Exhibit “A” Proposal/Quote (Option 1)

Option 1: This is the ROHN SSV. The benefit of this setup is that multiple radio can be installed with easy mounting. This is the most stable option and would handle wind loading exceptionally well. The wider base and reduced top section is perfect for windy days and greatly improves stability compared to other monopole units. The shipping estimates are 4-8 weeks from delivery.

Total cost for tower construction: $8500

This includes concrete, structure, and the installation of wireless radio equipment (1 full day dedicated to equipment installation). Additionally, a climbing cable would be installed.

Type	Self-support
Tower series	RSL
Actual tower height	40'
Maximum wind speed (no ice)	100 MPH 3 second gusts with 49sqft of antenna space
Depth	4'4"
Width	2' 9"
Height	40'
Concrete Dimensions	10.3CU Yds

This is the size that would be utilized. Plenty of space for smaller WISP antennas, and extensions can be added at the top to create a triangular mounting location (like a small cell phone boom array).

Option 2: Monopole: This option is more aesthetic but requires the renting of a small crane/hoist for installation. The easiest option is a direct imbed (please see separate document)

The top will consist of a triangular platform to allow for the installation of equipment. These generally have lower wind ratings, due to the increased solid surface area. Additionally, the servicing on these items may require renting of cherry pickers to allow for access to the equipment. The costs on this project reflects the total amount for all installation, and one full day of equipment installation is included with this purchase. A climbing cable and step bolts would be installed. Shipping Estimates are 12 weeks out for these items(very high demand)

Direct embed: $13000

Model	Rohn Direct Embed
Height	40ft
Hole Depth	12'hole with 2.5 ft diameter opening
Max Wind Rating	85mph 3 second gusts with 49sqft of antenna space.

Finished project would look something like this, however a triangular boom for antenna mounting would be installed.
