Council Member Esteban C. Rosales led the Pledge of Allegiance.

3. INVOCATION

The invocation was performed by Ms. Elida Valenzuela, Police Chaplain.

4. CALL TO THE PUBLIC

Ms. Maria Robles, 1195 California St, San Luis, AZ, emphasized the importance of teamwork for the benefit of the community and families, calling for collaboration to truly understand the needs in areas such as education and health, working directly with residents. She expressed concern that, although San Luis, Arizona, has a population of approximately 40,000 people, 99.9% of its residents are unaware of the city's history. Most people only know that it was officially proclaimed a city in 1979, but few are aware that the name "San Luis, Arizona" was given in 1930. She also shared a little-known piece of local history, the existence of a tourist wagon pulled by a giant tractor, known as El Tio Can, which used to take visitors across the border to San Luis Río Colorado, Mexico. Ms. Robles proposed working together to recover and preserve the city's history, embracing its roots, and recognizing those who contributed to its development, such as the first developer who built homes using USDA funding. She encouraged investing in culture, art, and local identity, believing that these elements can help make San Luis a more appealing destination for visitors. She also suggested beginning preparations now for a meaningful celebration of the city's 50th anniversary, which is only four (4) years away. During her remarks, Ms. Robles introduced her nonprofit organization, "We Are, Somos", which operates with zero funding, but a strong commitment to community service. She shared that she has been involved in community work for over 30 years and was a pioneer alongside Ms. Amanda Aguirre in forming the city's first group of community health workers (promotoras de salud). At that time, the city was facing serious issues such as reproductive health challenges, high teenage pregnancy rates, and the presence of over 30 street gangs. Through collaboration with individuals like Salomón and Captain Garcia, they were able to reverse many of those issues.

Ms. Luisa Arreola, 3685 San Pedro St, San Luis, AZ, brought up a concern about the lack of a memorial for veterans in the community. She pointed out that San Luis does not currently have a dedicated space to honor or recognize the service and sacrifices of its veterans. She made it clear that she's not speaking on behalf of every veteran, but rather those with whom she has had conversations. She wanted to ask if there's something the city and community can work on together to create a space or memorial that shows appreciation for the sacrifices made by veterans.

5. PRESENTATIONS

7. G. Discussion and possible action on any and all matters regarding Ordinance No. 467. An Ordinance of the Mayor and City Council of the City of San Luis, Arizona, amending City Code Sections 10.15.255(D), 10.15.205, 10.15.010, and 10.15.990(C)(1) to clarify parking on public land, scope of parking enforcement and to update definitions and references; repealing conflicting provisions, and providing for severability. (Kay Marion Macuil, City Attorney)

Ms. Kay M. Macuil, City Attorney, explained that the new ordinance addresses several parking-related issues, particularly involving inoperable vehicles on public lands such as BLM property under the transmission line. While the city has permission from BLM to use this area for parking, enforcement has been limited due to unclear language in the existing City Code. The ordinance now authorizes the city to remove inoperable or disabled vehicles from BLM and other federal lands, closes enforcement gaps, and clarifies that the registered owner of a vehicle is the party responsible for any parking violations, which strengthens the city's ability to enforce parking rules. Additionally, the ordinance updates outdated references to civil court procedures for traffic and standing violations, replacing them with the current regulations and aligning the related definitions, thereby modernizing the City Code and improving its overall effectiveness.

Mayor Nieves Riedel asked whether the Police Department had been involved in drafting the ordinance. Ms. Macuil responded that the police had informed her of the problems they were experiencing, and based on that input, she drafted the ordinance. Ms. Mayor Nieves Riedel then commented that, since enforcement hadn't been happening even under the previous code, she was concerned about how enforcement would be handled going forward. She expressed empathy for the Police Department, noting that officers might face strong complaints from the public since this is a new policy. She proposed that the city consider conducting an awareness campaign and possibly not issuing tickets on the first violation. Instead, the first offense could be used as an opportunity to educate the public, with a warning that future violations would result in fines. She clarified that while she didn't know how the rest of the Council felt, she believed that this change, while necessary, could create challenges if not properly communicated to residents. She emphasized the importance of anticipating the consequences of such changes and ensuring the public is adequately informed.

Council Member Javier Vargas shared that he had been contacted by several community members who were concerned about recent enforcement of parking laws. These residents mentioned that they had always parked in front of their homes without any issue and were now receiving citations without any prior notice or warning. He suggested that, moving forward, some form of direct communication such as knocking on doors should be used to inform residents that the law will now be actively enforced, helping to prevent confusion and complaints.

Mayor Nieves Riedel followed up by asking whether signs would be posted to inform the public of the parking rules and potential consequences. She added that this would be another way to help educate the community and ease the transition into active enforcement.

Mr. Damian Miller, Lieutenant, responded by explaining that the Police Department tags vehicles first, giving owners a specific amount of time to move them before taking further action. He noted that many of the vehicles being targeted are clearly abandoned, often damaged from collisions, missing tires, or otherwise poor conditions. These vehicles generate frequent complaints, especially in residential areas where they occupy limited parking spaces that residents need. He also highlighted a longstanding issue in the BLM area behind Family Dollar, where a large dirt lot has been used by individuals involved in importing and exporting vehicles, creating additional problems. He emphasized that the department has been tagging vehicles in these areas for years, and the public is already aware that enforcement has been increasing as the city works toward a long-term solution. Additionally, he mentioned that they attempt to contact vehicle owners when tags are placed or when owners reach out to the department, so they can explain the reason behind the enforcement.

Vice Mayor Tadeo Azael De La Hoya asked whether parking citations were being dismissed when individuals claimed they were not the ones driving or parking the vehicle.

Lieutenant Damian Miller responded that he was not aware of such cases from the court's side.

Ms. Danae Figueroa, Magistrate, clarified that this type of claim can be used as a valid defense during a contested civil traffic hearing. If someone argues they were not the person who parked the vehicle and presents a credible defense, it can lead to the citation being dismissed. She confirmed that this has occurred in some cases and explained that, as with any infraction, if a valid defense is presented, the individual may be found not responsible.
