cambridge Teacher Standards and the Cambridge School Leader Standards describe these practices and are included in Tab VII and available at: https://www.cambridgeinternational.org/support-and-training-for-schools/professional-development-qualifications/school-leader-teacher-standards/.

Professional Development

We believe that supporting teachers in their professional development leads to improved outcomes for learners. Good quality professional development and reflective practice are essential parts of a teacher's professional life. We offer a range of different professional development opportunities for teachers at all stages of their professional journey, so teachers can find something that meets their needs. Courses are available in three different formats: in-person, virtual, and online training.

What a Cambridge Classroom Looks Like is a course introducing four key approaches, which are foundations of a Cambridge classroom: active learning, assessment for learning, metacognition, and inclusion. Participants explore what these approaches look like in practice and start building a practical toolkit of strategies. This course is available in-person and virtually.

Introduction courses are for teachers who are new to Cambridge or to a specific syllabus or program. Teachers who participate in Introduction courses generally move on to additional professional development courses. These courses are available in all three formats.

Focus on Teaching courses are for teachers who want to explore a specific area of teaching and learning within a syllabus or program, while Focus on Assessment courses are for teachers who want to understand the assessment of a syllabus in greater depth. Syllabus-specific marking and coursework marking workshops help teachers build their confidence in assessing students' work. Improving Speaking Performance courses help language teachers to improve their speaking lessons and understand how to better support their students.

Enrichment Professional Development is perfect for teachers and school leaders who want to transform their approach to teaching. Cambridge designs Enrichment courses to be dynamic and engaging. Experienced trainers encourage teachers and leaders to reflect on their professional practice and help them to develop practical strategies they can use in their schools. All Enrichment courses are designed to complement the syllabus-specific Introduction, Focus on Teaching, and Focus on Assessment courses. Participants are also encouraged to share ideas and learn from other members of the Cambridge International community. Each course focuses on a specific skill or concept in teaching and learning. For example:

- Active Learning and Assessment for Learning
- Metacognition: Boosting Students' Learning
- Effective Talk and Questioning

• Responsive Education for All Learners

Cambridge professional development is sustainable because it provides opportunities for teachers to learn and grow in their field and become better teachers.

Table 6 describes two example PD courses that are available to KCS teachers and school leaders. The full calendar of training and events is at: https://www.cambridgeinternational.org/support-and-training-for-schools/training/events-and-training-calendar/.

TABLE 6. EXAMPLE PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

Getting started with Metacognition – Enrichment, Online, Tutor-guided
This course is designed to develop participants' understanding of and how to apply Metacognition in teaching practice. This course encourages teachers to reflect on, and take greater responsibility for, their teaching as well as become more innovative in their classroom practice. Teachers should expect to spend 3 - 5 hours a week on the course. Weeks 3 and 4 will involve putting what has been learned into practice and reflecting upon the outcome. It is important that you have access to learners during these weeks. Successful completion of the course is based on participation in collaborative activities with teachers from around the world. The discussions and activities each week are in groups. We recommend that teachers access the course every day. A certificate is awarded to participants who complete key weekly activities and participate fully in discussions throughout the course.
Active Learning and Assessment for Learning– Enrichment, in-person
This course is designed to introduce the key principles and practices in Active Learning and Assessment for Learning and is meant for teachers who want to develop their classroom practice and would like an introduction to these approaches. In this course, participants will explore how to embed Active Learning and Assessment for Learning into their classroom practice. Under the guidance of an experienced trainer, participants will explore the following key questions: • What is Active Learning? • What is Assessment for Learning? • How do Active Learning and Assessment for Learning raise student achievement? • What practical Active Learning and Assessment for Learning tasks can you apply in your school context?

Cambridge also offers professional development certificate and diploma courses in four areas of specialization:

- Teaching and Learning
- Educational Leadership
- Teaching Bilingual Learners
- Teaching with Digital Technologies

Each specialization consists of three modules. Certificates require completion of an orientation module familiarizing them with key principals comprising 120 learning hours; diplomas require completion of an additional two 120-hour modules, one focused on exploration and reflective practice and the other focused on integration and engagement. Throughout each course, teacher candidates build portfolios containing evidence of practice, reflection, and learning which are then scored using objective assessment criteria by Cambridge PD examiners. Evaluation of each module is based on submitted written evidence (2400- 3600-words), observations, and the portfolio describing evidence of practice, learning and reflection.

Course content, learning objectives, and assessment tasks are described in the syllabi for each of the four specializations, available in the electronic version of Tab VII:

- PD Teaching and Learning Syllabus 2020-2022.pdf
- PD Education Leadership Syllabus 2020-2022.pdf
- PD Teaching Bilingual Learners Syllabus 2020-2022.pdf
- PD Teaching with Digital Technologies Syllabus 2020-2022.pdf

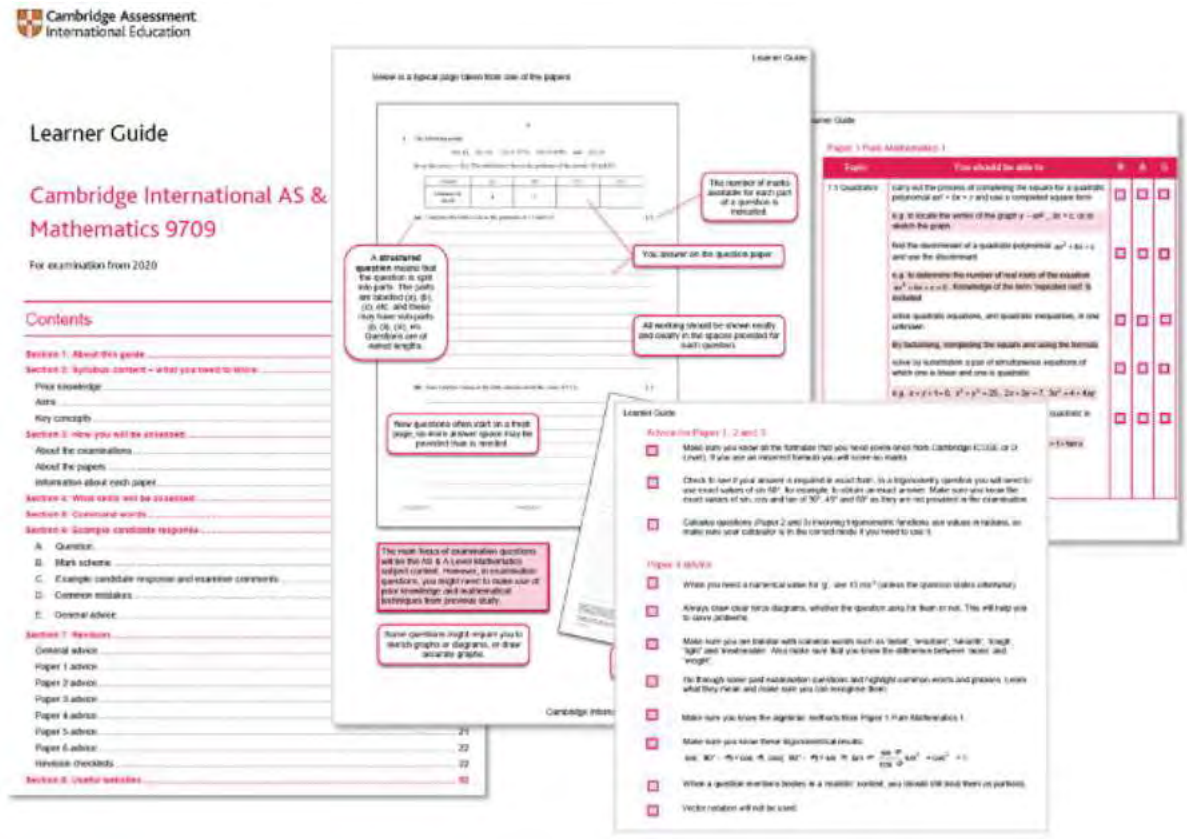
More information on these qualifications is available at: https://www.cambridgeinternational.org/support-and-training-for-schools/professional-development-qualifications/.

The theory behind and approach to our professional development is described by the education brief, Professional Development. Schools receive the Professional Development Qualifications A Guide for School Leaders that specify development options and provides practical guidance for establishing professional development qualifications in a school. Both documents are provided in electronic version of Tab VII.

Support for School Leaders

Principal preparation and leadership are integral to KCS' strategic plan; an average of 11 openings per year are filled by non-experienced candidates and more principals in Knox County apply to leadership programs than there are slots for them in the program (Sattler, 2017).[5] Cambridge International recognizes the importance of school leaders in the development of excellence in schools and can help KCS with leadership preparation and growth.



We offer four-day in-person and online enrichment workshops to help school leaders evaluate and develop their skills and the Cambridge International Certificate in Educational Leadership and the Cambridge International Diploma in Educational Leadership offers an additional avenue for KCS' 250 principals and administrators to develop their skills and practice. The programs are easily scalable to match future growth in administrator positions and enhance the existing leadership pipeline in KCS. The Professional Development: Educational Leadership syllabus for Cambridge's Certificate and Diploma in Educational Leadership describes the content and scope of the program (included in Tab VII). Leaders not currently in the pipeline can also use the Cambridge School Leader Standards to self-evaluate and improve leadership skills.

Resources for Learners

Cambridge's multilingual parent guides and learner resources support KCS's Communication and Engagement priority by fostering transparency and family involvement. Well-supported learners are empowered to take responsibility for their learning. In addition to course syllabi, Learner Guides help students understand the content and expectations for each IGCSE and AS & A Level course and assessment. They describe the key content, and learning aims of the course; details the assessment objectives, methods, weighting and mark schemes; and provides past test questions with example student responses, scorer annotations, mark scheme application, common mistakes, and both question- and test-specific advice. They also guide self-reflection guidance, outline revision skills, and provide relevant learner techniques and checklists. Figure 4 portrays some of these elements using an example Learner Guide from the AS & A Level Mathematics course.

As students learn about, practice, and cultivate the Cambridge Learner Attributes, they become more effective, adaptive learners; they develop skills that not only prepare them for university and careers but also help them perform better on other academic indicators and assessments. Students who demonstrate these effective learning strategies habitually approach academic tasks with a mindset of confidence, self-responsibility, reflectiveness, innovativeness and engagement. They employ a broad range of cognitive strategies and socio-emotional skills (including personal qualities such as resilience, self-motivation and self-regulation) to manage their performance effectively.

Students also use past papers and mark schemes to become familiar with the assessment structure, kinds of questions, and expected responses.

Linking Skills and Course Knowledge

Found in every course syllabus, Assessment Objects (AO) explicitly link the content knowledge with the higher-order thinking skills necessary to interact with content knowledge. For example, of the three AS & A Level Biology AO provided in Table 7, the first focuses on knowing and understanding biology-specific terminology, facts, processes, tools, conventions, and phenomena. This is the subject-specific knowledge measured most often by biology assessments. The second AO focuses on a range of skills necessary for students to interact with knowledge, specifically, how to apply, explain, and evaluate subject-specific knowledge. These are the skills often measured by a subset of open-response items on biology exams. The third AO extends the interaction between knowledge and skills to new situations and problems. Not often measured by large-scale assessments, these require practical application to demonstrate.

Multiple Measures, Multiple Methods

Following best assessment practice, Cambridge assessment models incorporate multiple measures using multiple methods. This provides students with multiple ways and opportunities to demonstrate their knowledge and skills and show what they know and can do. We continue the example of AS & A Level Biology to illustrate how Cambridge uses different modes and opportunities to measure the knowledge and higher-order skills identified as Assessment Objectives. Measuring the knowledge and skills taught in this course requires five assessment components. Each component is referred to as a 'paper', as described in Table 8.

TABLE 8. AS & A LEVEL BIOLOGY ASSESSMENT COMPONENTS

Note. Test type abbreviations: multiple choice (MC), short answer (SA), extended response (ER).

The papers assessing the first and second AOs are most typical of standardized advanced course assessments, with the notable exception that only the first paper uses any multiple-choice test items. This is important because constructed-response type items are more valid means of measuring complex skills, performances, and reasoning, the skills KCS is most interested in. The assessments of the third and fifth AO are both practical in nature. Table 9 provides an example of some of the individual skills measured on the Biology Paper 3 and includes example expectations for one of each of the three types of skills. These assessed skills are higher order, such as designing and creating original work, evaluating data, decisions, and process, and analyzing observations, errors, and patterns.

TABLE 9. EXPECTED SKILLS AND EXAMPLE EXPECTATIONS FOR BIOLOGY ADVANCED PRACTICAL SKILLS PAPER 3

Expected skills (with example expectations for selected skills)
Manipulation, measurement and observation • Decisions relating to measurements and observations • Collection of data and observations Example expectations for "Decisions relating to measurements and observations" skill. Within an investigation, candidates should be able to: • identify the independent variable and dependent variable • decide a suitable range of values to use for the independent variable at which measurements of the dependent variable are recorded • decide the number of different values of the independent variable (a minimum of five) and the intervals between them • decide how to change the value of the independent variable • decide how the dependent variable should be measured • decide the number of replicates at each value • decide on appropriate controls for the experiment or investigation • decide which variables need to be standardized and how to standardize them.

Note. The full test paper includes a second item (not shown) and is available at https://www.cambridgeinternational.org/programmes-and-qualifications/cambridge-international-as-and-a-level-biology-9700/past-papers/.

This one question, on one of five assessments for the Biology course, provides students with the opportunity to demonstrate inquiry, critical thinking, and communication skills, by:

- Following a detailed series of instructions
- Applying their knowledge of Biology to novel and practical problems
- Conducting an experiment, documenting results, evaluating the process, and clearly and appropriately communicating their findings
- Reflecting on potential sources of error and hypothetical extensions of theory
- Computing and comparing values, estimating outcomes, evaluating findings, and applying biological and mathematical principles

Cambridge Course Grades

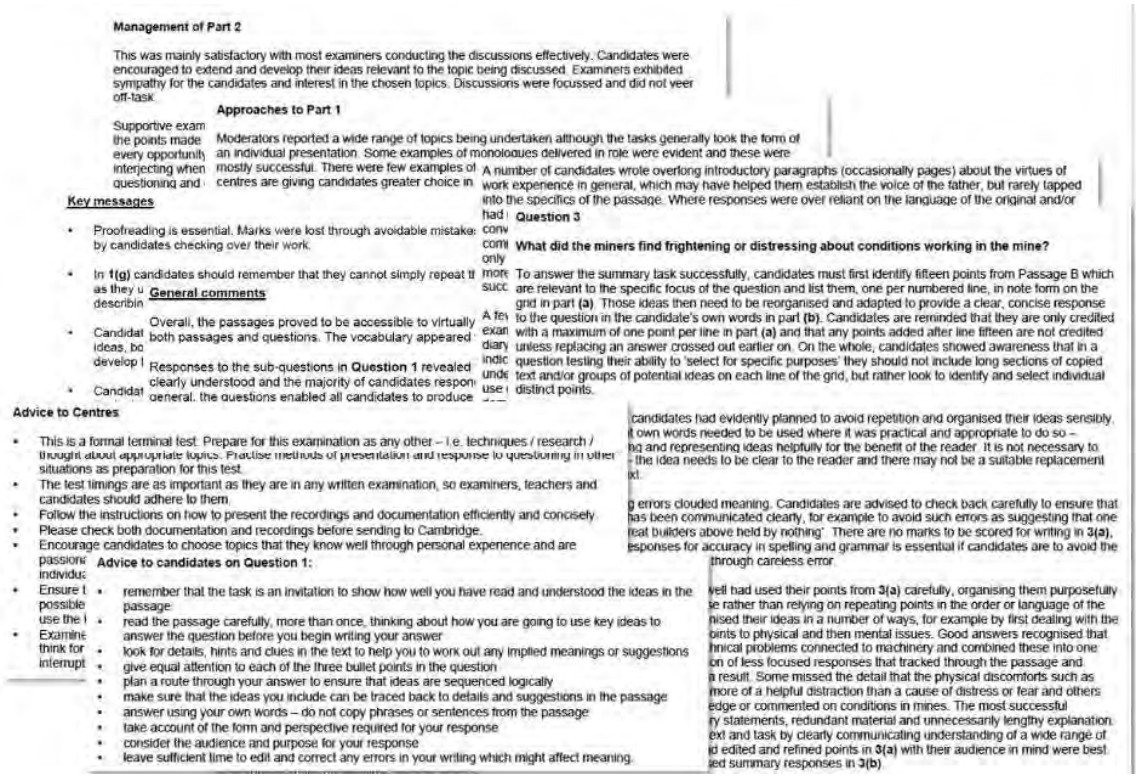
Assessment at Cambridge has two purposes: to measure learning and achievement, and to show likely future success.[6] Course grades therefore describe learning and achievement and indicate likely future success.

Knox County teachers and schools can use A Level assessment scores to:

- confirm achievement and performance in relation to the knowledge, understanding and skills specified in the syllabus, to the levels described in the grade descriptions
- help predict which students are well prepared for a particular career and/or which students are more likely to be successful at future college level course work
- help students choose the most suitable course or career.

AS Level scores to:

- guide teaching and learning in the next stages of the Cambridge International A Level course
- help predict which students are well prepared for a particular career and/or which students are more likely to be successful at future college level course work.



and IGCSE scores to:

- confirm achievement and performance in relation to the knowledge, understanding and skills specified in the syllabus, to the levels described in the grade descriptions.
- help predict which students are well prepared for a particular course or career and/or which students are more likely to be successful taking AS and A Level courses
- help students choose the most suitable course or career.

Principle Examiner Reports

Principal Examiners write detailed reports describing candidates' overall performance on each part of all exam questions. The reports give insight into common mistakes which teachers can explore in class and provide evidence of the validity of the assessments. Some nearly 100 pages long, the reports provide general comments about student performance on the assessment, describe key takeaways from the performances demonstrated, comment on each and every task, provide suggestions to schools and centers in terms of assessment administration, and advice to teachers for students on improving responses (see Figure 6 and Tab VII for examples).

Management of Part 2

This was mainly satisfactory with most examiners conducting the discussions effectively. Candidates were encouraged to extend and develop their ideas relevant to the topic being discussed. Examiners exhibited sympathy for the candidates and interest in the chosen topics. Discussions were focussed and did not veer off-task.

Approaches to Part 1

Moderators reported a wide range of topics being undertaken although the tasks generally took the form of an individual presentation. Some examples of monologues delivered in role were evident and these were mostly successful. There were few examples of

Advice to Centres

- This is a formal terminal test. Prepare for this examination as any other – i.e. techniques / research / thought about appropriate topics. Practise methods of presentation and response to questioning in other situations as preparation for this test.
- The test timings are as important as they are in any written examination, so examiners, teachers and candidates should adhere to them.

Advice to candidates on Question 1:

- remember that the task is an invitation to show how well you have read and understood the ideas in the passage
- read the passage carefully, more than once, thinking about how you are going to use key ideas to answer the question before you begin writing your answer
- look for details, hints and clues in the text to help you to work out any implied meanings or suggestions
- give equal attention to each of the three bullet points in the question
- plan a route through your answer to ensure that ideas are sequenced logically
- make sure that the ideas you include can be traced back to details and suggestions in the passage
- answer using your own words – do not copy phrases or sentences from the passage
- take account of the form and perspective required for your response
- consider the audience and purpose for your response
- leave sufficient time to edit and correct any errors in your writing which might affect meaning.

Question 3

What did the miners find frightening or distressing about conditions working in the mine?

To answer the summary task successfully, candidates must first identify fifteen points from Passage B which are relevant to the specific focus of the question and list them, one per numbered line, in note form on the grid in part (a). Those ideas then need to be reorganised and adapted to provide a clear, concise response to the question in the candidate's own words in part (b). Candidates are reminded that they are only credited with a maximum of one point per line in part (a) and that any points added after line fifteen are not credited unless replacing an answer crossed out earlier on. On the whole, candidates showed awareness that in a question testing their ability to 'select for specific purposes' they should not include long sections of copied text and/or groups of potential ideas on each line of the grid, but rather look to identify and select individual distinct points.

Digital Mocks Service: Monitoring Student Progress and Providing Developmental Feedback

Cambridge International is committed to supporting student success through robust assessment systems that not only measure achievement but actively enhance learning. Cambridge's Digital Mocks Service, launched in 2023, exemplifies this commitment by offering a scalable, data-rich, and pedagogically sound approach to preparing students for end-of-course exams.

Monitoring Student Progress

Cambridge's Digital Mocks Service enables schools to monitor students progress with precision and clarity. Over 20,000 learners in 60 countries have participated in digital mocks exams across 17 subjects for Cambridge IGCSE and International AS & A Level. Each student's performance is tracked at both the question level and test level, allowing educators to pinpoint strengths and areas for improvement. Results are delivered via the My Cambridge portal, enabling integration with school data systems and longitudinal tracking.

Developmental Feedback

Cambridge provides targeted feedback that informs teaching and supports student growth. Auto-marked MCQ exams deliver results within two hours, while examiner-marked assessments are returned within 14 days, ensuring timely feedback. Feedback includes not only scores but also answer choices, helping students understand their misconceptions and guiding teachers in planning effective interventions. The platform supports formative assessment practices, encouraging students to reflect on their performance and take ownership of their learning.

Teaching and Learning Impact

The Digital Mocks service is designed as a teaching tool, not just an assessment. IT mirrors the format and standards of end of course exams, providing a like-for-like experience that builds student confidence and exam readiness. Features such as digital note-taking, highlighting tools, and embedded multimedia support diverse learning styles and help students personalize their exam experience. The service aligns with Cambridge's broader philosophy of assessment for learning, where feedback is used to guide instruction and empower students to improve.

Cambridge's Digital Mocks Service is a powerful solution for districts seeking to enhance student preparation, monitor progress, and promote equity. It combines rigorous assessment, actionable feedback, and inclusive design to support teacher effectiveness and help build student confidence and familiarity – ensuring no learner is left behind.

Cambridge Approach to Assessment

The Cambridge Code of Practice (available online at https://www.cambridgeinternational.org/ about-us/our-standards) details our approach to assessment and demonstrates our commitment to transparency. Cambridge believes that students are best served when curriculum, teaching, learning, resources, and assessments are closely aligned. Through rigorous assessment development and grading standards, Cambridge programs and qualifications set the standard for international education.

Assessment Development

The Cambridge Code of Practice details the foundational practices and commitments underpinning our IGCSE, AS, and A level qualifications. Some of the key Code of Practice commitments include:

- Aim 2.1(a) – Question papers [assessments] will be consistent with the syllabus and scheme of assessment [for each course]
- Aim 2.1(b) – Each part of each question will assess knowledge and skills that fall within the syllabus.
- Aim 2.2(g) – Mark schemes [rubrics] will award marks positively (e.g., candidates begin with zero marks [points], and marks are earned for credit-worth aspects of their work).
- Aim 2.3 – Question papers will sample the content of the syllabus appropriately.
- Aim 2.4(b) – The wording of papers will be at a suitable level of linguistic demand given the expected age of candidates and the knowledge, understanding and skills being assessed, thus minimizing construct-irrelevant variance across candidates.
- Aim 2.4(f) – Question papers will be such that the effect on the results of the test of irrelevant factors (e.g., gender, language, socio-economic group) is minimized and cultural bias is avoided.
- Aim 2.5 – Question papers will contain items with an appropriate distribution of difficulties (and maintain the intellectual challenge and level of demand from previous years, as far as is reasonable).
- Aim 2.6 – Mark schemes will facilitate reliable marking (providing enough detail to facilitate marking that is sufficiently reliable).
- Aim 2.10 – Candidates will not know the questions in advance. Cambridge takes exam security incredibly seriously and maintains extensive efforts throughout the year to maintain the security of our question papers and items.

Test production is one of Cambridge's 'Core Processes', identified and monitored through a quality management system which is ISO 9001 certified (since 2008). As such, test and item development procedures include high-level governance and oversight, comprehensive procedural documentation, and detailed audit trails of decision making and actions.

During item development, item writers and reviewers are provided with comprehensive guidance to promote the validity and reliability of tests and minimize the risk of construct irrelevant variance (CIV). Internal staff manuals detail assessment design rationales and standard procedures for item development, including structures and specific item-type requirements.

Item writers consider the performance of past items/tasks when developing new items, drawing on statistical analysis of item/test functioning. They receive guidance on how to interpret statistical information, particularly around item facility (p-value) and discrimination, using corrected item-total correlation ("R-rest").

During test production, assessment material is extensively reviewed by multiple individuals at a number of clearly defined stages, to ensure assessments are of a high quality. The process is clearly set out, with owners and checkers at each stage of test production; these include Cambridge staff (i.e., Product Managers, Proofreaders) and external consultants (i.e., Setters, Revisers, Vetters, Assessment Testers, Principal Examiners).

Assessment Delivery

The Cambridge Handbook (or Cambridge Exams Officers' Guide; available at https://www.cambridgeinternational.org/exam-administration/cambridge-exams-officers-guide/) describes clear, consistent, and detailed standardized test administration procedures for all qualifications. The Handbook provides Exams Officers (a person, appointed by a schools' Principal or Head of Center, responsible for the administration of Cambridge exams) with information about all aspects administering Cambridge assessments, including:

- Key times (when exams are to be started by candidates),
- Candidate entries, including access arrangement (accommodation) requests,
- Submitting candidate coursework (for applicable syllabuses),
- Secure storage of exam materials,

- Exam day processes and procedures (including malpractice or similar threats to the security and integrity of Cambridge exam and certificates),
- Results and certificate release from Cambridge, and
- The process for appeals.

Centers offering Cambridge assessments must ensure that all Exams Officers and invigilators (individuals appointed by the Head of Center to properly conduct a particular exam in line with Cambridge regulations) receive adequate training in all test administration procedures.

Both Cambridge and participating Cambridge center provide monitoring of test administration included within test administration training, as well as all other test administration policies. Cambridge also provides an auditing process for reviewing adherence to test administration processes. Cambridge compliance representatives conduct unannounced security inspections at centers across the world during each exam series.

Assessment Marking

The Cambridge Code of Practice details our practices and commitments to ensure candidates receive the appropriate marks on their qualification assessments. Some of the key Code of Practice commitments include:

- Aim 3.1 – Candidates' work will be marked by appropriately qualified Examiners (including at least three years teaching the subject, adequate language proficiency in the scripts language, adequate IT skills and facilities for on-screen marking, and following successful marking standardization trial).
- Aim 3.2 – Examiners will mark in accordance with the mark scheme, ensuring extraneous factors (e.g., handwriting, candidate background, etc.) do not influence marking.

Evidence of Assessment Rigor

In December 2022, the United States Department of Education (US DOE) found Cambridge IGCSE assessments to substantially meet the statutory and regulatory requirements of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act and approved four IGCSE assessments to be offered in place of state assessments as a Locally Selected Nationally Recognized High School Assessment (LSNRHSA). This determination of 'substantially meets' reflects peer-reviewed support for the content, design, administration, security, rigor, marking, and results reporting of Cambridge qualification assessments.

Assessment Validity

The Cambridge Code of Practice details 10 principles of validity which underpin our approach to validity (see Code of Practice, Section 6). Cambridge works to standardize practices of validity in all aspects of assessment design, development, administration, and scoring. A highly coherent validation framework (Shaw & Crisp, 2020; Shaw, Crisp, & Johnson, 2011) grounded in contemporary theory is applied to all of our qualifications. The validation framework focuses on a construct-centered approach to validity (e.g., American Educational Research Association et al., 2014; Messick, 1994) combined with an argument-based approach to validity (Kane, 2004).

The Cambridge validity framework includes interpretive arguments reflective of the entire 'life-cycle' of an assessment (Shaw & Crisp, 2020):

- Construct representation – tasks elicit performances that represent the intended constructs,
- Scoring- scores/grades reflect the quality of performances on the assessment tasks,
- Generalization – scores/grades reflect likely performance on all possible relevant tasks,
- Extrapolation – scores/grades reflect likely wider performance in the domain, and
- Decision-making – appropriate uses of scores/grades are clear.

Evidencing that Cambridge assessments measure the intended cognitive processes is an integrated part of the Cambridge assessment design and evaluation process, beginning with the task types used by item writers and finishing with principal examiners' evaluation of students' skill and cognitive process demonstrated on each assessment item. The setter guidelines highlight the skills, command words, and task types that setters should target so assessments align appropriately with the content outlined in each syllabus. During syllabus development and design, Cambridge performs trials to ensure that the items are measuring the constructs and processes intended (including both qualitative and quantitative feedback). Following every examination series, Cambridge Principal Examiners summarize by assessment, paper, and item the knowledge, skills, and abilities that students needed to demonstrate to perform successfully on the assessment. The Principal Examiner Reports to Teachers (PERTs) highlight how the assessments measured the cognitive processes presented in the syllabus and how students demonstrated these processes on each of the items and papers overall. The PERTs are available to teachers and Exam's Officers, allowing them to gain better insight into the skills abilities expected on Cambridge assessments.

All Cambridge assessments include multiple components (or "papers") that assess different aspects of subject content and are aggregated to give an overall assessment score. The components represent an aspect of the internal structure of the overall assessment and students receive performance scores on each component, in addition to their overall score. Our multi-component assessment model allows for assessments that cover more depth and breadth of the content, as well as introducing additional item types. The inter-component correlations presented in the technical digests are an important indicator of internal consistency within each of our assessments. Cambridge PERTs (described above) highlight the knowledge, skills, and abilities students must demonstrate relative to the course information/constructs provided in the course syllabi.

Additionally, internal Cambridge research (from 2017 and 2021) shows students' performance on one of our qualifications (i.e., IGCSE) predicts their performance on subsequent and latter assessments (i.e., AS and A levels). Correlations were stronger for exams within the same subject (e.g., performance across two Mathematics exams, etc.), however high between-subject correlations were observed. Students performing towards the top of the performance scale for one assessment are likely to achieve similar outcomes on subsequent assessments. Qualitatively, teachers overwhelmingly agree that the Cambridge Pathway supports the progression of both discipline knowledge and specific skills, with each previous program preparing students for the requirements of the next program (e.g., Primary to Lower Secondary, IGCSE to Advanced, etc.).

Assessment Reliability

Cambridge adheres to nationally recognized professional and testing standards to ensure reliability, as described in our Code of Practice (see Section 7). Cambridge evaluates the reliability of our qualification assessments through a combination of statistical precision and expert judgment. Detailed statistical reports (following the Classical Test Theory approach) are generated regularly to analyze and evaluate item reliability and assessment reliability. Reliability statistics commonly include Cronbach's Alpha, standard error of measurement, conditional standard error of measurement, bandwidth (score spacing), and bandwidth-to-SEM ratio (metric for classification accuracy).

Cambridge follows an extensive array of training and quality control procedures for open-ended items (e.g., extended response, essay, etc.) marked by examiners (scorers). Mark schemes are developed alongside item/test development. They include comprehensive instructions to ensure consistent application by examiners, including generic marking instructions, detailed performance descriptors at each level, and exemplar responses and/or indicative content. In order to be approved for live scoring, examiners must complete (and accurately mark) a set of qualifying scripts, which are reviewed by a senior examiner. During live marking, examiners are monitored by senior examiners, including spot-checking. A range of statistical monitoring techniques are employed to monitor the consistency and accuracy of marking, measuring differences between examiner marks and definitive marks on validation scripts. Where issues are identified, corrective action is taken.

Assessment Fairness, Bias, and Accessibility

Cambridge assessments are administered in over 160 countries globally, highlighting the need for fairness and accessibility across a large number of variable populations. For this reason, fairness, bias, and accessibility checks are an integral part of the test design, development, and scoring processes as noted by the Cambridge Code of Practice and internal core processes. These principles support fairness by minimizing construct irrelevant variance, ensuring standard procedures in the mark schemes, and ensuring all students receive equitable access to the assessment items.

Sensitive analysis for bias is an important part of Cambridge's test development and evaluation (see Cambridge Code of Practice). All staff involved in item/test development receive explicit instructions and extensive training on fairness, bias, and accessibility. Reasonable and appropriate steps are taken to ensure that tests are accessible and fair (unbiased) across student groups. Fairness and accessibility are considered, evaluated, and confirmed throughout course and exam development and review. Explicit guidance is provided for social and cultural considerations and sensitive topics, Anglo-centric bias and national sensitivities, command words, problematic command words, and language guidance. Additionally, sensitivity revisers review items for a variety of potentially sensitive/biasing topics, including: politics, religion, geography, history, social and cultural considerations, and sensitive topics.

The Cambridge Handbook (or Cambridge Exams Officers' Guide) describes detailed standardized test administration procedures for all qualifications, including the provision of access arrangements (accommodations) or test paper modifications for candidates with special educational needs, disabilities, or temporary injuries/illnesses. Such access arrangements or paper modifications enable candidates with specific needs to demonstrate their knowledge, skills, and understanding without changing the demands of the assessment. Allowable access arrangements include: color naming and labeling, computer reader, exemptions, extra time, human reader, practical assistant, prompter, reading aloud by the candidate, reading pens, scribe, supervised rest breaks, supplementary aids, transcription, voice-activated software, and word processor. Allow question paper modifications include: Braille paper, colored paper, expanded text and/or paper size (six options), tactile diagrams, and live speaker (transcript of audio files).

As part of the peer review process as a LSNRHSA vendor, the U.S. DOE validated that the access arrangements and test paper modifications offered on Cambridge qualification assessments align with common accommodations and modifications offered to students with Individual Education Plans (IEPs) and 504 plans in the U.S.

Program Outcomes

Cambridge researchers conduct regular program evaluation studies supporting the efficacy of the Cambridge Pathway and Cambridge Advanced program. Studies consistently demonstrate positive outcomes across key stakeholder groups (i.e., students, schools/districts, and higher education institutions). This evidence underscores measurable improvements in academic achievement, college readiness, and school-wide performance, affirming Cambridge's commitment to equitable and high-quality learning environments that support all learners.

Students

- Participation in Cambridge Advanced is associated with higher high school GPA, increased math, reading, and placement test scores, reduced achievement gaps, and increased graduation and college enrollment rates (Herbic & Vasquez, 2017; Muja, 2018).
- Students report better time-management, organization, and study skills; improved ability to analyze information and think deeply and critically; and increased motivation, dedication, confidence, and responsibility as a result of their participation in the Cambridge program (Shaw, 2011b).
- An overwhelming majority (73%) of former Cambridge students reported their Advanced mathematics courses as very useful preparation for college-level mathematics courses (Darlington & Bowyer, 2017).
- AICE diploma students earned higher college freshman GPAs than AP or IB students, have four-year bachelor's graduation rates higher than AP or IB students, and are less likely to drop out of higher education (Rodeiro, Crawford, & Shaw, 2017; Shaw & Bailey, 2011b),

Schools/Districts

- Putnam County, FL: 100% proficiency in math within one year of Cambridge implementation (Coleman & Wilkinson, 2018).
- Charlotte-Mecklenburg, NC: Science proficiency rose from 45% to 74% in two years (Hayes & Kelso, 2019).
- Fairdale High, KY: College/career readiness rose from 22% to 67%; graduation rate near 90% (Corbin, n.d.; Weston, 2017).
- Rockledge High, FL: College attendance rose from 35% to 75% within five years of implementing the Cambridge Advanced program (Vidal Rodeiro et al., 2017).

Higher Education Institutions

- After earning college course credit for passing exam grades, former Cambridge students outperform their peers on subsequent college courses including, but not limited to biology, calculus, and psychology. Former Cambridge students are more likely to earn their bachelor's degree within four years compared to students earning advanced academic credits from other programs (Chi & Pastorino, 2021).
- After controlling for SAT scores, gender, and race, college students who had taken Cambridge courses in high school were more likely to engage in directed individual studies and to enroll in university honors programs. These effects increased significantly with the number of AICE credit hours earned (Shaw, Warrin, & Gill, 2014).
- In a survey of admissions staff from 130 universities around the world:
    - 100% said Cambridge qualifications give students excellent preparation to succeed at university,
    - 100% agreed Cambridge students have in-depth subject knowledge
    - 99% agreed Cambridge students present reasoned explanations, understand implications, and communicate them logically and clearly, and
    - 98% agreed Cambridge students think independently, logically, and present coherent arguments (Cambridge, 2022).

Summary

Cambridge offers a comprehensive, flexible, and research-backed academic program that aligns with Knox County Schools' strategic priorities. Through rigorous coursework, validated assessments, and robust professional development, Cambridge supports equitable access to advanced learning and prepares students for college, career, and life. Our methodology ensures fidelity of implementation, responsiveness to local needs, and measurable outcomes that reflect our commitment to excellence and equity.

SUMMARY 10

Introduction

Knox County Schools is committed to expanding access to rigorous academic opportunities that prepare students for college, career, and lifelong success. Cambridge International Education offers a comprehensive, scalable, and well-supported framework for delivering advanced academic programming across diverse school contexts. This section outlines Cambridge's capacity to deliver services, the implementation and management plan, key deliverables aligned with RFP requirements, and the ongoing support available to ensure successful adoption and sustainability. Through a structured and collaborative approach, Cambridge ensures fidelity of implementation, responsiveness to local needs, and measurable outcomes for students and educators.

Capacity

Cambridge prints, stores, and ships assessments over eight million exams annually from a 200,000 square foot warehouse outside of Cambridge, England. Cambridge's IT operations are ISO credited – an international standard for quality management systems – which means that they are managed to the highest levels in terms of quality and security. Seventy million items ship from the warehouse every year, of those, nearly 40 million are secure and confidential. We print 48 million pages of confidential test questions annually and scan 31 million responses for remote scoring by over 30,000 remote scorers. Over 50,000 parcels ship each year within tight timeframes that allow all candidates in a region taking the same exam to sit for that exam on the same day, at the same time.

Cambridge has fully functioning platforms and systems for development, instruction, program administration, assessment, scoring, reporting and publishing that require no new development or redesign for KCS.

Implementation

Programs are most effective when implemented as intended regardless of country, region, or type of school or staff experience. Cambridge supports schools through the entire implementation, instruction, assessment and improvement process.

Management Plan

Pivotal to our success are our team members. The leads for the Cambridge team for Knox County Schools are Joette Viggiano and Jeff Brewer. They will be the primary liaisons and points of contact for KCS. They will work closely with KCS school and district staff to successfully adopt and implement the Cambridge curriculum and provide guidance and support as they identify and prioritize emerging needs as the program grows. Joette and Jeff will manage the implementation plan, coordinate the assignment of team members and project resources and ensure tasks are completed on time. This will occur through a series of initial meetings with district advanced academic leadership in conjunction with the school leadership team. Joette and Jeff will continuously support the school via direct communication with the school's Cambridge coordinator and leadership team. However, all district and school level employees can contact their Cambridge representatives at any point if they have any questions. They can also contact the US Customer Service Department at 1-917-810-2660. Our customer service representatives are available 24 hours a day, Sunday through Friday.

Joette and Jeff will be supported by several internal Cambridge teams. The Cambridge teams responsible for events and training, data and analytics, logistics and administration will provide direct support as needed. Mark Cavone, Regional Director, North America, will provide strategic guidance and direction to the Knox County team and ensure sufficient resources allocated are available for the project. Joette Viggiano, School Development Manager, and Jeff Brewer, Senior School Implementation Manager, will provide operational and programmatic oversight, quality control, and resource management support. Regional teams are supported through a matrix management approach. The specialist roles in the regions are line-managed by the Regional Director but also receive guidance and support from their functional lead, who is the relevant manager in Cambridge.

Successfully implementing the Cambridge program requires local fulfillment of the roles described in Table 1.

TABLE 1. CAMBRIDGE ROLES

Role	Description
Cambridge Coordinator	Liaison between Cambridge and Knox County Schools; has full responsibility for the implementation, administration, and monitoring all program aspects within the canters associated with it.
Center	Knox County school registered with Cambridge to administer the program.
Test/Exam Invigilators	Person or classroom teacher assigned and trained to be the proctor of Cambridge assessments and exams; often supervised by Exam Officer.
Head of Center	Person appointed by the responsible person as the head or principal of the center.
Exam Officer	Appointed by the head of center to act on behalf of the center, with specific responsibility for the administration of Cambridge exams; supervises internal moderators and invigilators.

Deliverables

Cambridge International's Implementation Plan describes how we will ensure the KCS program deliverables described in Table 1 are met. These deliverables combine with those described in the RFP (Tab IV of RFP page 12 and Section 4.5 of the RFP, page 11.)

Some deliverables are required program characteristics. For these, we cite the location of evidence describing these features in our response. Other deliverables are tasks, and these we reference in our implementation plan.

#	Deliverable	Source
1	Cultivate student content and skill development, emphasizing critical thinking, inquiry, reasoning, and communication skills, beginning minimally in 9th grade	Cambridge provides rigorous academic programs for students as young as Pre-Kindergarten. See Tab III, Cambridge Pathway. Our programs integrate advanced subject content with higher-order thinking skills; we develop and measure both. Evidence of this is described in the following sections in Tab III: • Critical Thinking Skills • Interaction of Skills with Course Knowledge • Assessment Model
2	Provide courses and frameworks in multiple content areas that allow students to participate in both individual courses and diploma program courses	Cambridge offers 75 subjects at the IGCSE level and 50 subjects at the Advanced (AS/A) Level. • Courses are described in Tab III, AS/A Level and IGCSE Courses and frameworks are contained within the course syllabi (see materials in Tab VII for examples). Courses may be taken individually or as part of the AICE diploma Program, see Tab III: • The AICE Diploma • Program Flexibility
3	Align with Early Postsecondary Opportunities (EPSO)	Cambridge courses and exams are recognized and approved by the Tennessee Department of Education as an Early Postsecondary Opportunity (EPSO).
4	Provide postsecondary opportunities aligned with university admissions guidelines, specifically for students to: • Earn postsecondary credit • Demonstrate career readiness	Courses and assessments are created to assess the skills employers value most, with input from colleges to ensure they align with college-level expectations and our research supports this. As a result, over 900 American colleges and universities award credit and/or placement for Cambridge courses. See the following sections in Tab III for evidence: • College Credit • The AICE Diploma • Program Flexibility • Assessment Validity • Program Outcomes
5	Rigorous assessments that require students to demonstrate knowledge and skills	Cambridge assessments consist of multiple-measures and multiple-methods and rely little on multiple-choice items. Our assessments provide students with valid, authentic and rigorous opportunities to demonstrate what they have learned and can do. See the following sections in Tab III for evidence: • The Cambridge Pathway • Critical Thinking Skills • Assessments, specifically Assessment Model, Linking of Skills and Course Knowledge, and Multiple Measures, Multiple Methods.
6	Identify student potential	All students have potential, see Tab III, "Program Flexibility".
7	Prepare school and district staff and provide training and/or professional learning offerings about the services and supports included in the program	Cambridge educators are well-supported. • See Tab III, "Helping Schools Succeed" for resources available to schools and teachers; see also the section: Professional Development • See Tab IV, Implementation Plan for how we will prepare and support KCS educators

Implementation Plan

Our comprehensive implementation plan for Knox County Schools gives detailed plans per the solicitation in each of the following stages:

1. School registration
2. Program implementation
3. Staff Preparation
4. Assessment
5. Evaluation and Improvement

Tab III includes detailed descriptions of materials provided for implementation support and professional development opportunities; to avoid repetition these detailed descriptions are not also provided here. Instead, we refer to the relevant sections there.

We assume a start date of January 1, 2026, in reference to the day referenced in the RFP.

School Registration

School staff and teachers review Cambridge Program material and complete the registration process. Cambridge International has created a guidance document answering many of the initial questions schools have, Becoming a Cambridge International School: A guide to the registration process (attached in the Tab VII). The document specifically reviews each step of the school registration process outlined in Table 2: School Registration Process.

Table 2: School Registration Process

Steps in School Registration Process		Details
1	Complete the Expression of Interest Form	• Obtains key contact details. • Identifies which Cambridge programs and courses you are interested in. • Helps assess whether you are prepared to successfully offer our programs.
2	Complete the Cambridge Application Form	The form is designed for you to tell us more about your school and learners. It also helps us get an understanding of the way in which your school meets our registration quality standards: • mission and educational values • educational management and leadership • approach to teaching and learning • the way in which the physical environment supports teaching and learning and meets our requirements for the secure administration of examinations • legal requirements.

3	Undergo a Cambridge School Approval Visit	The Cambridge School Approval visit will assess school compliance with the requirements set out in the Cambridge Handbook. If more time is needed for some conditions to be met, a school can be approved with conditions. We can discuss any concerns you have about preparation for this visit.
4	Sign Letter of Agreement (LOA)	The LOA is a binding agreement between Cambridge International and each school registering with us. The LOA sets out the conditions of registration including, but not limited to: • having a Cambridge approved secure exam storage area • following personal data protection laws • not allowing third party use of our syllabi and assessments.

Schools participate in Cambridge site visits following application submission to verify conditions for success as outlined in Step 3 of Table 2: School Registration Process. Schools planning to offer courses with lab components must also confirm availability of resources necessary for the labs. Visited schools are approved, approved with conditions, or deemed not yet ready. Prior to registration, school leaders must read The Cambridge Handbook (International) as it becomes part of the legal contract between schools and Cambridge. The final step of school registration is for the school to sign a Letter of Agreement (LOA) with Cambridge International (Step 4 of Table 2: School Registration Process). A successful process may take up to 12 weeks.

Program Implementation

Buy-in is critical to a successful implementation and should be obtained from various levels of stakeholders, such as principals, leadership staff, teachers, parents, students, oversight boards, advisory councils, counselors, local employers and community organizations. We suggest that schools begin implementation by holding parent, community and other stakeholder group meetings to engage them in the program and build community awareness of and support for the school. Cambridge International provides a Communications Toolkit and sets of Factsheets and Guides to assist schools in this process. In addition, Joette Viggiano and Jeff Brewer can provide assistance and guidance as needed. Materials in the Toolkit are tailored to multiple stakeholder groups and are translated into eight languages. Sharing these resources leads to increased understanding of the program, the available teacher resources, the AICE diploma, postsecondary credit, and other benefits that a comprehensive and challenging curriculum with multiple supports can offer.

Schools should simultaneously hold initial meetings with Joette Viggiano and Jeff Brewer along with school administration to help identify how Cambridge can be implemented in a way that best supports their student population, local priorities, mission, vision, and school improvement goals. This may include identifying the courses to offer based upon teacher capacity, student interest, and any thematic pathways. We encourage school administrators to develop a four-year plan that outlines the progression of Cambridge courses for their school (see an example of Cambridge Course Progression in Tab VII). The purposeful planning of course offerings is to ensure the successful implementation of the program and that students have the capability of earning the AICE diploma.

Tab III, section “Program Implementation Support” describes the resources and guides for schools at this stage of the process, which include the following:

- Cambridge Handbook
- Implementing the curriculum with Cambridge: A Guide for School Leaders
- Developing your school with Cambridge: A Guide for School Leaders
- Developing the Cambridge Learner Attributes
- School Evaluation Domains and Standards

Joette Viggiano and Jeff Brewer will provide guidance throughout and can advise on the selection of individuals to fill Cambridge roles within each building (e.g., Exam Officer and Cambridge Coordinator.)

Staff Preparation

We provide substantial documentation and resources for our program; schools and teachers don't have to look for, develop, or purchase additional materials to confidently implement Cambridge courses. Many of these are listed in Tab III, Table 5. Cambridge Supports for Students, Parents, Teachers, Administrators and Exam Officers and described in Tab III.

In addition to self-studying guides and handbooks, we provide online and in-person training opportunities, available throughout the year. We offer private training events at the request of districts or schools, and all our current open event dates and locations are always listed at http://www.cambridgeinternational.org/cambridge-professional-development/events-and-training-calendar/.

Joette Viggiano and Jeff Brewer will provide guidance on recommended training for staff. Our approach to training and professional development supports teachers to become confident, responsible, reflective, innovative, and engaged. Joette and Jeff will also provide support to leadership to ensure that their program meets the needs and goals of their district and school.

We provide professional development opportunities year-round, during the summer break period and during the school year. We highly recommend the following training/professional development for each of the roles outlined below.

School leaders should continue their preparation for the program by completing the following.

- Read the Implementing the Curriculum with Cambridge document and its companion document, Developing your school with Cambridge - A guide for school leaders (these are provided in Tab VII).
- Read the current year's Cambridge Handbook 2025 International (this is part of Letter of Agreement (LOA) with Cambridge and is included in Tab VII.
- Attend the Getting Started with...your Cambridge specific program webinar for new Cambridge district and school leaders,
- Read the Educations briefs which are pertinent to your Cambridge implementation. These briefs explore important themes in education and demonstrate how they are relevant to the teaching and learning in your school.

School principals select a coordinator to oversee test administration. Coordinator training includes webinars, introductory videos, a training workshop, and self-study.

- Watch the applicable recorded Cambridge Teacher Support Website Navigation webinar: New Cambridge High School Coordinators: Navigating the Cambridge Teacher Support Website.
- Explore the applicable Teacher Support websites. Teachers are supported by Jeff Brewer who can help with initial navigation and explanation of the resources contained on the site.
- Regularly read communications from Cambridge.

Counselors do not need to be selected as it is important that all school counselors become knowledgeable about Cambridge programming and the AICE diploma so that they can answer parent/student/teacher questions. To accomplish this, they should:

- Attending a Cambridge High School Counselor Training workshop.
- Counselors should track students' Cambridge courses to monitor qualifications for the AICE diploma (we have provided an example of one-way counselors might accomplish this, see Cambridge AICE Program Planning Sheet - Course progression options in Tab VII).

Coordinators and principals must then select an exams officer to oversee and administer exams. They begin training on the following:

- Online self-study Exam Officer training (on the CIE Direct website).
- Review all the information and videos available in the Cambridge Exams' Officer Guide http://www.cie.org.uk/cambridge-for/exams-officers/cambridge-exams-officers-guide/ including several describing the test administration timeline, tasks and processes in detail, such as:
  - Cambridge Handbook 2025 International
  - Getting Started: A Guide to Exam Administration
  - The Exams Officer's Guide
  - Invigilating Cambridge Exams (provided in Tab VII as an example of test administration training materials)
  - Cambridge Guide to Making Entries
  - Pre-exam dispatch guides
  - What to Say to Candidates in an Exam (provided in Tab VII as an example of test administration support)
  - Exam Day Checklist (provided in Tab VII as an example of test administration support)
- Participate in a Cambridge New High School Exam Officer web conference – Phases 1 & 2 of the Exam Cycle.
- Attending a Cambridge High School Exam Officer – Making Entries workshop.
- Participate in a Cambridge New High School Exam Officer web conference – Phases 3 & 4 of the Exam Cycle.
- Participate in a Cambridge New High School Exam Officer web conference – Phases 5 & 6 of the Exam Cycle.

We provide teachers with the subject-specific and instructional resources they need to successfully plan their courses and teach students. The following resources are available throughout the Cambridge course planning and delivery process (some can be openly accessed at www.cambridgeinternational.com and others are fully available through the School Support Hub site once a school is registered):

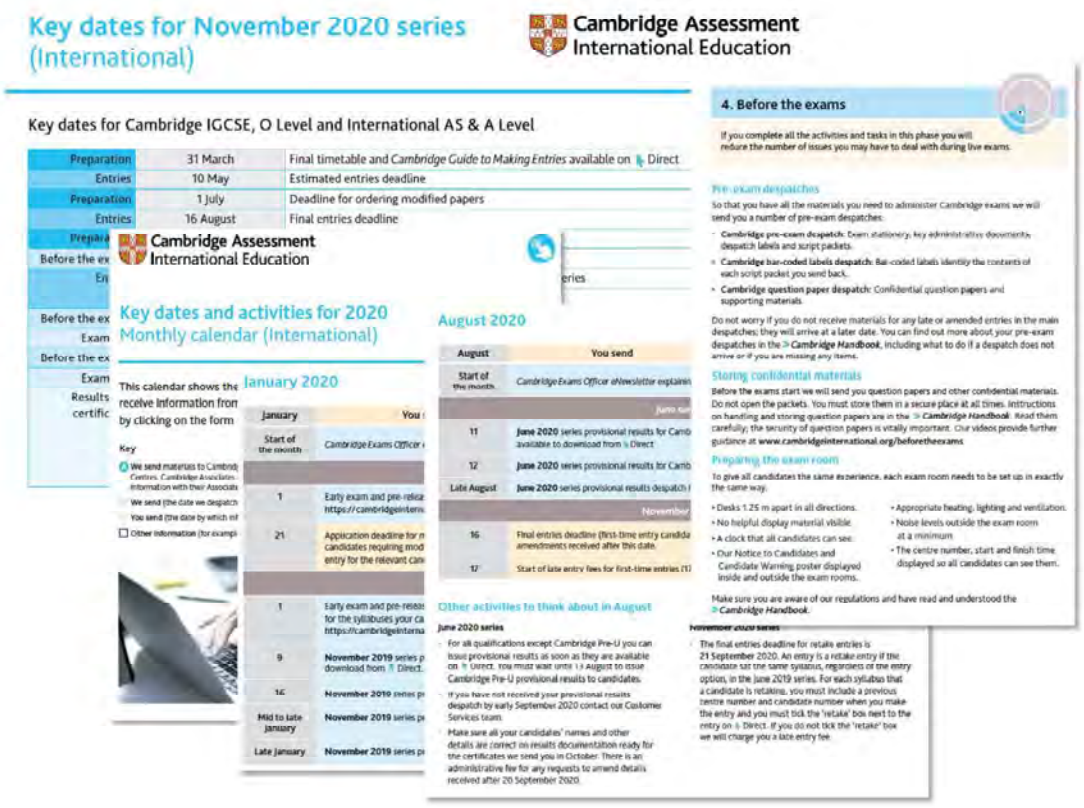
- Syllabus
- Teacher Guides
- Learner Guides
- Learner Revision Guides
- Schemes of Work
- Coursework Handbook
- Past Test Papers
- Mark Schemes
- Specimen Papers
- Example Candidate Responses
- *Resource Plus[1]
- *Test Maker
- Online Forums

Teachers should download and read course materials and instructional resources for the new courses they will teach (all are provided on the Teacher Support and course-specific websites). This should happen the spring/summer before teaching the course for the first time. After doing so, teachers should begin the following preparation activities:

- Participate in a Teacher Support Website Demo training provided by the Cambridge Coordinator (Jeff Brewer to assist if needed).
- Create a pacing guide/long-term plan of instruction and 6-8 weeks' worth of lessons to implement.
- Complete the online interactive Getting started with… modules on the Cambridge public website https://www.cambridgeinternational.org/support-and-training-for-schools/leading-learning-and-teaching-with-cambridge/
- Attend an Introductory Level Subject Specific Face-to-Face Training for their courses in the fall.
- Implement Cambridge lessons and instructional practices learned in trainings.
- Use the Community Forum on the Cambridge School Support Hub website to have professional discussions with teachers around the world teaching the same course.

As teachers teach their courses, they have several different supports they can provide to students to develop their content knowledge and learning skills. Many of these are outlined in Tab III, Table 5: Cambridge Resources and Supports for Students, Parents, Teachers, Administrators, and Exam Officers. They include the student Learner Guides, Example Candidate Responses (ECR), and Learner Revision Guides. Schools can also utilize Cambridge's Checkpoint test, which can provide a benchmark of learner performance and diagnostic feedback. It assesses skills, knowledge, and understanding at the end of 5th and 8th grades.

Assessment



Cambridge assessments are administered consistently worldwide. We provide exams officers with standardized test instructions and the support to follow them and an online tool for managing student exams, obtaining and completing forms, downloading materials, and uploading locally moderated scores and secure documents.

- Exam officers review and follow these materials for each assessment series. Each month, they also review the monthly Cambridge Exams Officer eNewsletter, which summarizes their tasks for that month and provides administration reminders for important upcoming dates and links to any necessary forms or documents (an example is provided in Tab VII).
- They also follow the annual Key Dates and Activities document summarizing the sequence and deadlines for all information and materials transferred from Cambridge to schools and from schools to Cambridge and providing links to all forms, webpages, and registration sites.
- They can attend Exam Officers webinars – series runs twice a year and recordings are available
- They may also participate in online exam officers' forums to ask questions or learn tips from other exam officers at other Cambridge schools worldwide – UK version

Teachers provide forecast grades prior to each exam and score internally moderated locally scored assessment components required in their courses.

Evaluation and Improvement

After completing a course, district and school leaders may participate in Exam results feedback conferences that describe how students performed on each assessment and discuss how this can inform and improve classroom instruction. After each assessment series, exams officers provide feedback to identify what went well and if they encountered any challenges.

During year 2 of implementing a Cambridge course, teachers may want to participate in additional Subject Specific Face-to-Face, Virtual, or Online Training for applicable courses. Subsequent years (years 2-3 of implementing a Cambridge course) should include reflection and revision of lessons using data available to further refine implementation. Teachers may participate in planning discussions with the Cambridge Coordinator and Administrative Team and attend Enrichment Trainings on instructional best practices such as Active Learning & Assessment for Learning.

Jeff Brewer will also review data after each assessment series with the goal of identifying school successes and/or any areas of improvement. He will meet with school leadership teams to review their growth, achievement, and discuss any concerns they have. Jeff Brewer will support the school and district in creating action plans to improve programming and student success if needed.

Ongoing Support

Jeff Brewer will provide ongoing support throughout all stages of implementation and administration of Cambridge programs. This may involve meeting with principals, teachers, or Cambridge coordinators regularly to stay up to date with KCS' Cambridge program to revisit and revise our four-year plans as needed. Jeff Brewer will review with school administration all resources that are available to assist with vertical alignment from feeder middle schools.

Cambridge University Press & Assessment

Cambridge University Press & Assessment (CUPA) is a division of the University of Cambridge and has approximately 160 years of experience providing goods similar in type and quantity as required by this solicitation. CUPA is a not-for-profit organization based in Cambridge, England, dedicated to designing and delivering assessments to over 8 million learners in over 160 countries. Cambridge

We offer programs for K-12 students worldwide and provide professional development qualifications for teachers and trainers. Our nine regional teams operate directly with many schools, but operate in some countries through a third party, such as the British Council, or we partner with a ministry of education to provide the national curriculum for that country.

We are the only accelerator program or assessment provider in the U.S. that is associated with a department of a top-ranked university (or any university). As a result, our programs benefit uniquely from the expertise of faculty and departments at the University of Cambridge who consistently play key roles designing Cambridge programs and assessments, including:

a) Cambridge University Press, whose mission it is to disseminate knowledge in the pursuit of education, learning and research at the highest international levels of excellence is the core publisher of resources that support Cambridge programs, providing unparalleled capacity for producing high-volumes of error-free, high-quality materials and exams.
b) The University of Cambridge Faculty of Education is a significant contributor to the improvement of educational policy and practice in international partnership with schools, colleges and other educational agencies. Faculty of Education develop the training programs for Cambridge program teachers.
c) Cambridge Mathematics faculty develop the curriculum, exams, and resources for math courses throughout the Cambridge Pathway.

d) Cambridge English develops and provides English-language learning resources, exams and teacher professional development.
e) The Assessment Research and Development division supports development and evaluation work across the Cambridge Assessment Group.

Cambridge, North America Region

Cambridge Worldwide

The University of Cambridge was established in 1209. Cambridge Assessment was then established approximately 651 years later. Ultimately leading to the first Cambridge exams taken in Trinidad in 1864 by six candidates. We now produce 8 million exam papers each year. Cambridge has designed and implemented curriculum, pedagogy, and assessment systems worldwide. Courses and materials are produced in more than 30 languages. We design and lead national education reform efforts; build capacity in countries with limited resources; support schools during times of change; offer specialized programs in bilingual education, vocational education; and training teachers in new approaches to teaching and learning. We provide over 1,000 teacher training events internationally to educators each year. We work with governments and ministries worldwide, including some of the highest performing systems in the world, such as Singapore, Hong Kong, the Netherlands, France and the U.K., supporting the development and implementation of national education systems that link rigorous standards to aligned curriculum and exams.

Several examples illustrate Cambridge's large-scale educational experience. Through a contract with the United Nations Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization (UNESCO), Cambridge consults with Egypt's Ministry of Education and Technical Education to redesign the curricular, assessment, teacher training and vocational education systems. Prior to that Cambridge worked with the Ministry of Education in Hong Kong to evaluate its technical curriculum. Cambridge also conducted a curriculum review in Kuwait for the World Bank. An evaluation and reform of teaching, learning and assessing English for the Malaysian Ministry of Education began in 2013, where, to date, more than 800 master trainers have trained over 26,000 teachers on key initiatives. Cambridge has redesigned the curricular, assessment, and teacher training systems for Kazakstan, Mongolia, and Mauritius (integrating technical and transferable skills with academic subjects) and developed new education and assessment systems for Bahrain, the Bahamas and Lesotho.

Other countries in which Cambridge provides policy and program support include the United Kingdom, India, Pakistan, South Africa, Indonesia, Macedonia, Vietnam, New Zealand, China, Sri Lanka, Brazil, Argentina, Iceland, Singapore, Saudi Arabia, United Arab Emirates, Nepal, Denmark, Mexico, Uganda, Pakistan, Nigeria, Zimbabwe, Turkey, Serbia, The Netherlands, Romania, Germany, France, Spain, Cyprus, Armenia, Italy and Columbia.[1]

Cambridge in the U.S.

Through this experience, Cambridge has developed an understanding that one-size-fits-all solutions do not work. Instead, Cambridge relies on using the existing policies and priorities in states and counties to identify and implement integrated and flexible systems. This unparalleled international experience makes Cambridge uniquely responsive to diverse needs of educational systems around the world and equips the program well to contribute quality educational experiences to the U.S. educational system.

While international students have been admitted to U.S. higher education institutions based on their high school years performance on their Ordinary (O) level or Cambridge Pre-Advanced (IGCSE) and two-year Advanced Level (A) Level courses and examinations since before the 1960's, Bay High School in Panama City, Florida became the first U.S. school to offer these qualifications in 1995.

Now used by approximately 737 school's Pre-K -12 in 25 states and the District of Columbia, Cambridge is growing in some of the largest school districts across the nation, including Omaha Public Schools, Miami-Dade, Palm Beach County, Broward County, and Metro Nashville.[2] More than 163,000 students in the U.S. completed over 309,246 exams in 2024-2025. Six states currently use Cambridge programs as part of their accountability system (FL, TN, MS, VA, NC and WA), and six states (FL, NC, WA, MS, VA and AZ) have approved state-wide policies awarding college credit and making placement determinations based on Cambridge AS & A Level work.

In the United States, demand for Cambridge programs has surged dramatically. As of June 2025, Cambridge entries have grown by 74% since 2022, with a 16% increase in this past year alone. The Cambridge Advanced segment saw a 38% growth, reflecting rising interest in rigorous, college-level coursework recognized by universities nationwide.

The growth is driven by Cambridge's ability to prepare students for college, career, and life through critical thinking, problem-solving, and real-world application. Cambridge is able to offer multiple entry points and custom pathways, allowing students to pursue individual AS levels or the full AICE Diploma, and combine Cambridge with AP, IB, CTE, or dual enrollment.

Cambridge supports diverse learners, including English language learners and students with varied academic needs, through a mastery-based approach and inclusive curriculum design. Cambridge's commitment to excellence is further reflected in its comprehensive professional development for educators, high-quality assessments aligned with global standards, and responsive customer service and school support – ensuring successful implementation and sustained impact.

As districts seek partners with a proven capacity to deliver equitable, rigorous, scalable academic programs, Cambridge International Education stands out as a trusted provider with a track record of success in the U.S.US demand for PreK-12 Cambridge International Education curriculum and assessment soars

Cambridge in Tennessee

In 2013, McGavock and Overton High Schools in Metro Nashville Public Schools (MNPS) joined Cambridge. MNPS had purposively sought out Cambridge as they wanted to increase the number of advanced academic opportunities they had within their district, especially those in underserved areas of the city.

The MNPS Cambridge high school's feeder middle schools Croft, Donelson, and William Henry Oliver added the Cambridge programs in the following years. In 2016, the district added an additional high school, Stratford STEM Magnet High School. In 2023-2025, charter schools Nashville and Rutherford Collegiate Prep and private school Clarksville Christian School (Pre-K – 12) added Cambridge pathway programs. Powell High School in Knox County became the most recent Tennessee school to join Cambridge in June of 2025, and South Doyle High School is in the application and registration process currently.

Experience with Similar Projects within the U.S. Market

The Cambridge program was first approved in 2001 for use in schools statewide following a Florida Department of Education and State Legislature multiyear pilot study. Since then, Cambridge has gained recognition across the United States and states have adopted similar policies recognizing Cambridge as an early postsecondary opportunity.

As examples of similar work that is similar in scope to KCS' scope, we describe our work with three districts below. These include Pasco County Schools and Broward County Public Schools in Florida and Charlotte-Mecklenburg Schools in North Carolina. We are also proud to include the main contacts for each district in Attachment B as references for our work.

Pasco County Schools, Florida

Pasco is a large mostly rural/suburban district with approximately 84,300 students. Pasco High School became a Cambridge school in February of 2014. Since then, 23 schools have been added including elementary through high school. Pasco County has a strong relationship with our organization and a commitment to grow the Cambridge program within their district. Currently, Pasco High School and Anclote High School offer a full set of courses at the AS and A Level, which provide students with opportunities to earn college credit. They also make entries for AICE Diploma candidates each year. In 2020, Pasco County added twelve new Cambridge high school, and in 2024-2025, Pasco County Schools had 6,966 AS and A Level exam entries averaging 10% growth in entries since 2021 ensuring that more students year on year have the opportunity to earn college credit and be prepared for success in post-secondary courses.

A Cambridge School Development Manager and School Implementation Manager have worked alongside Pasco County Schools to ensure that their schools and staff are fully supported not only during implementation, but throughout the years since inception so that they have continued success and growth of their Cambridge programming. In fact, Pasco County Schools was recognized in 2018 as the mid-sized district of the year due to efforts in growing their Cambridge program while simultaneously maintaining high standards. Some of the support that we provided to the district include, but is not limited to, direct support in school application, curriculum implementation, and ongoing administration of examination and reporting system. In addition, we provided training and support to teachers, school leaders, and exam officers. We have also presented to district stakeholders on the school/district's behalf as needed.

Pasco County has since increased the number of middle and elementary schools using Cambridge Primary and Lower Secondary curriculum, to start preparing students in lower grades for advanced coursework. In addition, several Pasco County schools use Cambridge Checkpoint exams in 5th and 8th grades to identify students with the potential to succeed in advanced courses. Pasco Middle School encourages students with promising results on Checkpoint exams to pursue Cambridge coursework in middle school and high school. The district increases participation among students who may not have applied to or been aware of the Cambridge program, thus helping to increase equity for its students. More on our implementation with Pasco County Schools can be read reviewed here: https://www.cambridgeinternational.org/usa/about-cambridge-international-us/case-studies/pasco-opportunities/

Broward County Public Schools, Florida
Broward County Public Schools (BCPS) is the sixth largest school district in the nation and the second largest school district in the state of Florida serving approximately 247,500 students. Their diverse student population comes from 136 different countries, and they speak 130 different languages.

In 2004, Fort Lauderdale High School, looking to increase college and career readiness of their diverse student population, applied and was approved as a Cambridge school to offer the Cambridge Pre-Adanced (IGCSE) and Cambridge Advanced programs, which can qualify students for the AICE Diploma. Year on year, Cambridge provides subject-specific teacher training, instructional planning and program implementation support at both the school and district level. Fort Lauderdale High School has continued to expand the number of Cambridge courses offered and students taking them each year.

BCPS increased access to the Cambridge program in 2013 per the request of other district schools. It has since registered 67 additional schools with Cambridge ranging from elementary to high school. Due to their program success, BCPS district was the recipient of the Cambridge 2017/18 and 2020/21 large size District of the Year award in recognition of their simultaneous increase in student access to Cambridge's rigorous college and career readiness courses and successful performance on their Cambridge Advanced examination.

In 2023, BCPS conducted research on their advanced academic programs. Cambridge Advanced demonstrated superior performance in student outcomes compared to other advanced academic pathways, including Advanced Placement and International Baccalaureate. This was also true across racial and ethnic demographics – showing the smallest performance gap between White and Hispanic students. These findings position Cambridge as a leading solution for BCPS as they consistently seek to expand access to rigorous academic opportunities while advancing equity across diverse student populations in an effort to close achievement gaps.

Cambridge provided many services and support at both the district and school level to help ensure a successful program implementation. Examples include presentations and program orientation briefings for district school boards and staff, application process support, program implementation planning and budgeting, and training for teachers, school administrators and examination officers. We also collaborate with districts and state departments of education on Cambridge program related policies and have recognitions specialists who work in the U.S. and globally with higher education institutions and colleges to ensure our students' achievements in the Cambridge program are suitable recognized in their admissions and placement process. A summary of our research with Broward can be reviewed here: https://www.cambridgeinternational.org/Images/737462-expanding-options-in-advanced-academics-and-global-education-impacts-and-outcomes-in-broward-county-public-schools.pdf

Charlotte-Mecklenburg Schools, North Carolina

Charlotte-Mecklenburg Schools (CMS) are located in Charlotte, North Carolina and serve more than 143,940 students across 186 schools throughout Mecklenburg County. These students represent 184 different countries and various cultural and ethnic backgrounds speaking 204 languages and dialects. CMS is divided geographically into nine regional learning communities each of which are managed by an Area Superintendent. The Northwest Learning Community was experiencing a decline in enrolment and began searching for additional programs of instruction which would attract, engage, and increase college and career readiness levels of students. They wanted to ensure that the six schools that make up the Hopewell Feeder Pattern had equal opportunities to rigorous programs like those students in other feeder patterns as well as an international perspective in their courses.

CMS heard about the rigorous Cambridge program for grades Kindergarten through high school in an Education Week article published in 2014. Following Cambridge program presentations in 2015, CMS decided to register Hopewell High School and their five feeder schools (Bradley Middle School, Mountain Island Lakes Academy, Barnette, Long Creek and Torrence Creek Elementary Schools). Cambridge supported the district during the registration process and provided additional collaboration and support to CMS district staff with program implementation planning at the six schools, making community stakeholder presentations, assisting with budgeting and delivering customized teacher and exam officer training.

Due to the ongoing success of their students and the program, CMS added 9 additional Cambridge International schools from 2018-2024. In 2025, five Cambridge high schools delivered 1,307 exams to students, which is a 20% average increase year on year since 2021. Additionally, in 2025, Palisades High School, Hopewell High School, and West Mecklenburg high school collectively graduated 23 students with a Cambridge AICE Diploma, positioning these North Carolina students competitively in both in-state and out-of-state college admissions.

Hillsborough County Public Schools

Hillsborough County Public Schools (HCPS), the seventh-largest school district in the United States and the third-largest in Florida, serves more than 224,000 students across 309 schools. Reflecting the rich diversity of its community, HCPS educates students from over 190 countries who speak more than 100 languages.

In 2020, HCPS launched its Cambridge journey with the registration of four pioneering schools: Jule F. Sumner High School, Franklin Middle Magnet School, Ferrell Middle Magnet School, and Rodgers Middle School. Building on the early success of these schools, the district made a bold commitment in 2022 to expand the Cambridge Advanced International Certificate of Education (AICE) program to 14 additional high schools and one middle school, with the goal of full implementation across all 28 high schools.

Between 2023 and 2025, HCPS continued its strategic expansion, ultimately integrating the Cambridge Pathway into 40 middle and high schools. This growth reflects the district's unwavering dedication to equity and excellence, ensuring that thousands more students have access to rigorous, internationally benchmarked academic opportunities. Through a variety of implementation models tailored to each school's context—and supported by robust professional development and community engagement—HCPS has achieved remarkable outcomes.

Cambridge exam pass rates increased from 58% to 66%, and in the 2023–24 academic year alone, students earned over 72,000 college credit opportunities. In the 2025 exam series, HCPS made 30,237 Cambridge exam entries which is a 1,577% increase from just 1,825 entries in 2021. Schools such as Leto, Wharton, and Robinson High exemplify how the Cambridge Pathway empowers diverse learners to thrive and succeed.

In recognition of its outstanding achievements, HCPS was named the Cambridge International District of the Year for 2024–25 in the Large District category. This prestigious award celebrates the district's success in expanding access to Cambridge programs while maintaining high levels of student performance on Cambridge Advanced examinations.
