1	6-Jun-19	1:13 PM	No	Field not completed.	No	Field not completed.	Yes	Roads are used by everyone and should be a priority above other projects of the government. I am against the assessment method where individuals on a particular street must pay part of the total bill. Perhaps those individuals live on a more busy road. It is unfair.	No	Field not completed.
2	14-Sep-19	8:47 AM	Yes	Make use of funding available wisely. I have personally seen wasteful actions on road maintenance. Example: our development had two areas that quickly deteriorated due to lack of proper drainage which the developer did not install either because it was not required by the city or because it was not properly inspected. In addition to this issue, the city wanted to seal coat all roads in our development without correcting the existing drainage issue. I was informed by the city that they would deal with the drainage issue at a later date. Common sense would be to correct the problem instead of temporarily masking it. We did get the city to install drains and proper curbing prior to seal coating. This should never had been an issue to begin with. Responsible people spend money wisely to meet their needs, unfortunately we don't have it handed to us and not forcing people to fund our careless spending habits.	No	Field not completed. 4	26-Nov-19	12:39 PM	No	I don't want the taxes to go up overall, it feels limiting to where people want to live.	Yes	Yes this gives people more personalized fees based on their lifestyle choices. Big Fan.	No	This would cause fees for utilities to go up, and for people struggling with money, that sounds like not a great idea	No	NA

15	25-Feb-20	10:46 PM	No	Field not completed.	Yes	Keeping the road funding mechanism as it is currently, the City of Ramsey might be forced to actually reduce spending on non-essential projects and refocus spending on critical infrastructure needs such as roads and water quality. A little fiscal discipline and focus on the constitutional use of taxpayer money would be a great step in the right direction	No	MN property owners are currently protected from drastic property tax increases by general levy limits and the proposed franchise fees are a way for government officials to bypass that taxpayer protection and dramatically increase the effective taxes on city residents with impunity.
