Mr. Tim Suan
Deputy Town Manager
Town of Wickenburg
155 N Tegner Street, Suite A
Wickenburg, AZ 85390

Dear Tim:

On behalf of the Board of Directors and staff of the Webb Center, I would like to thank the Town of Wickenburg for providing funds to the Del E. Webb Center for the Performing Arts to "market and advertise its 2024-2025 season of performing arts events to areas outside of Wickenburg." The $65,562 acquired from the B Tax was supplemented with $25,379 from the Webb Center's operational funds to advertise the series of performances through its website, direct mailings, social media platforms, and various media outlets in the West Valley and metro Phoenix areas. The Town's financial support was instrumental in promoting the Webb Center's profile as a destination for quality entertainment in the greater community.

As thoughtful stewards of the Town of Wickenburg's B Tax funds, the Webb Center advertised its November 2024 – April 2025 series of live events through print publications and radio ads that yielded positive returns on investment.

Printed publications included:

- the Arizona Republic's West Valley edition with 27,350 average daily readers;
- the Sun City Independent, Sun City West Independent and Surprise Independent family of newspapers with a combined average readership of 66,000;
- sister publications Phoenix Magazine and Phoenix Home & Garden which reach over 600,000 people monthly;
- The Wickenburg Sun's "official visitors magazine" Destination Wickenburg had 15,000 copies distributed through the Wickenburg Visitors Center, managed by the Wickenburg Chamber of Commerce, as well as in racks throughout the surrounding communities to promote the town to tourists;

DEL E. WEBB CENTER FOR THE PERFORMING ARTS BOARD OF DIRECTORS

TOM McCloud, PRESIDENT, JAY FARQUHAR, VICE PRESIDENT/TREASURER, LORRAINE BRODEK SECRETARY, LIZ ATKINS, HARRY PATRICK CHRISTIAN, JANELL FLAMAND, SALLY NORRIS
DR. BARBARA REMONDINI, DAVE STANDER, GREG STRUVE, CLAIRE WEST

- the West Valley View's Newcomers' Guide, which is distributed for one calendar year to West Valley chambers of commerce, visitor centers, libraries, hotels as well as directly mailed to new West Valley home buyers;
- Arizona KAET/PBS magazine which is mailed directly to 48,000 subscribers;
- AAA's southwest regional Via magazine which is mailed directly to members; and
- Arizona Real Country Magazine which is placed on distribution racks throughout the West Valley.

New advertising opportunities were explored with:

- Encore magazine, which serves 9,000 readers in Buckeye's Festival Foothills community;
- Viva magazine, which targets 18,500 PebbleCreek residents;
- Mountain View magazine, which focuses on 26,250 residents in the Vistancia, Trilogy and Blackstone neighborhoods; and
- the December 2024 issues of GQ, Vogue and Vanity Fair magazines, which reach a Phoenix metro audience of 165,500.

These diverse periodicals reach the Webb Center's target demographics in the West Valley and metro regions of Phoenix.

The Webb Center worked with Money Mailer to promote its events through ad inserts in the December and January mailings. The postcard-size ads are placed in eye-catching envelopes and sent to 60,000 homes in the Sun City West, Sun City Grand, and Surprise neighborhoods.

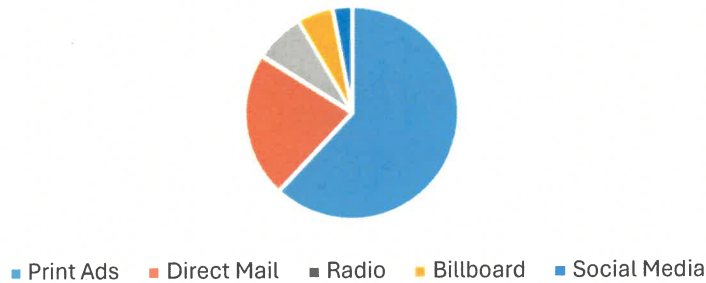

The organization sought to attract residents with a propensity for the arts by also advertising in the Arizona Broadway Theatre and AZ Musicfest's playbills.

The Webb Center produced a series of 30-second radio spots in the Sun City West market on KSCW to promote 12 different events. Radio spots were also heard on KSWG, promoting country artists Craig Campbell, Tony Jackson and Little Texas to that demographic of radio listeners.

The Webb Center organization strives to reach a broad demographic of local and state-wide audience members, therefore marketing efforts are varied (direct mail, print, radio, digital, social media) to ensure success. Concerted marketing efforts helped the Webb Center raise awareness and engage new as well as returning patrons in the greater community. Please be assured that the effectiveness of each marketing brand mentioned above will be evaluated before the start of the 2025-2026 season to ensure a high return on investment.

I would like to point out that since potential customers consume such diverse forms of media, the Webb Center's ad spend has been appropriated to reach them at these various points of contact. See the chart below demonstrating how the marketing budget is currently allocated. As digital advertising and social media becomes more prevalent, the Webb Center's marketing strategy will continue to evolve to meet patrons where they are to ensure the best ROI (return on investment).

Marketing Budget Allocation

I would also like to mention that because the cost of print ads has increased and we wish to include other marketing avenues in our strategy, the funding agreement spreadsheet will reflect fewer ad buys in the Arizona Republic (bi-weekly instead of weekly) and smaller ad sizes in the Independent Newsmedia family of papers (1/4 page instead of 1/3 page) than in Fiscal Year 2024. These budgetary adjustments allowed for ad buys in new publications such as hyperlocal Encore, Viva and Mountain View magazines that are targeted to specific West Valley neighborhoods as well as the Phoenix metro editions of national GQ, Vogue and Vanity Fair publications.

The Webb Center's 2024-2025 series of 25 performances attracted a total of 8,763 audience members. Of this total, approximately 4,586 were from out-of-town; comprising 50.6% of all patrons. Attendees generated an estimated $172,715 in event related purchases including meals and hotel stays within Wickenburg. This estimate is based upon the most recent research conducted by the Americans for the Arts' "Arts & Economic Prosperity VI" study from November 2023. The report states that, "Local attendees to a nonprofit arts or culture event in the West Valley Region spend $29.05 (avg) per person per event as a direct result of their attendance." In addition, "Nonlocal attendees spend an average of 27% more than local attendees, $36.95, as a result of their attendance."

A review of the attached "Funding Agreement Spreadsheet" will demonstrate that the eligible marketing expenses, including graphic design and ad placement, expended the full grant amount of $65,562. Currently the theatre team is thoughtfully working on the Webb Center's 2025-2026 Season of programs with an anticipated opening in November 2025.

To summarize, the Webb Center continues to be truly grateful to the Town Council for approving the B Tax and its budgetary expenditures; helping us make Wickenburg an arts and culture destination in the West Valley. We look forward to working with the Town of Wickenburg on future projects that benefit residents and visitors alike.

Best regards,

Andy Halseth
Chief Executive Officer

How La Niña may affect US weather and worsen hurricane season NOAA

La Niña

ence conditions in the upcoming winter months.

The Southwest, the central Rockies, the Gulf Coast and the eastern seaboard typically have drier and warmer winters during La Niña years, according to Gottschalk. The Pacific Northwest, New England and the Great Lakes regions could have wetter winters during the event.

But even if La Niña develops fully this year, climatologists say it's difficult to predict how it could impact the weather.

"La Niña is forming quite slowly, and the slower it forms, the less time it has to actually peak," said Crimmins. "It looks like it's going to be a weak event."

"Those events historically have kind of given us a mixed bag of conditions for the Southwest," he added.

The last La Niña began in 2020 and lasted through 2023, a rare event with three consecutive years of La Niña conditions, known as a "triple-dip" phenomenon. This event triggered droughts, floods, heat waves and other weather extremes around the world.

The Southwest was hit with extreme drought conditions and active wildfire seasons during that period.

Although this winter's La Niña likely won't be as severe as the last one, the extent of its impact is still uncertain.

"That's why you get this probabilistic forecast where it leans dry, but it leaves the door open for average to above-average conditions," Crimmins said. "I know it's maddening to people because they just want to know if it's going to be dry or not."

Hospice of the Valley ranked 3rd in nation for quality care

Hospice of the Valley
Debbie Shumway
Guest columnist

We are extremely humbled to learn that Hospice of the Valley has been ranked third in the entire country for providing quality care to patients and families. A new study ranking the 50 largest U.S. hospices was recently published in the American Journal of Hospice and Palliative Medicine. The study, "Caregiver and Employee Experience Among Big Hospices," looked at three quality indicators: Medicare surveys of families assessing patient care and support; caregiver satisfaction and employee satisfaction ratings.

It is an honor to be so highly regarded by families who have entrusted us to care for their loved ones. This is a true testament to the specialized care our staff provide each and every day. They are passionate about this important work and dedicated to our mission — bringing comfort, dignity and compassionate care to our community.

This comprehensive study also found that even though 74% of the market is dominated by for-profit hospices, the top 10 highest-quality hospices in the nation are all nonprofits. Hospice of the Valley is the only nonprofit hospice in Maricopa County and has always cared for all in need, regardless of insurance or financial resources. This study shows that caregivers expressed higher satisfaction with nonprofits, and nonprofit hospice employees felt a deeper commitment to delivering exceptional care.

Our clinical teams cared for nearly 28,000 patients and their families last year in Maricopa and northern Pinal counties and Tucson. Since we were founded in 1977, we have continued to expand programs to meet evolving needs and bridge gaps in the healthcare system. We are the only Arizona hospice providing in-home primary care for frail and vulnerable patients, in-home supportive care at earlier stages of illness, and hospice care for children and adults in the comfort of home. Our innovative Dementia Care and Education Campus helps improve the quality of life for people living with all types and stages of the condition and supports their caregivers. Families can always speak to a nurse 24/7 and they derive comfort in knowing we are there for them — any time of day or night.

It has been our privilege to serve our community these past 47 years. We are grateful for the employees who have made us Arizona's leading hospice provider and for the patients and families who choose Hospice of the Valley to walk alongside them during this meaningful time.

We are here to support all those in need. Please don't hesitate to reach out to us at (602) 530-6900 or hov.org.

Debbie Shumway is executive director of Hospice of the Valley.

da Athletic Commission.

"(Velez) was able to understand that in the boxing business, things usually don't come the way you choose," Bayless said.

"He says, 'You think your three years are a lifetime? Try 25,'" Velez said. "That conversation with Kenny Bayless changed my life."

With renewed determination, Velez kept announcing, and a few months later, met Floyd Mayweather Jr.'s uncle, who was in Phoenix for a boxing match with a fighter signed to Mayweather's promotional company.

The two hit it off, staying up all night talking about boxing. Soon after, Mayweather's staff offered Velez a job at Mayweather Promotions. He's worked there for the last eight years.

The cheer of a lifetime

The meaning that Velez finds in the work comes from the boxers themselves.

"Sometimes these fighters will get on TV once or twice in their life, and they'll never be able to get on again. So I want to do the best I can so they can go back and play that video for their grandkids," he said.

One fight in particular stands out — a 2019 fight between Mayweather and Tenshin Nasukawa in Japan. Velez had been told to tone down his announcing style to adapt to Japanese cultural norms. He decided to ignore that advice.

In the video of the fight, which has 38 million views on Youtube at the time of writing (and was refereed by Bayless), Velez's voice rings in the stadium introducing Nasukawa.

"(Nasukawa) afterwards, he got beat up, but he said, 'I want to thank you because I never got a cheer like that ever in my life,'" Velez said.

Velez makes anywhere from $1,000 to $35,000 for an appearance, depending on the size of the show. Since around 2018, he's been able to support himself just off announcing.

Even though he's broken into the upper echelons of announcing, he still announces amateur fights sometimes, just to support the local boxing community. He's also working on an anti-bullying festival for kids with a local boxing gym.

"If there's something going on in boxing, Ralph's going to be there," said Saenz.

'Why are you announcing bacon?'

Velez has a unique, almost sing-songy style, said Bernardo Osuna, an ESPN boxing reporter and longtime friend.

"Every inflection that he enunciates is for a reason," Osuna said. "And I think that's what makes him special."

Velez still practices obsessively before a show, even pretending that the breakfast food he's cooking for his family are boxers and he's introducing them.

"My daughter's like, 'Dad, what are you doing? Why are you announcing bacon?'" Velez said, laughing.

In all seriousness, Velez wants to continue to refine his craft.

"I want to be the best in the world," he said. "I want to show these guys that it doesn't matter if you grew up on Central Baseline or Central Southern or the West Valley or South Phoenix. You can be whatever you want to be."

Man arrested after equipment stolen from local church

Karen Bartunek

Arizona Republic
USA TODAY NETWORK

Glendale police detectives have arrested a man accused of stealing a truck and trailer filled with $30K worth of equipment from a Glendale church and hauling it away to his home in Tonopah.

Edward Charles Gouer, 44, was arrested Nov. 5 after police were given an anonymous tip about where the items stolen from The Table Church might be located. The church holds its services at Arrowhead Elementary School near Union Hills Drive and 75th Avenue in Glendale.

Detectives recovered the stolen trailer along with all its contents at Gouer's home. He was later arrested at a construction job site where he claimed to not know how the trailer got to his house. The truck, a Ford F-250, was not found.

On Oct. 26, video from multiple cameras caught Gouer driving a Chevy Trailblazer into the church parking lot around 9:30 p.m. Shortly after parking behind a silver Ford F-250 with an attached trailer, the truck and trailer begin to drive away, with the Trailblazer following.

Information from the anonymous tipster stated they had seen the story on the news.

Glendale police has asked the public to come forward with any information about the missing truck.

Contact Glendale police at 623-930-3000 or Silent Witness at 480-WITNESS (480-TESTIGO for Spanish speakers).

A school resource officer at Verrado High School in Buckeye was arrested on Oct. 28 on suspicion of domestic violence-related charges in Goodyear and has been placed on administrative leave.

Buckeye police said they are co-operating with a criminal investigation conducted by Goodyear police and have assigned another officer to fill the role until further notice.

"These allegations are troubling and do not align with our core values of integrity, safety, respect and compassion," Buckeye police said in a statement. "The Buckeye Police Department is committed to transparency throughout this process."

The school resource officer served at the high school for over a decade.

The incident is subject to an internal investigation, according to Buckeye police.

"Police officers, especially those tasked with the safety and welfare of students, must be held to the highest of standards," Buckeye police said.

ESTATE PLANNING

What to do about creditor claims in probate

Louis Silverman
Guest columnist

Imagine that your mother has passed away, and you have been nominated in her will as the personal representative of her estate. You are an only child and the beneficiary of her 401(k) and life insurance. Your mother also created a joint CD account between her and you with about $5,000. There is a bank account with $50,000 and a brokerage account with $25,000. You have incurred $10,000 of funeral expense and you search through your mother's expenses, and find credit card bills of $100,000 (you are shocked that the credit card bills are so high!). Now you understand how she kept going to the casinos.

You wonder about probate and paying the creditors. There is a priority of creditor claims. For example, the highest priority are the costs and expenses of administration (such as attorney's fees and court costs), followed by funeral expenses, then taxes, and so on. The lowest priority is the unsecured credit card debt. Unsecured simply means that there is no collateral, such as a car loan or mortgage on a house.

Three of your inherited assets will be paid to you as the beneficiary or joint owner (the 401(k), the life insurance and the CD account. No probate is necessary for these accounts. The money in the bank and brokerage accounts are subject to probate (because they are not jointly owned and are not pay-on-death). But the Arizona small estate statute should allow you to claim these as the successor through the use of a small estate affidavit (if the value of personal property subject to probate is $75,000 or less, the small estate process is available).

So where does that leave the creditors? You have roughly $80,000 subject to creditor claims because the 401(k) and the life insurance proceeds are exempt from creditors. The creditors cannot attach these assets. However, the balance of your mother's assets, roughly $80,000, is subject to paying the creditor claims. The funeral expense is the first priority, reducing your "unprotected" assets to $70,000.

Even though probate is not necessary, you may publish a notice to creditors in the newspaper for three consecutive weeks, giving creditors the opportunity to submit claims. Furthermore, you should give actual notice to creditors by mailing them a notice to creditors. This process will result in a four-month window for creditors to pursue their claims by sending you a written statement of the claim, identifying the creditor and the amount claimed. We find that creditors sometimes do not pursue collecting their claims. If the creditor does not submit a claim within the four-month period, the claim is barred.

Assume that after four months, you have received creditor claims of $80,000, but you only have $70,000 available to pay claims. In that case, you should contact each creditor and negotiate the payment. We find that many creditors will be open to accepting reduced amounts, and in this case, you explain that you do not have sufficient funds to pay them in full. You may then address only those creditors who have submitted claims and negotiate the amount due.

Young woman dies after being struck by vehicle on US 60

Olivia Rose

Arizona Republic

USA TODAY NETWORK

A young woman from Glendale was killed on the side of U.S. 60 in Mesa on Oct. 27, after being struck by a vehicle driven by a man with a suspended license, police said.

Zoey Johnson, 23, and another person were standing outside of a vehicle around 8 a.m. on U.S. 60 near Stapley Drive, according to the Arizona Department of Public Safety.

A pickup traveling on the highway was changing lanes and failed to stay within the lane, DPS said. The pickup drifted to the right and collided with the unoccupied vehicle and the two pedestrians.

According to DPS, Johnson was pronounced dead on the scene, and the other person was taken to the hospital.

The driver of the pickup was identified by DPS as 45-year-old Nicholas Meyer of Apache Junction. He was not impaired at the time of the incident, police said.

DPS told The Republic he was driving a Ford 150 pickup pulling a flatbed trailer loaded with machinery.

Meyer was booked into the Maricopa County Sheriff's Office Jail on two class one misdemeanors, causing death by use of a vehicle while driving with a suspended license and causing serious physical injury or death by a moving violation.

Prior to her death, Johnson amassed nearly 30,000 followers on her TikTok account. She posted videos about riding dirt bikes.

Reports on Zoey's age vary. Her social media profiles state she was 21, but DPS said she was 23.

Students

What inspires the work of your organization?

Reading is a powerful tool. When reading is enjoyable, children grow in their understanding of the world, their ability to imagine, and their confidence in themselves. Reading is also a critical skill necessary to successfully function in society, as strong literacy skills positively impact academic achievement, socioeconomic status, citizen participation and health outcomes. In fact, leading research in education shows that students who do not read at grade level by the end of third grade are four times less likely to graduate from high school.

Situating this harrowing statistic to the current state of Arizona's education system, only 41% of Arizona's third graders can read at grade level, decreasing to a mere 27% when coming from low-income families. Combating higher levels of poverty and lower levels of proficiency in education, these students face an increased risk of school dropout, unemployment and incarceration. However, with proper reading intervention, there is an 89% chance that students who can read at grade level by third grade will graduate from high school, irrespective of socioeconomic status.

How does your organization help make Arizona a better place for Arizonans?

Read Better Be Better is an Arizona-based literacy nonprofit whose mission is to connect young readers with youth leaders to inspire a love of literacy and learning. Founded in 2014, the organization does so by supplementing classroom literacy instruction at Title I schools serving families experiencing poverty.

During twice-weekly, 90-minute sessions, readers, leaders and program coaches work to improve concentration, reading comprehension and the enjoyment of reading — all while bolstering leadership skills. With this unique cross-age peer-tutoring model, Read Better Be Better serves not just one but two students at the same time and simultaneously provides future educators with valuable classroom experience. Investing in system-wide change,

Arizona students participating in Read Better Be Better's program practice their reading skills. PROVIDED BY READ BETTER BE BETTER

Read Better Be Better's innovative solution operates from the understanding of literacy as a vehicle for social justice, inspiring generations of engaged learners and leaders and propelling the social and material conditions of communities in need.

According to post-program data, readers improved 20% more than non-participating students on standardized comprehension assessments. Echoing this success, 89% of readers reported that they "understand what they are reading more than they did before participating," and 89% of leaders reported that "I have what it takes to be a good leader after participating in the program." Further validating this remarkable success, 76% of teachers reported that "the student understands reading material in class more than they did before."

What vision does your organization have for the future?

A world in which empowered communities demand equitable access to foundational skills.

Meet fashion-loving teen, Arely

Josie Galeck

Special to The Republic

Fifteen-year-old Arely is a budding fashionista with a heart of gold. She loves to do hair, makeup, and nails and wants a career helping people feel their best at their wedding, prom, or quinceañera. Arely also dreams of working on TV or film sets and seeing her work on the big screen.

Arely has tons of friends and is very friendly and social. Together, they like to sing, dance, go shopping, and watch movies – as long as they aren't scary!

Arely's first language is Spanish, and sometimes she struggles with English, but she works hard in and out of school to improve her skills. Arely loves to talk with people and her bilingual skills help her meet many new people.

Arely is looking for a two-parent family or a family with a single mother who will encourage her to chase her dreams. A family that speaks Spanish would help Arely feel confident in her commu-

Johanson

similar to the South African fossils; others contended the size difference between males and females was so large that it had to be two different species, not two sexes of the same.

"It was a bit of an uphill climb," Johanson said.

In the years since Lucy was found, further finds in the Afar region, including by the current Institute of Human Origins Director Yohannes Haile-Selassie, have revealed that Au. afarensis lived side-by-side with other hominins, raising questions about which species might have given rise to our genus, Homo.

Johanson, who now holds the position of Virginia M. Ullman Chair in Human Origins at ASU's institute, still believes Lucy is the best candidate.

She is "distantly related" to us, he said, but "crucial" in the lineage that eventually led to the rise of Homo sapiens some 300,000 years ago in Africa.

Becoming a 'science popularizer'

This discovery changed Johanson's life.

"It generated praise from some people and generated jealousy from others," he said.

It reverberated through his life in another, unexpected way: putting him in front of the public, time and time again.

It's a classic question: Where do we come from? Johanson has spent a life trying to answer it, at the Museum of Natural History in New York and small museums in southern Ohio; at an array of colleges and universities and schools; through a three-part television series

He felt strongly that those doing science in which there was widespread public interest had a responsibility to share their findings in a way that laypeople understood.

"I became a science popularizer, which was very, very rewarding to me," he said.

Johanson puts Lucy's iconicism down to her relatability. Not in looks, of course, or lifestyle. But in the fact she is an identifiable person. A small female who stood at about 3-foot-5, who lived in a group, who walked through the forest, and scavenged fruit, leaves and eggs.

Johanson joked that his connection with Lucy is "longer than most marriages."

"There's certainly not a day in those 50 years when I didn't mention the name Lucy," he said.

But despite all the talks and interviews and controversy and discoveries and slow piecing together of human history, his enthusiasm has not waned.

"When I walk into the room where she is stored in Addis Ababa, in the National Museum of Ethiopia, I still get a thrill of seeing that those boxes come out of the safe and seeing those bones again," Johanson said.

He has experienced this twice in the past year: in August and also in January, when he visited the site where Lucy was found half a century ago.

He was with a group of about 20, and as they stood there, without plan or preparation, the gathering fell into silence. It was the place where an ancestor had lived and died, and, in her unlikely preservation, offered an incomprehensible future the gift of insight to the past.

It felt, Johanson said, as though they were paying their respects.

artist collaborations, she thinks about sustainable solutions like scholarships, grants, or artist incubators to provide opportunities that might not otherwise be there for local artists.

"I think it's important to note that the reason why I started to build community is because I grew up undocumented for a very long time," Aviles said, "I don't think if I wasn't in the situation I would have been forced to find myself in the way I did."

"It allowed me to build community in a genuine way," Aviles said.

Recently, the art museum opened its space to "Fruity Night," an LGBTQ+ focused poetry reading night hosted by them, an art collective.

It was a success, bringing in over 350 people inside and outside of the LGBTQ+ community.

The event came to fruition after six months of Aviles' attendance at them, poetry reading nights at IceHouse, where she focused on studying and listening to the LGBTQ+ community.

One of the audience members was an elder LGBTQ+ member, who shared with Aviles that she was unaware that these kinds of spaces existed. She told Aviles that she wished spaces like that had been around when she was younger.

"She had never been able to come out to anyone until her daughter was an adult and she could finally tell her," Aviles said.

The conversation stuck with her.

"I think, for me, that's the most meaningful. What are the conversations that are happening here? What are the conversations we can host here that are not happening anywhere else?" Aviles

Peoria home to lodge visiting actors

Corina Vanek
Arizona Republic
USA TODAY NETWORK

The dishes might not sing and dance, and hopefully there's no curse, but the cast members of "Disney's Beauty and the Beast" will be the first to be guests at the new home that Arizona Broadway Theatre bought to house touring actors and artists.

The nonprofit theater company bought and renovated a nine-bedroom home in Peoria to provide temporary housing for actors, directors and other professionals who stay in town for a couple of months while their show is playing. Each show brings about 16 to 18 actors from out of town, Kiel Klaphake, CEO of Arizona Broadway Theatre, said.

The theater has always provided housing for visiting actors and other professionals, Klaphake said, and had been renting apartments for use as temporary housing.

"When we started the theater here, almost 20 years ago, we knew we would have to bring in talent from all around the country, mostly from New York," he said. "We fly in artists; we had to rent the apartments and give them transportation."

Apartment rent was costing up to $10,000 per month, for apartments that weren't very close to the theater or walkable or bikeable to any necessities, Klaphake said. The theater is located near 75th Avenue and Bell Road, in an area with few apartment options and some of the highest rents in the city. The group had been renting apartments west of Loop 101, so visitors would need cars to go to the store or any nearby restaurants.

Actors generally stay with the theater for about two months at a time, which includes weeks of rehearsals and then the length of the show's run. The theater usually has about seven shows per year, and often has some overlap from when a show is ending and when new out-of-town actors arrive for their rehearsals to begin.

Klaphake said the theater had been exploring other housing options for more than eight years, but nothing panned out. He said he looked at real estate listings almost daily to see if something came on the market that would work, but when he first saw the house the theater would later buy, he had doubts.

The house was more beast than beauty.

The location and living space available were good, and it had a large pool and other amenities for visitors, but it needed a lot of renovation after being vacant for a while.

The group did extensive renovation on the home, including enclosing the carport, office and internal hallways to create additional bedrooms and bathrooms. Work crews added a new air conditioning system, remodeled the kitchen to include a commercial sink, two ovens, two industrial refrigerators, two microwaves, one freezer, new cabinets and a food-prep island, water filling station and industrial ice maker.

The house also has a detached casita on the property for additional living space.

With the cost of buying the house and the renovations, the theater expected to spend about $1 million on the house.

Even with the major expenses for buying the house, the theater was spending more than $100,000 per year on renting apartments, so Klaphake said the investment in the house will quickly pay off in savings over time.

The house is about three miles from the theater and is near a major intersection with easily accessible shopping, restaurants and services.

Having the house with included amenities can be another benefit the theater can offer when hiring actors from out of state, Klaphake said.

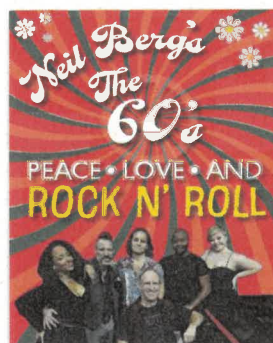

"We don't want people to have to worry about their housing; we want them to be able to focus all their effort on the creative side," he said.

The cast of "Disney's Beauty and the Beast" is the first group to stay in the new house for the show, which runs through Dec. 29. Klaphake said people have been "ear-to-ear grinning" about the new accommodations.

Arizona Broadway Theatre isn't the only theater company to recently invest in living space for visiting actors.

In 2023, Phoenix Theatre Company bought an apartment complex for visiting artists to live in and to rent out the additional space to raise money for the organization. The purchase was the group's second apartment complex; it had bought one in 2014, which had filled up with visiting artists and the theater's apprenticeship program.

Troubled senior living facility gets new owners

Lauren De Young and Stephanie Innes

Arizona Republic
USA TODAY NETWORK

A 94-bed assisted living facility in Peoria is under new ownership after previous owners from Texas-based Avanti Senior Living failed to correct a pattern of negligence that led to the loss of its license, state health officials said.

The facility, previously known as Avanti Senior Living at Peoria, is now provisionally licensed as Spring Gardens Peoria under the ownership of Mesa-based Avista Senior Living. Residents "have the ability to remain in their current living environment if they so choose," according to a news release from the Arizona Department of Health Services.

"The Department is appreciative of the efforts of staff and partners to solve the unfortunate situation with Avanti and will continue to work with Avista Senior Living as they assume daily operations and care," the release says.

State health officials shared a letter with Avanti Senior Living at Peoria residents and families indicating that leaders had misled residents and families about the situation.

"Recently, we were alerted that a senior living facility in Peoria, Avanti Senior Living, instructed residents to secure alternative living arrangements. The guidance did not provide an explicit timeline and misled residents about when the facility's license was revoked as well as the reason behind the revocation," the letter says.

"Despite having over a year to prepare residents for the possibility of the facility's closure, it appears Avanti denied the reality and severity of the situation and is attempting to pass this off as a mere paperwork error."

Avanti Senior Living and Avista Senior Living did not respond to requests for comment on Nov. 29. According to Avanti's website, it doesn't operate any other facilities in Arizona.

Its other six facilities are in Texas and Louisiana, and the company's website on Nov. 29 did not list Peoria as one of its locations. State records show Avanti Senior Living at Peoria was first licensed to operate in Arizona in 2020.

State health officials say they tried to negotiate with Avanti

When the health department considers revoking a facility's health care license, the Arizona administrative code says it needs to consider the direct risk to the life, health and safety of a patient (resident) based on repeated violations of statutes or rules, patterns of violations, types of violations, severity of violations and the number of violations.

Cuts

ally at stake for people's lives and their health care if they push through with the elimination of the ACA," Stanton said. "When the ACA was signed into law in 2010 as the people at this roundtable know, it was a game changer for American health care."

U.S. House Speaker Mike Johnson said in the fall that House Republicans would propose "massive reform" to the ACA if they ended up controlling both chambers in Congress and the presidency, Stanton noted. He also pointed out that the Republican Study Committee's fiscal year 2025 budget proposes to cut total federal Medicaid, Children's Health Insurance Program (KidsCare in Arizona) and Affordable Care Act marketplace subsidy spending.

Providers say expanded access to health care that happened with the Affordable Care Act, including Medicaid expansion, has made a huge improvement in the health of state residents, allowing more people to access preventive health care before their chronic conditions progress into more serious health problems.

Prior to Medicaid expansion, health outcomes at Valleywise Health, which is Maricopa County's public health system, "were some of the worst in the nation," White said Friday during the roundtable discussion.

"As we've seen our expansion in coverage, we've seen folks who are now able to access preventive health care. They are able to see us in our primary care clinics. They are able to see us in our specialty clinics and treat these conditions prior to them becoming a significant health problem leading to disability and an inability to work," White said.

"We've actually seen improvement in our emergency department. We're not seeing these chronic, severe presentations of relatively common illnesses come in at end stages. We're able to intervene earlier."

Dr. Nadeem Kazi, president of Arizona Medical Association and a practicing gastroenterologist in Casa Grande, noted that the ACA's full name is the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act. Without it, patient protection will be gone, he said, recalling a time before the ACA in Casa Grande, when its hospital emergency room was filled with uninsured patients.

"If we take the ACA away, it's going to be a disaster," Kazi said.

In an interview after the roundtable, Stanton said that educating the general public and elected officials about potential impacts of health care funding cuts will be critical, and it will also be important for Democrats to reaffirm their support for the ACA and Medicaid. With enough awareness, bipartisan support could preserve the ACA and Medicaid funding, he said, noting the late Arizona Republican U.S. Sen. John McCain's vote against repealing portions of the ACA in July 2017.

"It will be unacceptable to the American people, it will be unacceptable to the people of Arizona, if we eliminate the ACA," Stanton said. "We're going to need the Senator John McCains of 2025 and 2026 who are willing to buck the vast majority of their party that are proposing to significantly cut back support for the ACA."

The gamble behind Glendale's $15M VAI parking plan

Shawn Raymundo
Arizona Republic
USA TODAY NETWORK

A $15 million investment in a long-term plan to use the bottom floor of VAI Resort's incoming parking structure for mega events and attract development has befuddled some Glendale leaders, who believe the city is gambling with taxpayer money.

In a 5-2 vote on Dec. 10, the City Council approved the 25-year deal with VAI, which is developing the 4,000-space structure to support its $1 billion hotel and entertainment complex near State Farm Stadium.

Set to open next year, VAI would become the state's largest resort, expected to generate $32 million in new tax revenue for the city.

The accompanying parking garage will sit near the northwest corner of Montebello and 91st avenues, atop 8 acres of property that VAI purchased from the city this summer for $7.5 million.

The agreement carves out 800 spaces for the city to use when it hosts large-scale affairs like the Super Bowl or Taylor Swift-caliber mega-concerts.

It's a deal city management believes will have a positive economic impact on Glendale as the spaces will attract more development to the adjacent property in addition to supporting the Sports and Entertainment District.

Councilmembers Bart Turner and Lauren Tolmachoff, however, are not as convinced.

They argued that the city is spending money on parking spots it doesn't need and without a surefire way to generate revenue. It's also taking a risk by assuming the investment will eventually generate economic development.

"We're just leasing parking spaces we have no use for," Turner said. "And honestly, I think it is a way in which to move money out of the taxpayers' pockets and over into a private developer's pocket."

What did the city, VAI agree to?

Under the agreement, the city has the right to use the 800 covered parking spaces on the ground level of the structure, which is under construction and anticipated to be completed by September 2025.

Of those spots, 600 will be designated as "Full Access Spaces," meaning they're always available to the city. The remaining 200 spots, identified as "Flex Spaces," will only be available to the city between 6 a.m. and 6 p.m. daily.

In exchange, the city will pay VAI $14.88 million once the resort finishes building the garage.

That'll cover 25 years. The city can renew the agreement for two consecutive

Gina: Green-eyed kitten ready for forever home

Hi! My name is Gina. I am a 10-month-old kitten with short grey fur and light green eyes. I have been at 4 Paws for four months. I was found wandering alone in someone's yard, and they brought me in. I was extremely shy and scared at first, and am slowly coming out of my shell. I am still shy and need someone to have patience in letting me learn to trust them (remember, I was on my own). I am a sweetheart and love to have someone pet me slowly. I will lift my chin, and I will flop down and drool happily. I have a grumpy look on my face, but I am not grumpy! I need someone who is calm and will take the time to help me learn to play. Oh, let's talk about wet food and treats — yum — what a way to a kitten's heart. Come and visit me a few times to get to know me and let me know you. I

Police: Doorbell video ties teen to Laveen murder

Karen Bartunek

Arizona Republic

USA TODAY NETWORK

More details are now known about a teen who was arrested in December after a Laveen home invasion, thanks to court documents.

Michael Valles, 19, has been charged with first-degree murder in the shooting death of 28-year-old Carlos Pardo Espericueta.

Valles was one of four men alleged to have forced a homeowner into his house Dec. 16 while armed with at least two handguns, according to court records. During the armed home invasion, Espericueta, one of the four suspects, was shot in a scuffle and died about a week later in the hospital.

According to court documents, the homeowner claimed that after arriving home from work and parking his car in the driveway, the four men exited from a silver sedan and forced him into his house by pointing a gun to his back.

The homeowner's Ring camera footage missed a chunk of the incident after one of the men tampered with the camera. Footage resumed after Phoenix police arrived, court documents say.

Police found Espericueta shot in the chest and the leg next to the passenger side of the silver sedan, which was later identified as a Honda Accord.

Neither the homeowner nor anyone else inside the home was seriously injured, Phoenix police confirmed.

Investigators went to the home of the vehicle's owner to determine whether or not it had been stolen.

The owner of the vehicle and her daughter grew silent when asked by police about the vehicle, court documents say.

The newer model Honda Accord required a key fob to be present to start the vehicle, which the owner initially stated had two key fobs. The woman later stated that the car only had one key fob and that she had been the sole person in possession of it.

The woman's house had a Ring camera positioned toward the porch and driveway that would have potentially captured footage of a car theft, but when she was asked to provide the footage, the woman initially declined, saying that she was unable to locate her cellphone that would have the footage, according to court documents.

Police then obtained a warrant for the footage which showed a man who the vehicle owner identified as Valles, her daughter's boyfriend, leaving her house in the Honda Accord. A short time later, the same vehicle was then seen parked outside the location of the home invasion on footage from the homeowner's Ring camera.

Other evidence linking Valles to the crime included a cell phone purchased by his girlfriend's mother for him that was left in the vehicle, footage of Valles wearing the same clothing as the driver of the Honda Accord and footage of him returning home shortly after the home invasion, court documents say.

Officials declared Espericueta's death a homicide. The other two suspects have not yet been named.

Though it remains unclear whether Valles was the one who discharged the bullet that killed Espericueta, according to Arizona law, courts can still move forward with murder charges.

Cannon

to have time to load a weapon like that."

She believes the person manning the gun was either killed or fled, not stopping to grab a 40-pound cannon.

"Most of the people were killed and the few that survived ran for their lives with hardly any possessions," Seymour said. "I guess they had the clothes on their back, barely."

It was left discarded, and lay hidden for nearly 500 years.

A second cannon, but damaged

In 2024, Seymour found a second cannon at the same site. This one lay in an area that appears to have been where most of the fighting took place, with abundant projectiles and other artifacts.

This one was fired in the attack, Seymour said. The side of it had blown out, possibly due to faulty construction.

"What we're thinking is that they possibly did kind of a 'Hail Mary' type situation, overloaded it with powder and shot to try to keep from being overrun," she said.

Seymour said the cannons appear to have been forged in the same foundry in either Mexico or the Caribbean, due to their relatively poor quality and lack of maker's mark. If true, it would make the cannons the oldest surviving firearms manufactured in the Americas.

The evidence is strong, Seymour said, but analysis to confirm it would require cutting into the cannons.

"I really am opposed to damaging these specimens," she said.

Indigenous O'odham are

'central to the story'

When Seymour tells the story of the battle, she shares her view that the mutiny — the fatal weakening of San Gerónimo III — was a protest against Alcaraz's brutal approach to the O'odham.

It's important to highlight "voices of sanity in the midst of horrendous acts," she said. "Because if we remember that, then we might be more likely ourselves to stand up against injustice."

Her professional interest is in the period of first contact between Native Americans and Europeans, a topic she has studied for decades.

She continues to excavate sites in southeastern Arizona, hungry for more information about the Coronado Expedition and the Native Americans who encountered it.

It was previously thought the expedition had either bypassed the area or only traveled through rapidly, any trace of the Spanish explorers long erased. Seymour's finds in southern Arizona have upended her view of what happened.

"It turns out the O'odham are central to the story," she said. "And they were formidable opposition for the Spaniards."

The oldest gun found in the continental U.S. makes for a great headline, and Seymour has been besieged by media since the paper was published.

The superlative attached to the cannon is of course important. But so is the tangible link it offers to the past.

To Seymour, it gives us a glimpse into the Europeans who wielded it, the Native Americans who faced it. To the ways in which these groups interacted five centuries ago.

"When I show people this cannon," she said, "they feel like they're connecting to history."

Poppy Rose: Ribbons and wet food for the win

Hello! My name is Poppy Rose and I am kind of new at 4 Paws. My owner had to go away and so her family brought me here as they couldn't care for me. I am a female short-haired tabby with greenish eyes. I am 2 years and 4 months old and a little shy, but I welcome petting anytime! I warm up quickly and have a soft purr to express my love. If you look at me, I have a loving face and am quite gentle. I would be great for a calmer home. I love treats and wet food and would like to play ribbon with someone again! I have adapted well here and am sure I would do the same in a home filled with love. Why don't you come and visit me (and while you are at it, meet some of my new roommates.)

How to adopt: I am at the Peoria location, 10807 N. 96th Ave, Tuesday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., or you can call 623-773-2246 during those hours. We also have more adoptable cats at our Youngtown Adoption Center, 11129 W. Michigan Ave., Suite 1, on the same days and hours. You can contact them at 623-876-8778 during those hours. Lastly, you can visit Surprise Pet-Smart, located at 13764 W. Bell Road. I hope to see you.

ielle Airey on Jan. 30 said the district had communicated "the legal risk that may be incurred, as provided by the board's legal counsel, with the entire Governing Board, as it does whenever there is a matter that questions law, policy or practice."

Rooks is represented in the lawsuit by First Liberty Institute, a conservative Texas-based legal organization.

"Heather plans to resume saying the Bible verses at the next board meeting, and appeal the district court's ruling to ensure her speech remains protected," said Erin Smith, associate counsel for First Liberty Institute, in a statement on Jan. 29.

After First Liberty Institute announced it would appeal Liburdi's ruling, the Freedom from Religion Foundation, which had warned Peoria Unified of legal and financial risk if board members continued to quote from the Bible, reiterated its position.

"We respect every individual's right to religious freedom, including Ms. Rooks' right to practice her faith separately from her government position," the foundation's co-president Dan Barker said in the statement. "However, when acting as a public official, personal religious expression cannot override the constitutional duty to remain neutral on religion."

Rooks was elected Peoria Unified's Governing Board president in January 2025. Peoria Unified has so far spent $216,000 in legal fees related to Rooks' lawsuit, but the final dollar amount will be higher as the district is awaiting its last bill.

The thrill of off-roading builds camaraderie

Veterans' Voice

Paula Pedene
Guest columnist

Veterans tend to be adventurous and are often drawn to activities that challenge them and build connections with others. Military recruiting slogans like "Join the Navy, See the World" played into that spirit of adventure. I remember considering my enlistment and being enticed by the promise of beaches, foreign travel, and the opportunity to serve my country in a meaningful way.

That same sense of adventure inspired a group of off-road enthusiasts to create Arizona SXS Adrenaline Therapy, a nonprofit dedicated to supporting veterans, military personnel, and first responders through outdoor recreation.

"We understand that veterans, military personnel, and first responders face different stressors, triggers, and challenges daily. That's why we strive to help them relax and care for their mental health through outdoor fun. Our nonprofit was born out of a shared love for Arizona's beauty and a passion for trail riding. We are a diverse group of civilians and veterans from all corners of the state, brought together by the thrill of off-roading and the camaraderie it fosters," says Jeffery D. Kelley, CEO and Founder.

fers veterans, first responders, and active military personnel the chance to experience the excitement of trail riding while immersing themselves in Arizona's stunning landscapes and forming lasting friendships.

Founded in 2022, the organization hosts various events, including trail rides, parades, fundraisers, exhibits, and collaborations with veteran-support organizations. Their next event, a 60-mile round-trip side-by-side ride to Vulture Mine Ghost Town, is scheduled for Saturday, February 22, 2025. Participants will explore the historic ghost town for an hour before returning to Dillon's for dinner. # HelloFresh has no plans to close facility in Goodyear

Russ Wiles

Arizona Republic
USA TODAY NETWORK

HelloFresh, the world's largest provider of ready-made meal kits, has no plans to lay off staff at its industrial kitchen in Goodyear, despite an earlier report indicating 564 workers would be let go.

Manpower Inc., one of the staffing agencies that had been working with HelloFresh, issued the erroneous WARN, or Worker Adjustment and Retraining Notification, alert on Jan. 27, affecting staff at HelloFresh's 300,000-square-foot facility at 14170 W. Yuma Road in Goodyear. HelloFresh obtained the facility through its 2020 acquisition of another meal company, Factor.

All the affected workers at the plant, who had been employed through Manpower, will have the opportunity to remain on assignment at the facility and transition their employment through another staffing partner, a HelloFresh spokesperson said.

"We have no plans to close our Arizona facility and are proud to be a part of the Goodyear community," said Abby Dreher, the HelloFresh spokesperson, in a reply to The Arizona Republic.

The company's Arizona workforce has been growing. HelloFresh last year said it employed around 3,000 Arizona workers, according to a special Arizona Republic report in September. HelloFresh's U.S. CEO, Uwe Voss, attended a 2023 ribbon-cutting ceremony at the facility, which has employed cooks, other food preparers, order-fulfillment staff and additional employees.

HelloFresh calls itself the world's largest supplier of ready-made meals, delivering 231 meals worldwide during its third quarter ending Oct. 29, 2024, including 124 million in the U.S. and features a rotating selection of breakfast, lunch, and dinner items.

The company, headquartered in Berlin and founded in 2011, reported revenue of 1.83 billion euros, roughly $2 billion, during the quarter.

Manpower didn't immediately respond to a request for comment.

Five things to know when your child with disabilities turns 18

Social Security
Jack Burns
Guest columnist

When your child turns 18 years old, they legally become an adult. This is an important time to consider their financial future – especially if they need additional care into adulthood. Here are 5 things that may help you prepare for this milestone:

1. Health and Welfare Decision-making

When your child legally becomes an adult, you can no longer make certain decisions for them about their health and welfare. However, you can stay involved through our Representative Payee program. Social Security will determine who best serves as a representative payee for your child's benefits. To learn more about the Representative Payee program, read our webpage at www.ssa.gov/payee/index.htm. Please note Social Security does not recognize power of attorney.

2. Changes in Supplemental Security Income (SSI) Eligibility

SSI provides monthly payments to adults and children with disabilities, as well as people 65 and older who have little or no income and resources.

If your child receives SSI, when they turn 18, we will review their eligibility for continued SSI payments based on the disability rules for adults. For more information, please review the publication What You Need To Know About Your Supplemental Security Income (SSI) When You Turn 18 at www.ssa.gov/pubs/EN-05-11005.pdf. Please be sure to review this with your child. We also encourage you to check out Social Security's Youth Toolkit webpage at www.ssa.gov/youth.

3. Education Transitions

If your child attends school, they have a few options to continue their education, such as pursuing:

- A diploma: They may pursue further education in college or trade programs with an Individualized Education Program (IEP). More information on the IEP is available at www.ssa.gov/pubs/EN-64-118.pdf.

- A certificate: They may have the opportunity to continue in a transitional program in their high school even after they complete their senior year. Most are permitted to remain until they turn 22.

- Employment: Local Vocational Rehabilitation Services can assist with employment options during pre-graduation IEP meetings.

4. Support for Living Arrangements

Once your child turns 18, they may choose or qualify for different living arrangements depending on the services they already receive. If your child receives therapy services at school, how will they receive them once they leave? They could receive them through a Medicaid waiver or private insurance.

Qualification for respite services may also look different. Respite services allow family caregivers time to step away from their duties. It is essential you understand all the benefits and options available to your child after they complete high school and before deciding on living arrangements and services.

5. Financial Protections

- Special Needs Trust: Update estate planning documents before your child turns 18. Otherwise, inheritance may terminate your child's governmental benefits.

- ABLE Account: You can deposit funds into this account up to a certain limit each year. However, there are limits on what its funding covers. More information on ABLE accounts is available at www.ssa.gov/payee/able\_accounts.htm.

Hahns and more pets up for adoption in Phoenix-area shelters

Arizona Republic

Every year, approximately 6.5 million companion animals enter shelters nationwide, according to the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Of those, about 3.3 million are dogs and 3.2 million are cats.

Each week, The Arizona Republic highlights a handful of the many pets up for adoption at Valley shelters. To check the status of a specific animal, please contact the shelter directly.

Hahns: 'Distinguished gentleman' needs a loving home

Do you want to know about me? OK, my name is Hahns. I am a very distinguished 16½-year-old mellow gentleman. My family moved and couldn't take

I am on a special diet more for prevention — you know how old age gets to us. I would love to have a loving home for my golden years. I would be a great companion for that special person. Come and meet me (and my friends).

How to adopt: I am at the Peoria location at 10807 N. 96th Ave in Peoria Tuesday - Saturday, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., or call at 623-773-2246. We also have more adoptable cats at our Youngtown Adoption Center at 11129 W. # Updated complaint filed in Surprise civil case

Shawn Raymundo
Arizona Republic
USA TODAY NETWORK

Rebekah Massie, a community activist suing the city of Surprise over alleged civil rights violations, is standing by her accusations against the officer who arrested her at a City Council meeting last summer.

In an updated civil complaint her attorneys filed in federal court this month, Massie accused Officer Steven Shernicoff of assault, battery and intentional or reckless infliction of emotional distress.

She's relying on recently released body-cam footage to bolster her earlier claims that Shernicoff shoved her against a wall and threw her to the floor while detaining her at then-Mayor Skip Hall's behest during the Aug. 20 council meeting.

Surprise police have disputed that narrative and said Massie was resisting arrest as Shernicoff removed her from the council chambers following an argument between Massie and Hall.

The roughly hour-long recording obtained by The Arizona Republic shows that while Massie did end up on the floor, it's unclear whether she was pushed or fell. It reveals that she sometimes refused to comply with Shernicoff's orders and continued arguing with the officer.

But in another section of the video, Shernicoff doesn't deny Massie's claim that he pushed her.

Massie was cited for criminal trespass and released that night.

A justice court in Surprise recently dismissed that charge after finding it "objectively outrageous" for the city to invoke a now-rescinded public speaking policy that led to her arrest.

The incident sparked national media attention and placed the city in hot water over the rule Hall used to prevent Massie from openly criticizing a city employee at the public meeting.

It also prompted Massie and her legal team, the free speech advocacy group Foundation for Individual Rights and Expression, or FIRE, to file the federal case, alleging, among other things, that Hall used the police to retaliate against her.

"Nearly 150 days ago, I was silenced by Mayor Hall and then assaulted by Officer Shernicoff — both must be held accountable for their actions," Massie claimed in an emailed statement. "My hope is that a victory in court will teach the city an important lesson — you cannot attack your constituents for speaking their minds."

A city spokesperson and Surprise Police Chief Benny Piña did not respond to an emailed request seeking comment.

The city has until late next week to submit its legal response to the court.

Massie alleges First Amendment violations

Massie's lawsuit lays out a rash of allegations against the city, Hall and Shernicoff. Chief among them: the claim that they violated her constitutional right to free speech.

The legal complaint argued that Hall censored Massie's remarks by blocking her from complaining about the city's attorney and accused the former mayor of retaliation for making such comments about his "allies."

The suit goes on to allege that Massie was arrested "against her will and without probable cause," a violation of the Fourth Amendment, which protects citizens from unreasonable searches and seizures by the government.

At its heart, the lawsuit also called on the court to compel the city to remove the council policy that barred people from criticizing city employees at council meetings.

City leaders voted in September to withdraw the rule.

With the Surprise Police Department releasing footage of the arrest captured by Shernicoff's body-worn camera, Massie aimed additional accusations against the officer, alleging that he "forced" her to the wall and then the floor before placing her in handcuffs.

"In the process of detaining, arresting, and removing Massie, Shernicoff bruised and injured Massie's wrists, arms, legs, back, and neck, causing her severe physical and emotional pain and

Are you age 70 or older and not yet receiving benefits?

Social Security

Jack Burns
Guest columnist

Retirement is not one-size-fits-all. It can mean different things to different people. Perhaps you have not applied for Social Security retirement benefits because you're still working or are delaying applying so you can get a higher benefit. If you're age 70 or older, you should apply now for the benefits you're owed. Your benefits will not increase if you continue to delay applying for them because you are 70 or older.

Did you know that you can receive benefits even if you still work? Your earnings can increase your monthly benefit amount – even after you start receiving benefits. Each year that you work, we check your earnings record. It's possible your latest year of earnings is one of your highest 35 years. If so, we will automatically recalculate your benefit amount and pay you any increase due.

The best and easiest way to apply for your benefits is with a personal my Social Security account. You can create your free account at www.ssa.gov/myaccount. Once you create your account, you can get an estimate of how much you might receive each month based on when you want to start receiving benefits and then apply.

In your account, you can also:

- Access publications – like our fact sheet for workers ages 70 and up at www.ssa.gov/myaccount/assets/materials/workers-70andup.pdf.

- Learn about benefits for your spouse and family members.

- Manage your benefits once you start receiving them.

We're here to help you secure today and tomorrow, and we invite you to learn more about applying for retirement benefits at www.ssa.gov/apply. Please share this information with those who need it.

Glendale, nonprofit to break ground on homes for vets

Shawn Raymundo
Arizona Republic
USA TODAY NETWORK

A groundbreaking ceremony in Glendale on Feb. 2 celebrated the next phase of a much-anticipated housing project to support homeless veterans.

The city's nonprofit partner, Veterans Community Project, hosted the event, gathering high-ranking dignitaries and elected officials at the site of the development off of Grand and 63rd avenues.

It's there that the organization is leading the effort to create a community, or "village," of 50 tiny homes that will serve as transitional units for service members experiencing homelessness.

"It's a really significant milestone in the process," Veterans Community Project co-founder and CEO Bryan Meyer told The Arizona Republic.

The nonprofit has spent about two years working with the city to secure the land and raise the initial funds to jumpstart the $14 million project.

State and county investments have contributed about $6 million so far. In December, Glendale leaders unanimously voted to sell the roughly 8 acres of city-owned land to the nonprofit for $10.

"Even getting to this point has taken quite a while, and then from the time of groundbreaking to full completion, it could be another full two years," Meyer explained. "But it is a very significant milestone for us."

Based out of Missouri, Veterans Community Project has delivered similar projects to other cities in the U.S. It has created villages and continues to offer on-site supportive services in Kansas City, Missouri; Sioux Falls, South Dakota; and Milwaukee, Wisconsin, to name a few.

Those living in the villages are assigned case managers tasked with helping the veteran find stable, long-term housing. Getting the veteran ready to be self-sufficient and transition out of the village has, on average, taken about 15 to claims have "impeded the development" of energy and natural resources.

One order, titled "Unleashing American Energy," is meant to "restore American prosperity — including for those men and women who have been forgotten by our economy in recent years. It will also rebuild our nation's economic and military security, which will deliver peace through strength."

KORE's battery plant was positioned to be the first of its kind in the country owned by an American company. It would have also brought about 3,000 jobs to the southwest Valley, garnering praise from state and local officials.

That, of course, was all under the Biden administration, when the federal government supported efforts to expand green energy solutions and technologies to combat climate change.

Arizona Sen. Mark Kelly was among those officials who lauded KORE's project. He believes reducing the nation's dependence on foreign energy products further protects national security.

In a prepared statement on Feb. 3, Kelly called KORE's exit from Buckeye "disappointing news for Arizona's clean energy economy," and raised fears over the Trump administration's actions and the message they might send to businesses.

"I'm concerned that President Trump's plans to target clean energy manufacturing could create too much uncertainty for companies looking to make long-term commitments to invest and grow in the United States," Kelly stated.

"That being said," he added, "Arizona continues to be well-positioned to lead in batteries, and I'll keep working to make sure companies know that they'll have the support and workforce they need in our state."

KORE echoed the sentiment.

Responding to whether the change in presidential administrations has prompted apprehensions within the company, KORE said demand within the energy market and for KORE's products remains strong.

"We're very confident about the market going forward," the company said.

Joseph "Sentro" Perez's mural at Esperanza Elementary on Jan. 31.
DAVID ULLOA JR./ THE REPUBLIC

Perez

scrapbook with a Polaroid of the Esperanza Elementary mural.

Perez thanked Moreno for inspiring his path and let him know about his plans to move to Chicago to continue his artistic growth.

"I said, 'Joseph, you thanked me like 15, 16 years ago.' He didn't know that I had always used that story. Wherever I went, I used that story because it was so impactful to me," Moreno said.

After making a name for himself in Chicago, Perez returned to Phoenix where he hosted a joint showcase with Moreno and another artist.

Championing westside artists

As Perez follows in Moreno's footsteps in giving back to the community,

Perez said he hopes that the next generation will also give back to others.

When he was growing up, he said it was rare for him to see big-name artists come out of Phoenix, let alone west Phoenix.

"We got a lot to say and sometimes our voices get overlooked or we just don't feel empowered by ourselves," he said.

Perez and Vincent Huizar, an organizer for the event, podcaster and personal friend of Perez, said they hope that the students who work with Perez are inspired in the same way Perez was inspired.

"Hopefully it'll also inspire younger creatives to see somebody from their area, somebody recognizable that looks like them, you know, inspires them to continue their creativity and artwork and see that it's possible to do that and be successful," Huizar said.

Thalia and more pets up for adoption in Phoenix-area shelters

Arizona Republic

Every year, approximately 6.5 million companion animals enter shelters nationwide, according to the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Of those, about 3.3 million are dogs and 3.2 million are cats.

Each week, The Arizona Republic highlights a handful of the many pets up for adoption at Valley shelters. To check the status of a specific animal, please contact the shelter directly.

Thalia: Needs experienced cat parent

Well, it is about time! My name is Thalia, and I am a female who is almost 4 years old (my birthday is this month). My name means 'to blossom' and I am quite the looker! I think they call me a 'dilute tortie' and yes, I have an attitude at times! I am very playful and curious. I love boxes and will chew and crawl and hide in them. I also like wand toys, well, I just like toys! I also like bags and purses, so you might see me peeping out of those if you have them out for me! I also love looking out the windows and being in a cat tree. I need that special human. A person who is experienced with cats (but I need to be the only one), as I like to be pet, but if it is too much (I think it is called 'overstimulated'), I may scratch or bite. But the more I know you, the less it happens. I probably would not be a good fit for children. I would do best with an experienced cat person and I would love to have the run of a home.

How to adopt: Come see me and my friends at Youngtown Adoption Center at 11129 W. Michigan Ave., Suite 1, in Youngtown. Our number is 623-876-8778. We are open Tuesday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. More cats and kittens are also here waiting for homes, and at our Peoria location at 10807 N. 96th Ave. in Peoria, Tuesday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., or call 623-773-2246 during those hours, and lastly, at Surprise PetSmart located at 13764 W. Bell Road. See you soon!

The true story behind this Valley city's unique name

Shawn Raymundo
Arizona Republic
USA TODAY NETWORK

Call it a cliché, but Surprise's rapid growth in recent years has been a bit of a surprise when considering its humble startup from a single acre of farmland almost a century ago.

The sprawling community is the eighth largest city in metro Phoenix, with a population of over 160,000, and has been among the fastest-growing cities in the nation.

U-Haul announced earlier this year that both Surprise and the east Valley community of Queen Creek were in the moving truck company's top 25 growing cities in the U.S. for 2023. Surprise was listed at 18 on the U-Haul Growth Index, a 10-spot drop from its previous placement the year prior.

Surprise's current population marked a 12% growth since the 2020 census. The Maricopa Association of Governments projects the population to reach 234,579 by 2030.

With that growth has come economic development and an emphasis on city management and leaders to provide recreational activities. Most notably, the city has its Cactus League

Spring Training facility, where the Kansas City Royals and Texas Rangers call home before the MLB season.

However, Surprise's explosive expansion hasn't come without any growing pains. Motorists over the years have dealt with traffic woes, namely at the notorious bottleneck where the stretch of U.S. 60 intersects Loop 303.

The issue has even thwarted one developer's plans to bring much-needed housing to the city.

It's an ongoing concern that city leaders, along with county and state officials, are addressing with short- and long-term projects — endeavors funded by a voter-approved bond measure and the countywide half-cent sales tax for transportation improvements.

With all this growth, let's see how it all began by looking back at the city's roots and early days.

When was Surprise founded?

Flora Mae Statler founded Surprise in 1938.

Not long after, in 1960, the town became an officially incorporated city of Arizona.

Jan's buttermilk spice cake

Rescued Recipes

Jan D'Atri
Guest columnist

Of all of my thousands of Rescued Recipes, this one has an extra-special place in my heart.

I've been making this Buttermilk Spice Cake since college. Back then, my sweet next door neighbor, Charlie, was about 85 years old, and took it upon himself to be my guardian angel. I lived alone, and when I was sick, he would bring me chicken soup and juice. What a sweetheart. One day, he brought me this spice cake, and I was never the same again. What a delicious, moist, spice-filled treat!

If you ever want to keep your cake layers moist, instead of simple syrup which many bakers brush on cake layers, try this buttermilk glaze. The important word of caution with this glaze is, use a much larger pot than the amount of ingredients. Why? Because something crazy happens when you bring sugar, butter, buttermilk and baking soda to a boil. It foams up by about three times, so if you have a small pot, you're in trouble! Another tip is to poke holes in the cake with a skewer the minute it comes out of the oven, and then when you pour the glaze over the top, it seeps down into the entire cake.

Through the years, I've added a secret of my own to this cake. The original name was Prune Cake.

Knowing people would judge this cake by its name, I secretly changed it to Buttermilk Spice Cake, because the flavor of the stewed prunes is virtually undetectable, but boy, do they give this cake a super-moist texture and incredible flavor! Instead, the combination of spices really comes through, and with a dollop of whipped cream, it's unbeatable at room temperature or right out of the refrigerator.

Buttermilk Spice Cake

Cake

- 2 cups flour
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1 teaspoon allspice
- 2 cups sugar
- 1 cup vegetable oil
- 1 cup buttermilk
- 2 eggs
- 1 jar stewed prunes, pitted (look for the glass jar in the canned fruit aisle)
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Glaze topping

- 1 cup sugar
- 1 cup buttermilk

1 cup butter

1 teaspoon baking soda

Directions:

Sift together dry ingredients (flour and spices). Add remaining ingredients, including pitted prunes, chopped fine and mix thoroughly to combine (Make sure you check for prune pits!)

Bake in a floured 9 x 12 inch baking pan at 350 for about 30 minutes or until toothpick comes out clean. While cake is baking, make the glaze.

In a medium-sized pot, (this is important. Do not use a small pan because ingredients triple in size while cooking.) Melt butter and add sugar, buttermilk and baking soda. Bring to a boil until it becomes a white frothy foam. Poke holes in cake and immediately pour over the cake while still foamy.

Serve with whipped cream.

Scorpions are a prevalent part of the Arizona landscape. DIANA PAYAN/THE REPUBLIC where it's warmer. However, if winter temperatures are mild — especially in cities like Phoenix and Tucson — scorpions may emerge on warmer nights to hunt for food.

Sealing cracks and eliminating food sources such as insects can deter scorpions from seeking shelter indoors.

What time are scorpions most active?

Scorpions are nocturnal, meaning they are most active at night. They typically emerge after sunset to hunt for prey, such as crickets, roaches and other small insects. Their peak activity usually occurs between 9 p.m. and 3 a.m., especially on warm nights.

During the day, scorpions seek shelter in cool, dark places like under rocks, logs or inside homes.

What month are scorpions most active?

Scorpions in Arizona are most active from April through October, with peak activity in June, July, and August. As temperatures rise, scorpions become more active at night, hunting for food and searching for water.

What type of oil should I choose for my vehicle?

Car Care

Glen Hayward
Special to The Republic

As a responsible car owner, you probably know the importance of changing your oil every 5,000 miles. But do you know what kind of oil is best for your car? And how important is picking the right kind of oil?

Synthetic, synthetic blend, conventional, high mileage – the number of oil options nowadays can be overwhelming. To choose the right oil for your vehicle's engine, your first source of information should be your owner's manual.

Your owner's manual will tell you which type of oil and viscosity grade is best. Viscosity, meaning how thick or thin the oil is, ranges from 0W12 to 20W50. Most people will lean towards multi-grade oils because they hold their viscosity in extreme conditions, yet allow for good, quick lubrication of essential engine parts at lower ambient temperatures. About 95% of oils used in vehicles today, including hybrids and anything with a gas or diesel engine, use these multi-grade oils.

When you get your oil changed at a reputable repair shop, you will likely be asked if you are interested in synthetic oil versus conventional engine oil. In most cases, synthetic oils are ideal for today's vehicles. Synthetic oils have been engineered by splitting the oil molecules; therefore, they provide superior lubrication during cold start-ups. They also retain their viscosity at elevated temperatures, which is ideal for Arizona summers.

Synthetic oils protect engines better from build-up, commonly known as "sludge," in the engine. There are sophisticated components in your engine, including camshaft phasers and timing tracing tensioners, which depend on certain properties performed by your oil, so it is crucial to make the most educated decision for this important lubricant.

Overall, synthetic oils allow the lubrication system inside the engine to perform better than conventional (or non-synthetic) oils. When wrong viscosities are used, your car's engine may not perform to maximum capacity. This could cause the "check engine" light to turn on, even if the car seems to be running okay.

Lastly, synthetic blends and fully synthetic oils don't break down as quickly as conventional oil. Therefore, you can often drive up to 7,500 miles between oil changes. Though, I do not recommend this plan. Many vehicles consume oil right out of the factory, which can lead to low oil levels and inevitable engine failure.

It's also worth noting that the brand of oil you use is not important. There are plenty of different companies that manufacture oil and for the most part they are interchangeable. Your mechanic may have a personal preference or recommendation, but you can choose whichever brand you want, as long as the oil meets your vehicle manufacturer's specifications.

At the end of the day, most people don't change their own oil anymore. Instead, they take their car somewhere to be done. Dealing with oil and filter disposal can be a real hassle, and dumping it in the trash is not only illegal but also has environmental repercussions.

The next time you need an oil change, make sure you choose a reputable and responsible auto repair shop. Doing so will ensure you are able to rest easy and feel confident that your engine is protected and your ride is smooth and safe. These pros can and should let you know if your oil level was low upon arrival and make recommendations about checking your oil more frequently to avoid damage to your engine in the future.

Glendale police officer dies in motorcycle accident

Julie Mendes
Arizona Republic
USA TODAY NETWORK

The Glendale Police Department announced one of their "brothers in blue" died in a motorcycle accident along the Loop 303.

Jose Santiago with the department said it happened Feb. 27 while the officer was off-duty and confirmed he was not on his way to work.

"The family is asking for privacy at this time and that we withhold his name while they notify next of kin," Santiago said.

Santiago said once the officer's family is notified, the department will release the officer's name and photo along with any other pertinent details.

The family did permit Glendale police to release a limited statement.

"As you can imagine, we are grieving the loss of one of our own," Santiago said. "Please grant us patience through this process."

Peoria man found days after most search efforts ended

Wren Smetana
Arizona Republic
USA TODAY NETWORK

The Peoria Police Department announced that 20-year-old Luke Wuennenberg had been found after being missing for nearly a week.

Wuennenberg was located March 13 after knocking on a door in the Vistancia area, near his neighborhood, and telling a resident he was cold and tired.

Peoria police Sgt. Araceli "Shelly" Montes confirmed that Wuennenberg is safe and in good condition.

Wuennenberg was last seen the afternoon of March 8 at about 2:45 p.m. when he left his home for a hike. His vehicle was later discovered a few miles west of his home, near a desert area.

Over several days, the Peoria Police Department utilized community resources, including the Phoenix Firebird for aerial searches, the Maricopa County Sheriff's Office search and rescue unit, and Arizona Department of Corrections bloodhounds. Extensive ground searches were also conducted in efforts to locate him.

Montes confirmed that March 10 marked the final day of large-scale searches after all reasonable efforts had been exhausted.

Community members played an active role in the search, continuing to conduct ground searches around the area where Wuennenberg's car was found.

Peoria authorities and the community are grateful for Wuennenberg's safe return.

Local authors gather to host event

Free event for residents

By Jennifer Jimenez
INDEPENDENT NEWSMEDIA

A free event featuring several local authors is coming soon to Sun City West.

The Local Authors Book Fest is 10 a.m.-2 p.m. Monday, Oct. 28, at the Sun City West Foundation, 14465 R.H. Johnson Blvd.

As of Oct. 7, 16 authors and three vendors are registered to attend. Residents can meet the local authors and will receive a raffle ticket with every purchase of a signed book.

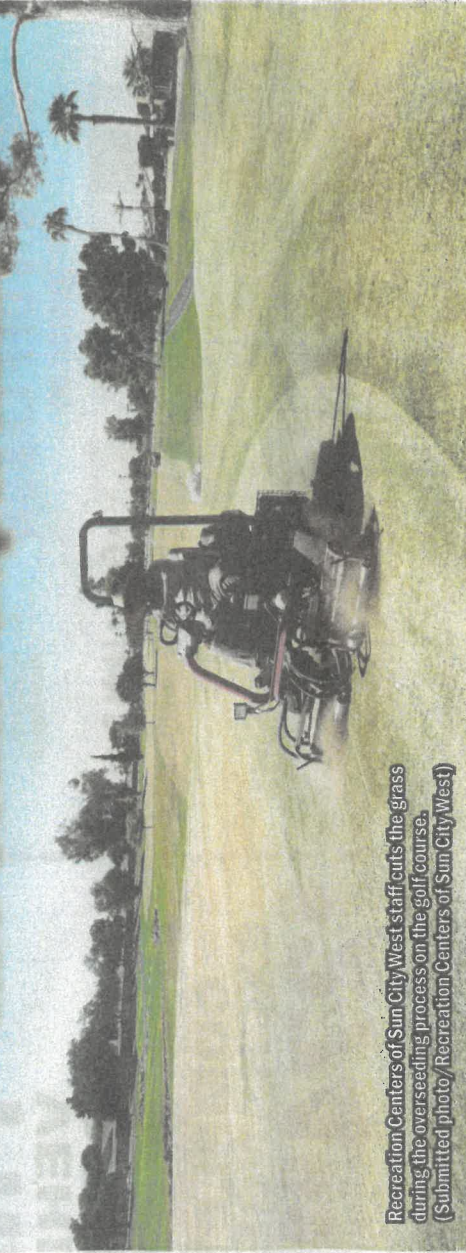

This event developed organically, starting with an idea of a front-yard table sale at Sun City West resident Nancy Kasten's house as a potential way to market these author's books.

"We started looking for another option to get more people involved and the Sun City West Foundation was suggested as place to rent a room," stated Barbara Renner, Sun City West author.

Operations meeting updates various Rec Center departments

Golf staff continues with plans despite weather

By Jennifer Jimenez
INDEPENDENT NEWSMEDIA

Recreation Centers of Sun City West hosts a general manager operations meeting the first Monday of the month, and during the October meeting, all departments shared community updates including the latest on the golf course overseeding process and staffing.

Environmental Services Manager

Todd Patty said he has been questioned on whether the temperatures are too high to have a successful overseeding season.

"We did hold back as long as we could. You can put seed down and prep and it does not matter the temperature. Once you turn the water on it is critical because the bermuda grass will out compete the rye," stated Patty.

A growth regulator was also used and can still be used if the bermuda pops back up, as it is designed, Patty stated.

The four courses will reopen Tuesday, Oct. 22, and hopefully it is going to cool off below 100 degrees when we open up and will not know until the final week about whether it will be cart path only," stated Patty.

Rhythm Ramblers return to Sundial Auditorium with salute to veterans

The Rhythm Ramblers, Sun City's original big band, will celebrate America's veterans Nov. 5 with a concert and dance in the auditorium at Sundial Recreation Center, 14801 N. 103rd Ave. Doors open at 2:15 p.m. and music is from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. Drinks and snacks may be brought in; cups and ice will be provided.

"The band will be decked out in formal attire to play a montage of Armed Services theme songs," said Music Director Bryan Altherr. Numerous hits from Glenn Miller, including "In the Mood," will also be on the playlist. Guitarist Lynn Altherr and trombonist Jim Lee will share vocal duties with lead singer Jane Higgs.

Members of the Rhythm Ramblers Club get in free. Recreation Centers of Sun City cardholders may join the club for the remainder of 2024 for $10 or pay a single-dance admission of $5.

Escorted guests pay $7. Reservations are recommended for parties of four or more. Call Lynn Altherr at 602-909-7586 to reserve a table.

The Rhythm Ramblers' next concert and dance will be Dec. 3 at Sundial. Call Rick Lamb at 602-677-8841 for more information about club membership and activities.

Estrella Daughters deliver to Sun City West Posse

Members of the Estrella Chapter, National Society Daughters of the American Revolution, delivered donuts and other breakfast pastries to Sun City West Posse in observance of National DAR Day of Service Oct. 10.

Regent Laura Linton and members presented the donuts and pastries to Posse members present at the headquarters. The Posse staff who were on duty and not out patrolling expressed their appreciation. The Sun City West Posse patrol to keep the residents safe and respond to emergencies, regardless of the time of day or if donuts and coffee are waiting back at the office.

Meaningful community service has played a central role in DAR's mission since the Society's founding in 1890. DAR Founder Eugenia Washington said, "We want a society founded on service."

To honor the anniversary of DAR's founding, chapters and members are encouraged to engage in meaningful service projects in their communities each year on or about Oct. 11. Projects may range from sending cards of encouragement to active duty military, collecting books for school children, cleaning a cemetery and more.

Daughters of the American Revolution Society was founded in 1890 with the simple mission of promoting historic preservation, education and patriotism. Women descendants of persons who served or aided the cause of the Revolution are eligible to join.

The Estrella Chapter meets monthly on the second Thursday of each month, October through May, at the Sun City West Foundation, 14465 W. R.H. Johnson Blvd.

Fixes

• From page 18

The mostly unpaved area is prone to flooding, causing an emergency problem.

In August, crews completed the 176th Drive emergency access road and improvements are coming to 171st Drive to give motorists another way out of the area.

Projects still under design include the Happy Valley Road widening project, which is still a couple of years away from construction.

What do you think?

That includes the widening of the road from 163rd to the city limits. The road will also be getting sidewalks, curbs and gutters and streetlights. Design is 60% completed and its expected to be two years away from construction.

The Maricopa Association of Governments has been coordinating a Grand Avenue Corridor Study, which is projecting traffic needs through 2050 for the stretch from Loop 303 to State Route 74.

ADOT, MCDOT, the city of Peoria and the BNSF Railway have teamed up with MAG and Surprise on the study.

"You guys are growing so fast that we are kind of chasing our tail a little bit when it comes to improvements," Strow told the Council.

Strow said the short-term improvements MAG and the city have made so far won't hold for long as growth continues in the area.

Nearly 200 people attended a public meeting MAG held in August, where it took suggestions from residents about the 303 and Grand interchanges.

The MAG Regional Council recently approved a request to program

$4.2 million in funding for fiscal year 2025 for next phase interim improvements

Those include adding a second right turn lane off Grand onto southbound 303 and giving it a longer up-ramp by about 200 to 300 feet.

On the other side, officials want to add a third left turn lane onto Grand for those exiting on the 303 northbound offramp.

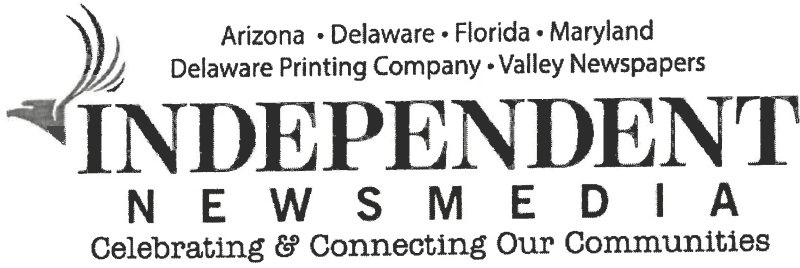

Strow said final design on those projects are at 60% and construction should be started sometime next year.

The city will also benefit from seven projects that will be funded through Proposition 479, which voters passed in November.

"This is exciting news and I think this is a real win for the region and the city of Surprise," Strow said.

Civility Checklist

How to engage in respectful, honest & civil dialogue about public issues.

□ Take the high road. Respond to the topic — not the person. Refrain from demonizing others for their opinions. Assume those you disagree with are, like you, genuinely interested in improving the community.

□ Be respectful. Bullying, public humiliation, insults, name-calling, harassment and threats directed at another person — or that person's race, gender, religion, ethnicity, etc. — have no place in civil discussions. Find ways to respectfully disagree without questioning someone's character or motives.

□ Be truthful. Base your opinions/arguments on facts. Value honesty. Make only accurate statements when making your point and avoid exaggeration and stereotypes.

When appropriate, cite your sources of information that others may question.

□ Don't misrepresent. Always identify your opinions as opinions (not stating opinions as facts). Never misrepresent the views of others or falsely claim your opinions represent someone else. If quoting the words of others, identify and credit the source.

□ Listen and learn. It's both polite and respectful to listen to those we disagree with (as well as those we support) and be genuine in our attempts to understand their point of view. Expand your mind by thoughtfully seeking out views that don't agree with your own.

□ Look for common ground. When disagreeing with others, look for even small areas of agreement — which can be the gateway to working together for the greater good.

□ Respect privacy. Keep private things private — whether it involves your own information or those with whom you disagree. Revealing private information about someone else is rude, unethical, potentially harmful and, in many cases, illegal.

□ Set a good example. Practice civil behavior online as well as in public and in your interaction with others. Encourage others to practice these civil behaviors. And it's OK to challenge disrespectful behavior — but be courteous, respectful and helpful in your approach.

How to Recognize and Respond to a Natural Gas Leak

Natural gas lines can be buried anywhere, even where homes don't use natural gas. So it's important that EVERYONE knows how to recognize and respond to a natural gas leak.

SIGNS OF A LEAK MAY INCLUDE:

SMELL
A distinct sulfur-like odor, similar to rotten eggs, even if it's faint or momentary.

HEAR
A hissing or roaring coming from the ground or above-ground pipeline.

SEE
Dirt or water blowing into the air, unexplained dead or dying plants or grass, or standing water continuously bubbling.

IF YOU SUSPECT A NATURAL GAS LEAK:

- DO...
- ✓ LEAVE. Evacuate the area and inform others to do the same, leaving doors open as you exit.
  - ✓ CALL. From a safe location, call 911 and Southwest Gas at 877-860-6020, day or night. A Southwest Gas representative will respond as soon as possible.
- DON'T...
- ✗ Smoke or use matches/lighters.
  - ✗ Turn electrical switches, thermostats, or appliance controls on or off.
  - ✗ Start/stop engines or use automated garage doors.

For more information about natural gas safety, visit swgas.com/safety or call 877-860-6020.

TENNIS CLUB WELCOMES NEWCOMERS

The Recreation Centers of Sun City West hosted its newcomers event Jan. 22 at the Palm Ridge Recreation Center. Held twice a year, this event is an opportunity for new residents to experience what Sun City West has to offer. Many of the chartered clubs, the RCSCW governing board and staff departments, along with various service groups in the area, provided information and answered questions. ### Meeting ing a motion for Mondays by Destiche, Drake questioned why before voting against the latest schedule change.

The vote passed 4-1 to approve the revisions to the 2024-2025 calendar year for the governing board's meeting schedule.

"I want details because we just moved this," Drake said. "This will be the third day that we've moved our meetings since I've been on the board, so I would like details on why we're moving it for the third time."

Densmore told Drake she had a request to place the item on the agenda from one of the new members and allowed Destiche to speak.

"You guys changed the meeting from Thursday to Wednesday after we had just been elected and did not look at our schedule," said Destiche, adding she teaches on Wednesday nights. "When I ran for the board, it was clear that the meetings were on Thursdays."

Drake said when she ran for the board the meetings were on Wednesday nights, then changed to Thursday nights, and the board voted unanimously to revise the 2024-2025 regular meeting schedule during the Nov. 14 board meeting, changing the meetings from Thursday to Wednesday nights so district personnel and parents/guardians could attend sports functions and other school programs often held on Thursday nights when board meetings were held.

"And now we're going to move it again?" Drake asked. "I understand that people have personal things going on in their personal lives. I do too. I work fulltime and my son is in several activities, but I would never come to the board and demand that they change the district board meeting for that. That's just my personal opinion."

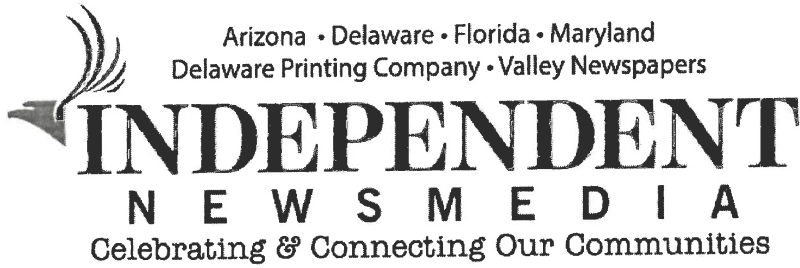

After no further discussion from the other board members, Densmore said it is a volunteer position they all took that required flexibility at times.

"And this is not directed at any board member in particular, but there are plenty of sacrifices that each of us have made to make our attendance a priority," said Densmore, adding she will have to change her work schedule either way in a few months. "We all make personal sacrifices. I just wanted to make note of that."

Drake said she already changed her work schedule twice and "my boss will not allow me to do it again."

Spooky Pests and Where to Find Them: A West Valley Halloween Special

As Halloween approaches in the Valley of the Sun, residents are preparing for a different kind of scare – the kind that scuttles, crawls, and sometimes flies. Yes, we're talking about the creepy-crawly world of pest control in the valley, where the line between Halloween decorations and actual infestations can get frighteningly blurry.

## The Scorpion King: Not Just a Dwayne Johnson Movie: Let's start with everyone's favorite arachnid, the scorpion. These little devils are like the ninja warriors of the pest world – stealthy, potentially deadly, and surprisingly good at hide-and-seek.

## Rodents: The Unwanted Trick-or-Treaters: Next up, we have roof rats. These furry fiends are the ultimate party crashers, showing up uninvited and refusing to leave. They're like that one relative who always overstays their welcome during the holidays.

## Termites: The Silent Wood Munchers: Termites are the ninjas of the pest world – silent, deadly (to your home's structure), and masters of disguise. They're so good at hiding, you might want to check if that wooden stake you're using for your vampire costume hasn't already been turned into a termite buffet.

## Ghostbusters: When faced with these spooky invaders, who you gonna call? No, not the Ghostbusters (although that would be cool). It's time to dial up your local Phoenix pest control experts. These brave souls are the real-life Van Helsing's of the Valley, armed with sprays, traps, and a wealth of knowledge on how to send these creepy critters packing.

So this Halloween remember that the real horror show might be lurking in your walls or crawling across your patio. With a little vigilance you can keep your home free from unwanted guests – both supernatural and six-legged. Happy Halloween, and may your only visitors be the cute, candy-seeking kind!

Deck the Halls (and Protect Them Too): Pest Control Tips for a West Valley Christmas

As the weather cools and the Christmas spirit fills the air in West Valley, homeowners must also be mindful of unwanted visitors - pests looking to get cozy for the holidays. From rodents seeking shelter to insects hitching a ride on greenery, pest control is an essential part of holiday home preparation in the desert Southwest.

Top of the list are pack rats, a common problem in the West Valley. These rats like areas next to or under outdoor furniture and around the base of cacti, and even the BBQ grill to nest. It's easy to deny roof rats a warm holiday home. Homeowners should also be on the lookout for rodent droppings and nesting materials.

Another yuletide nuisance, the Sonoran Desert termite, thrives in the mild winters of central Arizona. These wood-munching insects can cause serious structural damage if left unchecked. Regular termite inspections and proper treatment are crucial, especially for homes with wood-based construction.

Decorating with natural greenery also brings increased risk of pests. Spiders, and aphids can easily hitch a ride on live Christmas trees, wreaths, and garlands. Carefully inspect all holiday foliage before bringing it inside and consider opting for artificial options if pest problems persist.

While visions of sugarplums dance in residents' heads, West Valley homeowners must stay vigilant against the realities of seasonal pests.

Proactive pest control measures - from sealing entry points to scrutinizing holiday decor - can help ensure a festive and pest-free Christmas in the desert.

From the crew at Estrella Mountain Pest Control, we wish you a spectacular holiday season surrounded by friends and family.

Embracing New Beginnings: A Fresh Start for Your Home and Heart

As the calendar turns and a new year dawns, we're presented with a beautiful opportunity for renewal and hope. Just like we clear out the old to make way for the new in our lives, there's something symbolically powerful about cleaning house—both metaphorically and quite literally.

Consider the humble act of home maintenance as a metaphor for personal growth. Just as we meticulously seal entry points to prevent unwanted guests from disrupting our living spaces, we can also protect our mental and emotional landscapes from negative influences. Those tiny cracks where doubt and discouragement might creep in? It's time to seal them shut with determination and positivity.

Pest control isn't just about keeping insects at bay—it's about creating a sanctuary of peace and cleanliness. Similarly, the new year offers us a chance to identify and remove the "pests" in our lives: bad habits, toxic relationships, self-limiting beliefs. We can methodically inspect our personal foundations, patch up weak spots, and create an environment where growth and happiness can thrive.

This year, approach your goals like a professional pest management expert. Be strategic, patient, and thorough. Preventative care is always better than reactive solutions. Whether you're targeting mice in the attic or obstacles in your personal development, the principle remains the same: consistent, careful effort leads to remarkable results.

As we step into this fresh chapter, remember that every small action counts. Just like how sealing a tiny hole can prevent an entire infestation, each positive choice you make can transform your entire year. Embrace the potential of new beginnings, arm yourself with hope, and get ready to create something beautiful.

Here's to a year of clean spaces, clear minds, and unlimited potential!

A Fresh Start: February Brings Natural Pest Control to Phoenix

As winter's mild grip loosens on the Phoenix Valley, February emerges as a pivotal month for sustainable pest management. The moderate temperatures, typically ranging from 45°F to 72°F, create ideal conditions for natural pest control methods that benefit both homeowners and the environment.

- Desert birds, particularly house finches and cactus wrens, return in greater numbers during February, naturally controlling insect populations. These feathered allies consume thousands of mosquito larvae and other problematic insects daily, reducing the need for chemical interventions.

- Local gardeners find February optimal for planting pest-deterrent herbs like rosemary, sage, and native wildflowers. These plants not only beautify yards but also naturally repel unwanted insects while attracting beneficial ones. The cooler temperatures allow these plants to establish strong root systems before summer's intensity.

- The month's typically low humidity also works in residents' favor, naturally deterring moisture-loving pests like cockroaches and termites. This environmental advantage, combined with basic home maintenance like sealing entry points and proper ventilation, creates an effective first line of defense against common household pests.

February's moderate climate encourages beneficial insects like ladybugs and praying mantises to become more active. These natural predators help control aphids and other garden pests, maintaining a healthy ecological balance without chemical pesticides.

For Phoenix residents, February represents an opportunity to establish sustainable pest management practices that will protect their homes throughout the year. By working with nature's cycles and embracing biological control methods, homeowners can maintain pest-free environments while contributing to the valley's delicate desert ecosystem. This approach not only ensures immediate pest control but also promotes long-term environmental health in our unique desert community.

7 Steps to Overcome Imposter Syndrome

Last month, we explored signs of imposter syndrome. This month, I'm sharing 7 steps to overcome it. Let's get to it!

1. Acknowledge your imposter feelings. Labeling your fear can help you feel some control over it. Instead of engaging with your thoughts of self-doubt, remind yourself that this is your own personal, normal response to the situation at hand.
2. Understand the root of the problem. Figure out where your anxiety is coming from so you can gain greater control over it. (Hint: It starts in childhood with the development of self-limiting beliefs based on your genetics, environment and experiences, and it may take a deep dive into your history or even doing some therapy to figure this out.)

3. Focus on facts, not feelings. When you start feeling like a fraud, focus on positive, alternative possibilities. Look for ways to dispute your negative automatic thoughts. For instance, what factual evidence do you actually have that you are a fraud?

4. Ask yourself if the thought that you're an imposter helps or hinders you. Does feeling fraudulent serve you in any way? What might happen if you didn't have that thought?

5. Reframe your thoughts. Instead of telling yourself that you don't deserve success, reframe your thoughts to give yourself more credit and enjoy the experience. Own your accomplishments instead of attributing them to luck. Accept that we all have to start somewhere. Successful people just feel the fear and do it anyway.

6. Accept that it's normal to make mistakes, especially if it's something new to you. Look for what you can learn from each mistake instead.

7. Reach out for support. Having a safe space to receive support will help you reduce feelings of being an imposter. When you feel imperfect or make a mistake, reach out to an encouraging mentor, coach, friend, colleague or therapist for support.

Imposter syndrome can make you feel like you're not good enough, you don't belong or you are undeserving or unworthy. But it's important to remind yourself that learning and making mistakes does not make you a fraud—it makes you human.

If you struggle with imposter syndrome, your underlying self-limiting beliefs are getting in your way. It's time to get over yourself and get on with your life and what you want to do with it!

Luck of the Scorpions: A St. Patrick's Day Tale from Estrella Mountain Pest Control Control

While St. Patrick may be famous for driving snakes out of Ireland, pest control experts face a decidedly different challenge every March 17th: convincing inebriated revelers that scorpions aren't "lucky desert leprechauns."

"Last St. Patrick's Day, I got three separate calls about people trying to catch scorpions to 'get their pot of gold,'" sighs Shamus O'Shaunessy, a veteran pest control specialist. "I had to explain that scorpions don't actually guard treasure, and that green beer goggles aren't appropriate safety equipment for arachnid handling."

The confusion apparently stems from a local urban legend that claims Arizona bark scorpions glow green under blacklight because they've been blessed by St. Patrick himself. In reality, they fluoresce due to a protein in their exoskeleton – a fact that's considerably less magical but much more scientifically sound.

Local exterminator Larry Cash recalls his most memorable St. Paddy's Day call: "This guy had decorated his entire yard with shamrocks to 'attract friendly scorpions.' He was convinced they'd bring him good fortune. Instead, he attracted every scorpion in a three-block radius. The only luck he got was that we had an immediate opening."

The holiday has even spawned some uniquely Phoenician traditions, like the annual "Scorpion Shuffle" – where pest control technicians race to respond to panicked calls from bar districts as patrons mistake the desert's most notorious residents for tiny armored leprechauns. "We've started handing out pamphlets at Irish pubs," explains Rodriguez. "They read 'Scorpions: Not Your Lucky Charm' and include helpful tips like 'Gold at the end of the rainbow: Good. Scorpion in your shoe: Bad.'"

While St. Patrick's supernatural pest control skills might be legendary, our exterminators prefer to rely on more modern methods. As O'Shaunessy puts it, "Sure, you could try to charm the scorpions away with an Irish jig, but I find that professional-grade pesticide works much better. And you don't need to wear green to do it."

Why New Year's Resolutions Fail

If you're like 80% of new year's resolution-setters, you'll fail at your resolutions by February. I know, I don't like that math either, but the truth is that new year's resolutions just don't work. In this 3-part series, we'll take a look at why this happens, how you're sabotaging yourself when you set goals, what the heck SMART goals really are and what to do to make real progress this year.

Here are some reasons we may fail at meeting goals:

1. Your goals aren't SMART.

Goals that are Specific, Measurable, Achievable, Relevant and Time-Bound are more likely to be reached. If it ain't written down, it won't happen. Your odds of success are greater when you have a written plan in place. As they say, failing to plan is planning to fail. (More to come on this...)

2. Your goals are overwhelming.

Goals that involve small changes that build habits and then discipline over time are more likely to be achieved than grand goals that make change feel more daunting than it already is, which is a setup for failure. Goals that are too lofty are less likely to be achieved. For example, saying you'll lose 20 pounds in 2 months or that you'll exercise every single day is just unreasonable. Bigger goals should be broken down into smaller objectives with individual deadlines.

3. You're impatient.

As you work toward your goals, you may not see the progress that you want, which may then leave you feeling discouraged and less likely to continue toward those goals. Lasting change takes time to create, and goals that are broken down into smaller, clearer and more achievable objectives are more likely to be accomplished. Be sure to celebrate any and all success and forward movement, no matter how small, in order to remain motivated, too.

4. You're lying to yourself.

If you're not moving toward your goals, maybe you're not really ready to change. It's time to be honest with yourself. Maybe they're not realistic or maybe they're not based on your true priorities at the present moment. Think about what you really want. (Part 3 of this series will help with this.)

Come back next month to learn what all the fuss is about SMART goals and what the heck they actually are. Talk soon!

To whom it may concern,

The Webb Center pre-buys its advertisements in the Destination Wickenburg Guide (cost $785) and Wickenburg Sun newspaper (total cost $7,541) for the August - May timeframe annually.

As a part of the 2024-2025 season agreement, the Webb Center paid the same monthly rate of $832.60 for a ten-month period. Therefore, invoices reflect the flat rate of $832.60 regardless of how many ads were actually purchased during the billing period.

In addition, it is worth noting that 15,000 copies of the Destination Wickenburg Guide Fall 2024/Winter 2025 edition were distributed through the Wickenburg Visitor's Center as operated by the Wickenburg Chamber of Commerce as well as in racks around town and in surrounding communities. As "Wickenburg's Official Visitors Magazine" the publication promotes the town as a destination for tourists and long-term winter visitors.

Thank you,

VULTURE PEAK

Traversed by enthusiastic hikers of all levels, Vulture Peak is sure to be a fun destination site for any desert enthusiast. Located seven miles south of the Town of Wickenburg, the 800-foot elevation climb from trail base to saddle is well-maintained and safe for hikers of all experience levels. The trail is home to breathtaking Sonoran Desert landscapes, a variety of cactus species, as well as river washes and mountain valleys.

The steep summit, however, should only be attempted by more experienced hikers. Jagged rock formations and steep rock faces are just some of the obstacles hikers will face climbing the 240-foot summit. While not maintained, hikers can view Wickenburg and the surrounding areas from an incredible 3,660 feet.

Whatever a hiker's experience level, the Vulture Peak trail is sure to impress with incredible photo opportunities throughout the journey.

Top-Notch Entertainment

The West Valley provides arena action, racing and shopping

By Ron Sanzone

If West Valley residents ever experience boredom, it is not for a lack of entertainment options and venues in the area. Live music, live sports, theater, movie theaters and entertainment districts can all be found on the west side of town. As the West Valley grows, so does the entertainment scene.

ENTERTAINMENT DISTRICTS

The Westgate Entertainment District in Glendale offers shopping, dining and fun for all ages. Its outdoor setting allows visitors to enjoy the area's warm climate while they browse stores, stop by its splash pad or enjoy live music and entertainment during one of its seasonal events.

There is plenty of fun to be had whether it is catching a movie at the AMC Westgate 20, laughing until it hurts at Stir Crazy Comedy Club, finding a way out of an escape room at Escape Westgate or trying one's hand throwing axes at LumberjAxes Axe Throwing Bar. Music fans can catch the hottest acts playing live at Desert Diamond Arena. Right down the street is State Farm Stadium, home of the Arizona Cardinals, the Fiesta Bowl and, in certain years, the Super Bowl.

With more than a dozen restaurants, the P83 Entertainment District makes sure that no one who wants to have fun needs to do so on an empty stomach. Visitors can catch a Spring Training game at the Peoria Sports Complex; go for a skate at AZ Ice Peoria; watch the latest blockbuster at Harkins Theatres Arrowhead Fountains 18; or unwind with friends, live music and a beverage of their choice at The Social on 83rd. P83 will soon welcome another fun business, Tavern Park. During the week, it will act as a Vegas-style sportsbook with one of Arizona's largest LED walls. On the weekend, it will transform into a nightclub with an impressive light and audio package.

OUTDOOR ENTERTAINMENT

With around 300 days of sun a year, golf is an all-season sport in the West Valley. There are plenty of courses to tee up on in the area, the most famous of which is The Wigwam. The Litchfield Park resort is renowned for luxury accommodations and three 18-hole championship golf courses that attract golfers from around the world. It also hosts college and professional tournaments. A very different golf experience can be had at Topgolf in Glendale. It combines music, food and drinks, and a high-tech golf game that can be played regardless of skill or experience.

Every February and March, the West Valley welcomes MLB teams and their fans to Spring Training facilities in Peoria, Glendale and Goodyear. The Peoria Sports Complex is home to the San Diego Padres and Seattle Mariners, Camelback Ranch in Glendale hosts the Los Angeles Dodgers and Chicago White Sox, and Goodyear Ballpark welcomes the Cincinnati Reds and Cleveland Guardians.

The Wildlife World Zoo, Aquarium & Safari Park provides fun for the entire family. Its rides, shows, petting zoo and the state's largest collection of exotic and endangered animals draw visitors throughout the year.

INDOOR ENTERTAINMENT

During the hot summer months, most forms of entertainment in the West Valley move indoors. Harkins and AMC theatres keep guests entertained and cool. For a nostalgic throwback, movie lovers can head to Glendale to catch a flick at West Wind, the last remaining drive-in theater in Arizona.

For live entertainment, Arizona Broadway Theatre stages musicals, plays, concerts and special events in Peoria. Those who want to test their luck and try to win money to pay for entertainment (or anything else), Desert Diamond Casino in Glendale features a sportsbook, 1,400 slot machines and electronic and live tables.

Webb Center strives to enrich community

By Del E. Webb Center for the Performing Arts

The Del E. Webb Center for the Performing Arts is a 600-seat proscenium theater in Wickenburg.

Established in 2001, the theater annually presents a diverse mix of professional music, dance, comedy and theatrical performances, from November through March, to educate and enrich the lives of its audience members.

The Webb Center's current 2024-2025 season includes marquee artists such as Little Texas, Jesse Cook, Jake Shimabukuro, Jazz at Lincoln Center, and Big Bad Voodoo Daddy as well as emerging artists like rising country star Tony Jackson, The Queen's Cartoonists and London's leading men from "Les Misérables" The Barricade Boys. Everyone is welcome to participate in the programs with affordable adult and $5 youth tickets.

The not-for-profit is deeply committed to enhancing the local schools' arts and culture curriculum by offering free "Arts for Kids" student performances and workshops. The events engage the young residents of Wickenburg and its surrounding communities in meaningful arts experiences.

The Webb Center also produces "Camp Imagination," a two-week summer arts camp for 100 first through twelfth grade students every June, to inspire the next generation of artists and arts leaders. Campers choose from a variety of classes in movement, singing, culinary arts, technical theatre, visual arts and more. At the end of the two weeks, every camper stars in a musical play either onstage or behind-the-scenes as the technical crew.

In addition, the organization curates the innovative "Made in Wickenburg" artist residency program. Launched in 2009, the nationally recognized program invites an artistic company to live at a guest ranch in Wickenburg for one to two weeks while developing a new piece of work. Residency participants offer free educational outreach activities, such as open rehearsals and workshops, to educate the general public on their art form and creative process. In culmination of their residency, companies offer a free performance of their repertory pieces. The new piece will premiere within the next few months and then tour on a national and international level.

For tickets or more information about the Webb Center's programs, visit dewpac.org or call the box office at 928-684-6624.

Due to her good looks and her effervescent personality if not embryonic talent, rugged men were drawn to her (Bat Masterson would later describe her to Wyatt biographer Stuart Lake as being "an incredible beauty" and "the belle of the ball" (Ibid.). Josie (as by then she preferred to be known) was very much attracted to them as well. As aforementioned, she first took up with Tombstone Sheriff Behan in a torrid affair (she strongly believed that Behan would eventually marry her) that as dramatic as she was, ended in an equally dramatic way when she came home to find Behan in bed with another woman. She would almost immediately rent the home they shared to noted city physician George Goodfellow, who would save Virgil Earp's life after he had been ambushed in the wake of the OK Corral shootings, and later, as an Army surgeon who would save the life of the Army officer who informed Libbie Custer that she was a widow, then-Major William S. McCaskey, when he was stricken with malaria at the conclusion of the San Juan Hill campaign. No surprise that it would be George Goodfellow to whom Milburn Stone's Doc Galen Adams in "Gunsmoke" would be modeled on.

But back to Josie. It is not known exactly how long it was before Josie Marcus "hooked up" with Wyatt Earp, but it must have been fairly early on, as Josie knew that her former paramour Johnny Behan and Wyatt shared the same office. Johnny as town sheriff, Wyatt as the assigned U.S. deputy marshal. The two men didn't exactly have much love for each other, so it is entirely possible that Josie took up with the equally handsome (as compared to Behan) but less talkative (than Behan) tall lawman who had come to Tombstone straight from Dodge City along with his brothers and his friends, the former sheriff of Dodge City Barclay Bat Masterson (who only stayed for a short time before returning to Dodge), and a later arrival, a tubercular dentist-turned-gambler and gunfighter by the name of (John) Doc Holliday. Whether or not it was to make Behan jealous, Josie was almost immediately smitten with the tall, lanky lawman - and he with her. Thus, the sparks, in more ways than one as soon noted, began to fly between Josie Marcus and Wyatt Earp sometime in the late spring or summer of 1881 just as things began to get tense on the streets of Tombstone between the townsfolk who rallied around the Earp brothers and former Indian agent-turned Tombstone Epitaph editor Johnny Clum on one hand, and the "Cowboy" element led by the Clanton family, which would culminate in that famous gunfight at the (not exactly) OK Corral.

Again, while Josie's own recollections were vague at best and highly dubious at least, it is known that Wyatt Earp abandoned his common-law wife Mattie Blaylock, and took up with Josie Marcus in the spring of 1882, perhaps in the aftermath of the famous "Vendetta Ride." Earp, facing arrest, had to vacate Tombstone pronto, and Josie, by now his paramour, provided solace - and a bed partner. Earp ended up first in Colorado, then later in San Francisco. But before meeting up again with Josie and staying with her for the next 45 years - Wyatt, then hiding out in Albuquerque, had a notorious falling out with an old friend who stood by him and his brothers at the OK Corral and who would ride alongside with him, participating in that aforementioned "Vendetta Ride" - Doc Holliday. The falling out was not caused by jealousy. Doc never cared for Josephine Marcus - it was caused by Doc Holliday's virulent antisemitism and his aforementioned dislike of Josie.

As noted by my friend and Arizona Real Country colleague Bob Boze Bell's and the editors of True West Magazine's "True Tales and Amazing Legends of the Old West" there is a revealing correspondence written by the then-Governor of New Mexico territory Miguel Otero to Henry N. Jaffa, a prominent Jewish New Mexican businessman who would later become the mayor of Albuquerque, and who was also a close friend of the taciturn lawman which chronicled the falling out over Josie between the two men. According to Otero, Holliday slurred Earp while the two men were dining at Albuquerque's Retreat Restaurant sometime that spring or early summer of 1882, referring to Earp and his romance with Josie as Earp "becoming a damn jew-boy." Earp became angry and left. Earp probably infuriated Holliday more so by staying with Jaffa during his seeking of refuge after the Vendetta Ride. Jaffa hosted Earp at his home, and Wyatt, out of respect for both Jaffa and Josie (who wasn't there), honored Jewish tradition by touching the Mezuzah (a decorative case containing Torah writings affixed to the doorpost of Jewish homes) upon entering Jaffa's home.

ABOUT OUR COVER

Arizona Musicfest

2024-2025 CONCERT SEASON
PROGRAM 1 | NOVEMBER - DECEMBER

Michael McKee has been fortunate to spend his entire professional life as an artist, first as a commercial artist, illustrator and creative director in the city of Chicago. After 30 years enjoying this rich experience, he was ready to embark on a new artful journey of more personal expression. During the summer of 2000 on a trip to Santa Fe and the art galleries of Canyon Road, his eyes were continually drawn to and stimulated by the saturated colors of soft pastel. He discovered that the most dynamic color ranges could be found in this medium and it captivated him.

Since then, he has been working in this luscious medium creating hundreds of compositions over the last 20 years featuring landscapes of the American west and southwest. Michael and his wife moved from Chicago to Arizona for a chance to live in and around the magic of this golden desert and we are here every winter exhibiting in art festivals around the Valley. Discover more or even meet Michael in person by visiting michaelmckeegallery.com.

"Oak Creek Snow" is the first of three Michael McKee works to be featured as this season's Musicfest program book cover images.

Dear Sir or Madam:

This is in response to your request dated April 5, 2017, regarding your tax-exempt status.

We issued you a determination letter in June 1998, recognizing you as tax-exempt under Internal Revenue Code (IRC) Section 501(c)(3).

Our records also indicate you're not a private foundation as defined under IRC Section 509(a) because you're described in IRC Sections 509(a)(1) and 170(b)(1)(A)(vi).

Donors can deduct contributions they make to you as provided in IRC Section 170. You're also qualified to receive tax deductible bequests, legacies, devises, transfers, or gifts under IRC Sections 2055, 2106, and 2522.

In the heading of this letter, we indicated whether you must file an annual information return. If a return is required, you must file Form 990, 990-EZ, 990-N, or 990-PF by the 15th day of the fifth month after the end of your annual accounting period. IRC Section 6033(j) provides that, if you don't file a required annual information return or notice for three consecutive years, your exempt status will be automatically revoked on the filing due date of the third required return or notice.

For tax forms, instructions, and publications, visit www.irs.gov or call 1-800-TAX-FORM (1-800-829-3676).

If you have questions, call 1-877-829-5500 between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m., local time, Monday through Friday (Alaska and Hawaii follow Pacific Time).

Sincerely yours,

Stephen A. Martin
