Good afternoon Ernie,

As per our phone conversation yesterday, 210 and 212 N Main Street are slotted for demolition around June of this year. The owner signed waivers on 212 N Main Street for its demo, however a structural engineer told us that we cannot tear 212 N Main Street down without running the risk of damaging 210 N Main Street. We have posted letters on 210 N Main Street and mailed these same letters to both 210 Main Holdings LLC and RBI Enterprises which are listed on the Assessor's and County Treasurer's sites as the owner of the property and registered agent. These mailings have all come back as returned mail with insufficient addresses.

Would there be any way to get the owner to sign waivers on 210 N Main Street for the City to demo the property at ½ the standard rate? This is our current discount grant program we have right now to assist with demo costs.

As per our phone conversation yesterday, 210 and 212 N Main Street are slotted for demolition around June of this year. The owner signed waivers on 212 N Main Street for its demo, however a structural engineer told us that we cannot tear 212 N Main Street down without running the risk of damaging 210 N Main Street. We have posted letters on 210 N Main Street and mailed these same letters to both 210 Main Holdings LLC and RBI Enterprises which are listed on the Assessor's and County Treasurer's sites as the owner of the property and registered agent. These mailings have all come back as returned mail with insufficient addresses.

Would there be any way to get the owner to sign waivers on 210 N Main Street for the City to demo the property at ½ the standard rate? This is our current discount grant program we have right now to assist with demo costs.

Please let me know.

Thank you for your assistance,

INCIDENT NARRATIVE

On March 13, 2024, Fire Marshal Aaron Mayhugh was dispatched to the address mentioned above to check the security status of the abandoned buildings in the area. When I arrived on the east side of the building, I noticed that the back door of 210 North Main was open. Additionally, I saw two adult females inside the building. When the women noticed my arrival, they exited the building and walked towards the car parked in the lot. I introduced myself and asked them about their identity and reason for being in the abandoned building. They identified themselves as Donna Mitchell and Corrine McDaniel and said they had come to the building as kids and wished to explore it again. I informed them that they were trespassing and that the abandoned building on that block was hazardous. I advised them to leave the property.

While I was at the property, I looked through the open door and noticed that large amounts of debris and combustible materials were covering most of the floor area visible from outside the building. I took several photographs of the conditions inside the building from the doorway. The building is a fire hazard due to the owner's failure to keep it secure, poor conditions, and the large amount of combustible materials and debris. Homeless people are known to live in vacant, unsecured buildings in this area and have caused fires in the past and continue to do so.
