

DAY TRIP: TUNDRA SWAN MIGRATION

PHOTO BY LARRY REIS FLICKR

The Mississippi River Valley transforms into a bustling migratory path each winter, serving as a crucial route for various bird species, including waterfowl, raptors, and shorebirds. The most awe-inspiring sights is the gathering of thousands of tundra swans, a phenomenon unique to this area during their southern migration. Guided by the knowledgeable Jim Nissen, we'll traverse this vibrant corridor, gaining insights into the diverse bird species. Following the tour, we'll enjoy a meal at the Blue Moon Restaurant in Onalaska, WI. Then journey at the Onalaska Upper Mississippi River National Fish and Wildlife Refuge Visitor Center. On the way home we'll stop at LARK Toys in Kellogg.
